Steel Strike On, Plants Picketed As Parley Fails

Corporation Offers Equal Treatment

27,000 Are Involved by Struggle of C. I. O. for Contract.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 12.—Thousands of union steel workers picketed the giant plants of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation tonight in the first major steel strike since John L. Lewis began his drive to organize the Nation's mill men into one big union.

The strike went into effect promptly at 11 p. m. (E. D. T.)—the initial move in the campaign of the steel workers' organizing committee to obtain written collective bargaining contracts with the big independent steel producers of the country, employing approximately 202,000 men.

Cheers from the picket lines greeted union members on the early night shifts who walked from the mills in Pittsburgh and nearby Aliquippa, Pa., in answer to the strike order of Chairman Philip Murray, of the steel workers' committee.

Murray ordered the walkout after a two-hour conference with Chairman H. E. Lewis, of the corporation, failed to effect an agreement on the union's demand for a signed collective bargaining contract.

Equal Treatment Offered.

The corporation, in a formal announcement, stated it had offered to sign a contract providing an identical contract could be granted to non-union workers among its 27,000 employes.

The company also announced it had offered to grant a sole collective bargaining contract to the group obtaining a majority vote at an employes election supervised by the National Labor Relations Board.

It termed the walkout "unfortunate."

Murray declined to comment on the company's statement. He said the mills would be shut down tight, but announced a further conference would be held with the company tomorrow.

Flames from the blast furnaces shot high into the air, intermittently lighting up the faces of the crowds of men, women and children who packed the streets in front of mill gates more than an hour before the official strike call went into effect.

Police Present.

Some two-score municipal police mingled with the crowds, but made no attempt to break up the picket lines.

Without disorder, the union men prevented non-union workers from entering the mill gates.

The throng was increased by the night shift members who fell into line, clasped arms with one another, and paraded in front of the gates.

A light rain before midnight sent many of the women and children—families of strikers—to their homes, but the men remained in the lines.

Union workers had voted Sunday to walk out if the company failed to sign a contract.

Murray announced his decision despite efforts of Federal Department of Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey to avert the walkout and to prevent its spreading to other major independent steel producers.

The steel union leader announced: "We had a two-hour conference with Mr. Lewis (of the company) and no agreement was arrived at.

"The conference is to continue tomorrow and in the meantime the mills will be down tight at 11 o'clock tonight."

To Confer Again.

Dewey, who negotiated in the settlement of the recent automobile strikes, said he would hold another conference with Lewis.

Union leaders hurried from the steel union headquarters with Murray's instructions to thousands of workers for conducting the walkout and establishing picket lines at the two plants.

Committee leaders said maintenance workers would be left on duty at both plants to keep furnaces warm and prevent damage to equipment. It costs thousands of dollars to reline a blast furnace once it has been shut down.

Murray issued his call after a

Delay Menaces Ballot on Bill To Ban Abattoir

Tydings to Withhold Vote Until Plant Backer Is Compensated.

Hopes of the District government, citizenry, Interior Department and other agencies to prevent erection of an abattoir on Benning road sagged yesterday under the cross-fire questioning of Senator Millard E. Tydings.

A member of the District subcommittee conducting hearings on the King bill, the Maryland Democrat said he will not vote for the measure to control "nuisance industries" here until and unless the Adolf Gobel Co., New York meat packer, is compensated for financial losses which it would suffer if defeated in its battle to build a local plant.

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, sub-committee chairman, likewise reiterated his opposition to the bill because, by admission of Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, although it covers many types of "nuisance industries" its principal aim is preventing erection and operation of the Gobel slaughterhouse.

McCarran Not Sympathetic.

"You'll get no sympathy from me," McCarran said after Seal, questioned by counsel for the New York packer, said the District Commissioners "don't want any abattoirs here."

Studded with bristling oral interchanges, the second day's hearing on the bill introduced April 27 by Chairman William H. King of the Senate District Committee brought out such facts as:

Corporation Counsel Seal said he does not know who drafted the bill, whose passage he is indorsing in behalf of the Commissioners.

Senator Tydings, gentleman farmer and cattle raiser, has shipped 100 head to Baltimore for slaughter so far this year. "But I market all my eggs in Washington."

The bill would require poultry killing establishments, as well as cattle handlers, to get a special permit from the zoning commission to continue their business.

The bill was introduced on the same day (April 27) that the District Commissioners granted a permit to Adolf Gobel, Inc., to erect its abattoir. This prompted Tydings to condemn the "spectacle" of the Commissioners giving a permit to

Public Will Voice Sentiment Monday On Daylight Time

Public hearings on the District daylight saving time bill were scheduled to start at 10 o'clock next Monday after the House District Committee had referred the measure to a sub-committee.

Representative Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, author of the bill, said that ample opportunity to be heard will be given all interested persons.

Letters on the bill, as received by the committee and the author, are now predominantly favorable, although there is some evidence of ballot stuffing on the part of the proponents.

Leaders Act To Save WPA From Slash

Committee Moves Today to Restore ½ Billion Cut in Relief Fund.

Administration Plan to Make CCC Permanent Fails in House.

By Robert C. Albright.

Attempting rescue of the Administration's $1,500,000,000 relief program from the economy snowball pushed off by the President, the House majority leadership swung into action yesterday to save WPA from a half-billion-dollar cut.

After a day of indecision and vote canvassing, the Appropriations Committee was summoned to meet this morning to attempt restoration of the $500,000,000 carved off by a sub-committee bent on retrenchment.

Informally, enough votes were claimed in the full committee to stem the economy revolt which threatened to reduce relief funds to two-thirds of the amount demanded by Harry L. Hopkins and the President.

Leaders moved swiftly to squelch the revolt before return of the President tomorrow. Uncertainty was apparent. Today's scheduled meeting of the Appropriations Committee first was flatly canceled. Later, after a careful survey of voting strength, the meeting was reordered.

Forecast House Approval.

Apparently confident the full committee will march back down the economy hill the sub-committee marched up Tuesday, leaders again forecast House approval of $1,500,000,000 for relief. But there was some talk in committee of a possible $1,200,000,000 compromise. An independent effort will be made in committee for State-sharing of a fixed percentage of the relief load.

Past rescue before the President's leadership conference tomorrow was the Administration's CCC bill, pivot of another rebuff to Mr. Roosevelt. The President wanted the CCC made permanent. The House Tuesday limited its life to two years, and yesterday confirmed this action by 385-to-7 passage of the bill.

Administration hopes for a coup ing its CCC planning shifted to the Senate, to which the House bill was messaged. Even while the rebellion was in progress, the Senate Labor Committee reported a bill giving the CCC permanent status in line with Administration views.

Meantime, the Senate economy picture was confused by two separate tests of retrenchment. In the Senate chamber, disciples of retrenchment lost their first showdown when Senators voted 46 to 29 for preliminary appropriations on the $112,000,000 Gilbertsville, Ky., dam. Opponents of emergency spending made the TVA dam an issue in two days of heated debate. The project was a Senate amendment on the $81,646,443 second deficiency bill, also approved yesterday by the Senate.

Report Agriculture Bill.

But in the Senate Appropriations Committee, a $571,261,242 Agriculture Department bill was reported, with $60,000,000 lopped off of the $500,000,000 sought by the Administration for soil conservation payments to farmers. This brought the item to $440,000,000, the amount approved last year for farm benefits. The committee also cut $500,000 from appropriations for forest purchases by the Agriculture Department. Offset by some increases made in the bill, total amount of reduction under House figures was $56,767,989.

In interesting contrast to the Senate's overwhelming approval of the Gilbertsville dam, the chamber a few minutes later shouted down $100,000 in amendments by Senator Carl Hayden (Democrat), of Arizona, for Arizona Indians. The deficiency item was heartily disapproved although $85,000 of the amount already has been expended by the Bureau of Indian Affairs for starving Arizona Indians.

The House search for votes to approve the full $1,500,000,000 asked by the President for 1938 relief aligned the leadership against Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, sponsor of the $500,000,000 cut, but an enthusiastic friend of the President.

Woodrum Voted for Cut.

Woodrum on Tuesday voted with Representative Thomas S. McMillan (Democrat), South Carolina, and three Republicans in a 5-to-4 subcommittee vote for the slash. Although informal claims of a "7 or 8" majority in the full committee for the entire $1,500,000,000, at least

Duke Defers Wedding on King's Plea As New Clash With Baldwin Develops; George Pledges Self to 'Serve Others'

Monarch Crowned With Solemn Pomp

Little Princess, Tired, Lends Human Note With Yawn.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 13 (Thursday).—Coronation day passed into history today with a crowned King and Queen dedicated by ancient ritual and broadcast pledge to "the service of others."

Hardy revelers carried their celebrations on toward another dawn after the sovereign and his consort just before midnight waved a final good night from Buckingham Palace to 60,000 hoarse but dauntless subjects.

They were the last steadfast band from the massed millions who cheered the glittering spectacle of London's "day of days."

In hallowed Westminster Abbey, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were consecrated yesterday with time-mellowed ceremonial to their task of rulership.

And in a broadcast from his palace, following the spectacular, triumphal procession in his rich regalia, the sovereign affirmed:

"This is indeed a grave and constant responsibility * * *."

Solemnly he stated that "the highest of distinctions is the service of others" and pledged that "we will, God helping us, faithfully discharge our trust."

And of the commonwealth he spoke of "how much our friendship with each other and with all of the nations on earth can help the cause of peace and progress."

A thousand years of history lived and moved in solemn splendor to crown George the Sixth in hallowed Westminster Abbey.

Among the great of mighty Britain and envoys from the world, Princess Margaret Rose, youngest daughter of King George and Queen Elizabeth, was just a little girl.

Untouched by solemn pageantry, she just sat back and enjoyed it all until she got tired and then she yawned widely and openly right at the venerable and august Archbishop of Canterbury.

Princess Elizabeth, her 11-year-old sister and heir presumptive to the throne, already is queenly and stately. She watched with quiet dignity and nudged Margaret to be quiet.

Queen Mary Impressive.

But the little girl wiggled her ears, tickled her sister, flicked a service book and fidgeted in her seat. Finally she yawned, put her elbow on the front of the royal box and rested her head as she watched.

The princesses sat through the two-hour ceremonial between their grandmother, Queen Mary, and their aunt, the princess royal.

Elizabeth sat next to Queen Mary, Margaret next to the aunt and with not too much attention from her regal grandmother, who, in the splendor of her massed jewels, was the most impressive woman in the abbey.

The new King seemed nervous during the opening stages of the long service, but appeared to gain confidence as the ceremony progressed. Both he and Elizabeth were solemn, pale and unsmiling while in the abbey.

It was just 10 minutes short of midnight (5:50 p. m. Eastern standard time) before cheering crowds outside Buckingham Palace would permit the King and Queen to end their day of dedication.

Responding to the clamor of 60,000 persons, hoarse but undaunted, they made their fourth appearance on the balcony of the flood-lighted palace and waved a final goodnight.

King Not "Unduly Tired."

From the palace it was announced the King "was not unduly tired" by his arduous day.

As midnight approached the West End was still jammed. The few automobiles which tried to negotiate the streets were promptly bogged down by singing, dancing, confetti-tossing, statue-climbing celebrants, whose antics the bobbies watched tolerantly.

At midday, while the well-rehearsed coronation was solemnized a half hour late, an estimated 2,000,-

Principals in New Matrimonial Crisis

Monts, France, May 12.—Edward of Windsor's unwavering love for Wallis Warfield gave promise today of precipitating another empire crisis, as the British government's opposition to the match pursued the lovers even in their exile and forced postponement of their wedding plans.

With the royal family and leaders of the government once again at odds, an emissary of the brother who today received the crown renounced by Edward sped here by airplane to urge that the wedding of the former king and his American-born fiancee be delayed.

Edward ruefully acceded to the request, and announced through a spokesman that there would be no marriage until June.

The "differences" centered about the government's insistence that the ceremony be private, in opposition to the desire of Windsor for formal recognition of his marriage.

Family Backs Edward.

Lined up in support of the exiled duke's demand were his brother, who today was crowned as King in Edward's stead, and Queen Mother Mary—opposed to them was the unyielding figure of Stanley Baldwin, the man who kept Edward from a throne.

By airplane the new King sent Lord Brownlow, former gentleman-in-waiting to Edward, to this French retreat to urge that the wedding be delayed "until the snarl in London can be straightened out."

Tonight Edward talked by telephone to London for 45 minutes, presumably with his brother, the King.

Thus, tonight, while England still pulsated to the pageantry of coronation, the wedding plans of the duke rested largely in the hands of King George VI.

It was disclosed the London cabinet wanted the duke's wedding to be a private, small affair, while his brother and his mother were insisting that the former King deserved more consideration from the leaders of the empire he once ruled.

Edward, himself, a close associate revealed, wanted no imposing ceremony, but he did desire formal recognition of the marriage for which he gave up his throne. Such recognition, presumably would be given by official presence of a member of the royal family, probably the Duke of Kent, Edward's favorite brother, whom the duke has wanted to be his best man.

Even in the ceremonies attendant upon the coronation, to the radio account of which Edward and Wallis Warfield listened today in rain-drenched Chateau de Cande, ran an undercurrent of the brewing conflict.

Veiled Thrust at Duke.

Prime Minister Baldwin, in his introduction to the new King's broadcast to the empire, made what was interpreted as a thrust at the royal exile.

"In the abbey, I saw our young young King and his Queen dedicating their lives to the service of their people and, as I said only the other night in the House of Commons, a service that can only be ended by death."

The Prime Minister used the word "service" eight times in his short introduction.

It was the opposition of the British government and the Anglican Church to Edward's wedding to the twice-divorced American woman which caused Edward to quit his empire throne last December 10 for "the woman I love."

It was indicated at the chateau the announcement of the wedding plans nevertheless may be made next Monday.

The duke, who was understood to have been annoyed because the engagement between Mrs. Warfield and himself was disclosed yesterday on the eve of his brother's coronation, acted to keep private the life within the chateau.

He issued orders that nothing be said outside and Herman E. Rogers.

Conferees Act To Rid District Of 'Red Rider'

Compromise to Abolish Ban While Appeasing 'Pink' Bill Sponsors.

By James D. Secrest.

Senate and House conferees agreed tentatively yesterday on a compromise which is expected to rid the District schools of the "red rider" and at the same time placate sponsors of the "pink rider."

While the managers declined to disclose the nature of the compromise until after another parley today, it was learned that the plan is to report a bill repealing the rider with a proviso stating that the action shall not be construed as advocating Communism.

All except two of the conferees are understood to have agreed to the new proviso, and they were absent yesterday. They are Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, and Representative Short (Republican), Missouri.

Those who voted approval were Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama; Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York; Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin; Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, and Representatives Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, and Kennedy (Democrat), Maryland.

Yesterday's meeting was the first in several weeks, due to the absence of one or more conferees, but members of the House group have been working quietly in an effort to effect a compromise agreeable to all factions.

Senate conferees, who have insisted on outright repeal of the 2-year-old ban on the teaching or advocacy of Communism in the public schools, were adamant at first against any compromise.

They accepted the House proposal, it is understood, only when they became convinced the House would not vote for a repeal measure at this session.

The Senate twice has passed the repeal legislation. It first passed the Wheeler bill, which eliminated the "red rider" without any strings left hanging. Later it passed the measure again in rejecting the House amendment.

In adopting the "pink rider,"

King Acquires New Confidence As Ceremonies Draw to End

By Sir Hugh Walpole.

Written Exclusively for United Press by the Noted British Novelist.
(World Copyright, 1937, by United Press)

London, May 12.—I was determined on my honesty to see if I found this thing to be, in these days, the sham sentiment of an outworn tradition. For times are not as they were. As I dressed on this dark, foggy morning and looked out of my window a little mournfully and with that odd misgiving of apprehension which coronations seem so easily to arouse, I reminded myself of these changed times.

"Here," I said to the frosty dawn across the park shrouding the palace, "is the only survival in Europe of an ancient oath declared in patriotism as the echo of an old feudal act of service. Is it not nonsense, seen in the light of these changed and changing times? If I think so, I shall say so."

Not a Tory.

For 30 years or so I've been called a Tory, a reactionary, a romantic. I am neither a Tory nor a reactionary, but I am romantic if by that term you mean that the past has some good claims on the present. If you refuse to believe that, then all real virtues arrived in the world for the first time in Russia in March, 1917.

So, most ardently, I was determined today not to be betrayed by sentiment. Then out of the fog, safe in the dean's yard, propelled even at 5:45 o'clock in the morning by some of the most polite gentlemen in Europe, up a long, narrow, corkscrew staircase between thick, gray walls—and I suddenly emerged in the ancient battlemented triforium and looked straight down to the King's chair of state. There below me i. a splash of amber light, solitary, austere, indifferent, was the chair.

I had the oddest—and I suppose the most arrogant—sensation as I looked at it that it was aware of my gaze. We seemed to be alone in the abbey, the chair and I.

It was as though some of my early morning skepticism was being now immediately challenged. The chair,

Loyalists Suffer Heavy Losses In Toledo Drive

3,000 Are Reported Dead, Many Wounded in 4-Day Attack.

By the Associated Press.

Toledo, Spain, May 12.—Heavy government attacks against historic, insurgent-held Toledo developed today into a mass offensive in which, insurgents said, the attackers suffered "unprecedented slaughter."

Government prisoners estimated their dead in the campaign at more than 3,000, with total casualties not calculted, insurgent reports said.

Waves of government infantry charged insurgent positions south of the Tajo River, as a climax to four days of fighting.

Insurgents clung to positions they took four days ago on the Merida highway, west of Toledo.

Insurgents braced their lines tonight along a 6-mile front south of the Tajo. Estimates of government troops in the offensive ranged from 18,000 to 22,000 men.

No-man's-land was covered with dead and wounded after a terrific battle yesterday. Squads from both

What About the Baby? the Housewives Ask About First Lady's Plea for Eight-Hour Day

It was hardly with three rousing cheers and a tiger that Washington women approached last night by an inquiring reporter gave their answers to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's suggestion that housewives work on an eight-hour day and for a salary.

Mrs. Roosevelt's declaration was made yesterday at New York as she spoke in a radio discussion with Miss Rose Schneiderman, secretary of the State labor department and president of the Women's Trade Union League.

After speaking for an eight-hour day for housewives, Mrs. Roosevelt added: "I sometimes think that the wife who stays at home and carries on all the work in the household, should be paid a definite salary, for she earns it without any question."

Though many of them indulgently gave support to the idea, as an idea, they kept throwing monkey wrenches into the machinery.

In fact, Arleva Marquardt, the first to be sought out, brought out a very complicating point—the baby.

She wondered what would be done about the baby when Mrs. Housewife punched the clock. Would the baby not get hungry, or cross, or . . . or any of those other things after working hours?

Miss Marquardt came out flatly with the question: "What would they do with the baby after 8 p. m., and who's to pay the salary?"

The next woman quizzed by the reporter wished to remain anonymous. Her contribution to the forum was:

"It's all very well to talk about these things, but I don't think anything can be done as long as the Supreme Court is packed with men, and most of them husbands and fathers at that.

"Just suppose that court was to act on the appeal of a husband convicted of going out at night with the good wife's salary still in his pocket.

House May Investigate Police For Handling of Jordon Case

The case of Thomas Jordon, 31, scheduled to die in the District's electric chair June 14, yesterday shifted to Capitol Hill.

After listening to complaints of John M. Holsworth, a New York attorney, the House District Committee authorized Chairman Mary T. Norton to appoint a sub-committee to study evidence bearing on this and other charges and determine whether a general investigation of crime conditions is justified.

Chairman Norton appointed Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland, as chairman of the sub-committee. Others named were Representatives Herbert S. Bigelow (Democrat), of Ohio; Leon Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania; W. Sterling Cole (Republican), of New York, and Paul W. Shafer (Republican), of Michigan. Not all of these were sure they could serve.

Palmisano announced that the sub-committee would hear Holzworth's charges at an executive session Monday.

New Slavery Exists in South, Gorman Claims

Labor Completes Case in Hearings on Textile Control Bill.

By William V. Nessly.

A charge that "slavery still exists in the South," although in a new form, quickly brought a defense of the Southern textile belt yesterday as a House Labor sub-committee sought patiently to work out Federal legislation for regulation of the textile industry.

There was also a charge by Representative Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, author of the bill under consideration, that he was being insulted by an attorney. A quick apology and a later handshake ended the brief flare-up.

Discussion of the "stretch-out evil," ways of eliminating the "graveyard shift," and even an off the record discussion of the threat raised by Japanese exports of cotton goods marked the inquiry. Labor's presentation of its side was completed, and the committee, headed by Representative Kent Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, adjourned until next Tuesday, when representatives of the operators will be heard.

Pay Cut, Hours Boosted.

Immediately under consideration is a redraft of the Ellenbogen bill, prepared at the instance of Keller, some of the provisions of which are being opposed by Ellenbogen and Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers. In the redraft, prepared by Gregory Hankin, Washington attorney, the proposed minimum wage was cut from $18 to $15 a week, and maximum hour limit was boosted from 35 to 40 weekly.

Gorman made the charge there still is slavery in the South, and Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), Georgia, replied. Gorman held that the South got large textile plants by offering "cheap labor and plenty of it," and that now the operators are unwilling to recognize efforts to organize the employes. He declared that if the union were strong enough no legislation would be necessary, making the assertion in explanation of the support given by labor to the Guffey coal act which includes only regulation of trade practices and price control, without any labor clauses. Gorman, on the other hand, is insisting that the textile bill be confined to labor provisions, and is opposing insertion fo fair trade practice clauses.

The labor chieftain said that for every concession granted industry in the law there must be protection for labor. He declared piece work wage rates often were cut so it was impossible to earn even the minimum wage unless the union can maintain proper piece work rates.

Sees Sales Restrictions.

Ramspeck conceded that living standards in the South must be raised, "if the South is ever to be what it should be," but he insisted the Government must not "go too far" and raise costs to the point where sales will be restricted. "We must let industry live," he said, adding that Southern mills are at an economic disadvantage of 25 per cent greater freight costs in reaching their markets.

He maintained that authentic figures showed employment conditions were "just as bad" in Rhode Island textile plants in 1935 as in the South, with employes being worked 55 and 60 hours a week. Gorman contended, however, wages were higher in Rhode Island.

Gorman conceded there had been wage improvements in the South, but insisted there still was a wage differential which should be eliminated. Asked by Ramspeck whether labor, if it were given the same wages in the South as in the North, would help solve the "disadvantages" facing Southern plants, he said labor always would co-operate to "equalize differences, but a wage differential is not the solution."

Keller revealed he is considering seeking to reduce use of the "graveyard shift" by providing time and one-half pay for all employment between 11 p. m. and 7 a. m. He disclosed also he has a plan for retiring obsolete machinery that lessens the efficiency of some plants and makes the mills subject to shutdowns.

Imperial Conference in London Interests U. S. as George's Coronation Passes Into Memory.

By Franklyn Waltman

EVEN though the tumult and the shouting attendant on the coronation of King George VI has subsided and the colorful pomp and pageantry of that event are passing into memory, official American interest in the activities in the British capital today becomes more intense.

WALTMAN.

Indeed, far more important, from an official American viewpoint—and perhaps from a world viewpoint—than the ritual in Westminster Abbey and the thunderous acclaim given King George by his subjects is the Imperial Conference which convenes in London tomorrow to discuss the future relationships between the Dominions and the United Kingrom which comprise the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The chief statesmen of Australia, Canada, India, South Africa, Ireland and the United Kingdom will gather to discuss such momentous questions as defense plans for the British Empire; the part which the autonomous dominions will play in any future war into which Great Britain may be drawn, and international economic policy, including that of world trade. Overshadowing all will be the disclosure of trends and unity or diversity of opinion which will indicate whether the British Commonwealth of Nations will be strengthened or weakened.

All of these questions are of the utmost importance to the United States. Our relationship to the British Empire is a key to American foreign policy and to American armament requirements, especially in respect to the Far East. Of even greater importance is the continued stability of the British Commonwealth of Nations. But more directly and immediately the American Governmnet is concerned with the discussions at London relating to international trade policies.

Prospects for the negotiation of an Anglo-American reciprocal trade agreement, as well as for such agreements with several of the British Dominions, depends in large part on the outcome of the conversations at the Imperial Conference. Failure of an Anglo-American trade agreement would be a serious, if not fatal, setback to the Hull reciprocal trade program.

Thus from the standpoint of Secretary of State Hull's plan for increasing American foreign trade and world trade generally, which generally is regarded as a substantial contribution to the maintenance of world peace, depends in a very real sense on the outcome of the London conversations which commence tomorrow.

Should the British Commonwealth of Nations, ignoring the pleas of a part of the English press, some of its foremost economists and the advice of the economic committee of the League of Nations, undertake further to isolate themselves economically within the framework of the Ottawa agreements, then the outlook for a breaking of international trade barriers would, indeed, be dark.

But haste should be made to assert that those familiar with the situation in the American Government do not look forward to such an eventuality. They regard the prospects for a loosening of the bonds of the Ottawa agreements, perhaps along the lines of the revision negotiated last year by Canada after entering an agreement with us, as very promising. It might be said that the preparations for the negotiation of a trade agreement with the United Kingdom—and later on with Australia and the Union of South Africa—which commenced here after the visit of Walter Runciman, are being pushed and are expected to bear fruit within a month or two.

The optimism felt here over the future of the Hull reciprocal trade program is based in part on harmony of viewpoints regarding means of stimulating world trade held by Secretary Hull, on the one hand, and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, his probable successor Neville Chamberlain, an influential section of the British press and the influence of the successful operation of the American-Canadian agreement, on the other hand.

Significant of the agitation in England for a revision of the Ottawa agreements, the normal term of which expires this year, is the current issue of the London Economist which has just arrived in this country.

Its leading article is devoted to a plea for a revision of the Oftawa agreements to permit the negotiation of reciprocal agreements with foreign countries. A sizable section of the issue is devoted to an analysis of the operation of the agreements which points out that "the general effect of the Ottawa agreements, it is now clear, was to stimulate protectionism abroad."

The Economist contended "a group of nations which includes one-quarter of the world's population and covers over one-quarter of its surface cannot live to themselves alone.

"Nor can their economic policy be considered in watertight compartments, but must be treated as a whole," the Economist continued. "Unless and until we are prepared to return to the prewar state of things, a heavy responsibility rests upon the empire to seek some other means of making its contribution to the general well-being."

Although a more liberal trade policy for the British Commonwealth of Nations is expected to come out of the imperial conference, this Government is keeping a close and an anxious eye on those proceedings.

Incidentally, it is wise to take with a grain of salt reports of the convening of another world economic conference in the near future, especially reports that President Roosevelt proposes to call such a conference. The reason is that the best economic thought here is to the effect that there is nothing which could be accomplished by such a conference. Efforts toward co-operation between the United States and individual governments to lower trade barriers and promote currency stabilization, however, will continue.

Atlas Tack Corner Denied by Brokers

New York, May 12 (AP).—Two Cincinnati partners of the New York Stock Exchange Firm of W. E. Hutton & Co., testified at the Security & Exchange Commission hearing today they never had owned or had taken orders for Atlas Tack stock.

The partners, called as witnesses for the respondents in the SEC action charging the firm with manipulation of Atlas Tack, were James A. Hall and C. Kenneth Smith.

The SEC has shown the price of Atlas Tack closed at $9.50 a share on November 14, 1935. The following morning it opened at $11 and in February, 1936, sold at $30.25.

Roosevelt Firm On Court Plan, Burke Asserts

Says President Wants 6, Not 2 Justices; Chiefs of Opposition Worried.

By Sidney Olson.

A leader of the opposition to the President's court reorganization bill, Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, last night confidently predicted the President will "never compromise on adding six Justices to the Supreme Court."

"The President wants six, not two," Burke said. "He'd probably drop the bill without interest if fewer than six were proposed."

The President's lack of indication of willingness to compromise on the bill continued, seemingly, to worry opposition chiefs, some of whom privately hinted that beating the addition of six justices will be considerably harder than is generally believed.

This was at wide variance, however, with a much-repeated but unconfirmed rumor that the President, before leaving for his Gulf of Mexico fishing trip, appointed two spokesmen in the Senate to apply pressure to insure that at least a two-justice compromise came favorably out of the committee.

Strategic Advantage.

Such a proposal, subject easily to amendment to six on the floor, would place Administration leaders in a much more favorable strategic position than if the court bill were merely reported unfavorably out by the committee; which now stands 10 to 8, or possibly even 11 to 7, against the court bill.

At yesterday's session of the committee Senator McAdoo (Democrat), California, explained to the members his own court plan, which would fix the membership of the Supreme Court at 15. He coupled this with a constitutional amendment, fixing the court at 15, but allowing Congress to readjust the court's size at 25-year intervals to meet population increases.

McAdoo's argument was based on his view that since the court of nine members was decided upon when the country's population stood at 38,500,000 people, the duty of Congress was now to increase the court to 15 to serve a population of 130,000,000.

Calls Number "Absurd."

"It is manifestly absurd to keep the court at nine," said the tall, lean former Secretary of the Treasury under President Wilson. Industries have increased tremendously and thus litigation has increased. We may in the not too distant future have a population of 175,000,000, still served by a court of nine members. It is obviously unintelligent not to increase the size of the court. It is also obviously foolish to fix the court at a permanent number.

"I attach no importance whatever to the argument that the President is trying to pack the court. He couldn't pack it if he tried to, deliberately.

"Any man who could run the gantlet of the Senate in this situation is some man!" he added, referring to the close scrutiny that will be given any Presidential appointees to the Supreme bench if the court plan carries through.

Voting Begins Tuesday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee will meet but once more—Monday—before the final voting begins on the following day on the bill and amendments and substitutes.

In the House, Representative Joseph W. Martin jr., Massachusetts Republican, and chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, hailed the election of Richard M. Simpson, a Republican, in the Eighteenth Pennsylvania District as "an emphatic repudiation" of the President's court bill. He said the campaign was based on the court issue.

Simpson will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Benjamin K. Focht, another Republican.

Sen. Bilbo Moans for Millsaps, Beset by Communists' Wiles

Plea to Vote for Lynching Bill Stirs 'The Man' to Rhetorical Flights.

Senator The Man (Theodore G.) Bilbo yesterday turned his attention to the higher education for the first time since he was Governor of Mississippi.

He denounced in true Bilboan style, the style the folks back in Poplarville, Miss., like. It has been absent here since the Senator put away childish things, such as clipping newspapers for the Department of Agriculture, and assumed the toga.

The object of his concern yesterday was Millsaps College, in his home State, where "the wily overtures of designing Communists" now are rampant, according to the Senator.

The immediate spur to his anger was a telegram from 50 Millsaps students recommending he vote for the Gavagan anti-lynching bill.

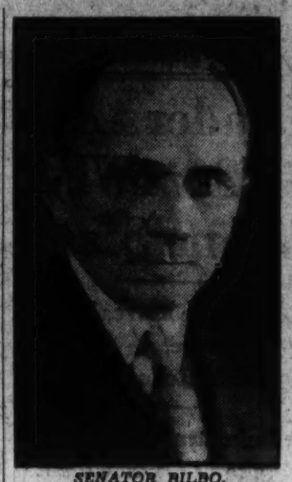
This sentiment is "utterly inexplicable," the Senator explicated, rolling off one of the more elevated of the higher education's words.

From April 18, when he received the telegram, to yesterday he busied himself with research, discovering the students belonged to a chapter of the American Student Union, a liberal, pacifist student organization with headquarters in New York.

"I have no criticism to make against any student who enrolls as a member of this organization," said the Senator, quickly changing from anger to sorrow and caution. "I know they have been misled, misguided and deceived.

"The president and faculty of every educational institution in Mississippi should make it their business to ferret out the underlying purposes and motives of every organization formed in the student body.

"The students of our colleges are entitled to protection from the wily overtures of designing Communists bent upon destruction of our democratic form of government."



SENATOR BILBO.

The last time Senator Bilbo had to do with the college generation, there was tremendous furore in Mississippi, and the then Gov. Bilbo was burned in effigy at Oxford, seat of the University of Mississippi.

This resulted from Bilbo's proposal to spend a lot of State money for a new plant for the university, to placate students and others who did not like the Governor's treating college appointments as State patronage.

Pursuant to this idea he had in one day fired the heads of the university, the State College for Women, Mississippi State (then A. and M.) and 179 professors and teachers. A little later he put a real estate salesman without a college degree in the chancellorship of one college and the public relations director of the Mississippi Light & Power Co. in the presidency of another.

Borah's Fascism Stand Attacked by Writer

Rome, May 12 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist writer, attacked United States Senator William E. Borah today for declaring fascism a greater danger in the United States than communism.

In a newspaper article Gayda often the mouthpiece of the Fascist Party, forecast "stern, difficult, perilous days for the United States" because of Communist activity.

He chided Borah for his criticism of fascism, saying that the history of American expansion is "red with blood shed for the usurpation of the lands of free peoples, massacred in the name of great empire."

Record Budget.

Nanking, China, May 12 (AP).—The Chinese government reached a new high level in fiscal finance today. The central political council approved a 1937-38 budget of 1,000,649,478 Mexican dollars (approximately $300,194,834), topping a record breaking estimate of the previous year by about $29,973,000.

Entire World Hears England Acclaim Ruler

300,000 D. C. Listeners Join With Millions at Radios.

The world's greatest audience heard history made yesterday when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were crowned.

Officials here estimated the audience exceeded that which listened to the abdication speech of King Edward VIII, when he foreswore the world's greatest empire for the "woman I love," and stepped down from a throne to become merely Edward Windsor.

In the United States alone more than 75,000,000 listened. In Washington there were more than 300,000 listeners.

Washington's stations, WMAL, WJSV and WOL, picked up their broadcast from the British Broadcasting Corporation.

There were those men and women who set their alarm clocks so that they migh arise long before the sun, and sit in their living rooms while the great pageantry was unfolded across the ocean.

Awake All Night.

There were other thousands who did not sleep at all.

As had been forecast by experts, transatlantic reception approached ideal conditions. Everything that transpired in Westminster Abbey was clearly audible. So were the descriptions of the procession that followed.

To Washington's radio stations came many telephone calls, and there were men and women who had no radios of their own who came down to the studios to listen in.

Throughout the United States something like 270 stations were hook up on three networks, NBC, CBS and MBS, and the Canadian Broadcasting system got under way about 4 a. m.

Widest of Networks.

The hookup was the most extensive in history, and the networks received their signals by short wave after they had been originated by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The program was the longest of the kind on record. It lasted approximately six hours, with little or no interruption.

One station here reported a little old lady, who owned no radio, came an hour ahead of time and waited patiently for things to begin in the great city "across the pond."

"I never, never could forgive myself," she said sleepily, "if I missed hearing a king and queen crowned way across the water."

Women Raise $3,000 In Jewish Fund Drive

Approximately $3,000 was raised by women workers in the United Jewish Appeal in their canvass since last Monday, it was reported yesterday at a campaign luncheon at the Jewish Community Center. The total on hand in the $80,000 drive will not be known until Friday when all the teams are scheduled to report at another drive luncheon.

Morris Cafritz, co-chairman of the campaign for relief of European Jews and Palestine rehabilitation, presided at the luncheon yesterday. Mrs. Leopold V. Freudberg, co-chairman of the women's division, read reports from team captains. William Illch, a leader of the men's division, complimented the women's teams on their showing.

Loening Is Appointed Maritime Air Adviser

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy announced Tuesday appointment of Grover Loening, of New York, as aeronautical adviser to the Maritime Commission.

Kennedy said Loening would direct the commission's studies of the possible use of aircraft in foreign and domestic commerce in conjunction with the American merchant marine.

Since these studies concern the feasibility of the use of dirigibles, Kennedy said Loening will sit as an observer at the Department of Commerce investigation at Lakehurst, N. J., of the Hindenburg disaster.

Walpole Discovers Greater Confidence and Air of Dignity In King George as Coronation Ceremonies Draw to Close Writer Is Touched by Sovereign's Pledge of Service.

HUGH WALPOLE.

British Novelist Finds Young Monarch a Lonely Figure as Solemn Rites Started; Felt Sorry for Ruler in Stark Coldness of Abbey.

so solitary, so indifferent, brought that constant puzzle of entity of time back to me—"I'm timeless," that chair said. "You may say that what happened to me in the past is not important beside what is happening in your tortured present. But past and present are the same and what will occur today is valuable. Wait and watch."

The abbey was then, as the fog coiled like moving smoke beyond the high windows opposite me, a background waiting for the drama. It was—in spite of its old gray gravity, its beautiful hanging tapestries, its rosedusk windows—dead. Only the chair was alive.

Then the background began to fill, exactly as a monk must slowly have filled a fifteenth century missal, blocking in little fragments of color—rose, jade, carnation, Chinese white against thick gray walls, and the dead tombs of the crusaders.

Faces Appear Below.

"These are members of Parliament," some one told me, for now faces were just below me, faces I knew. Miss Megan Lloyd George, Lord Balniel, Mr. Tom Williams—in present-day life thus challenging the chair that was lonely as ever and as important as it was before the House of Commons challenged its vitality.

I was aware in fact, as human hustle with ostrich feathers and military orders with lithe swords began to bustle here and there about me, that my business and the business of all of us was really only with this dedication, the anointing and crowning of a man. We had come for nothing else. The sun beyond the gray windows was breaking through for nothing else. Had this crowning any meaning at all for the men and women of our times? There was really no other question.

The pageantry that grew now with every minute made this question only the more insurgent. The old monk now had filled in his missal. Members of the House of Commons, peers, peeresses (inevitable hint of Iolanthe), judges, diplomatic corps glittering with broken, unexpected color, the bishops so fortunate in having the very front seats, all were there.

Chair Still Empty.

The chair is as empty, isolated, important, indifferent as it was at the beginning. "You're all here now," it says. "You have been dressing up for weeks. You've spent a great deal of money. Why? Do you believe that a significant and spiritual contract is being made this morning before the whole listening world? If you do not believe in this oath and this contract you had better go away."

But of course no one dreamt of going away. We'd been up all night dressing our hair. We'd taken much trouble and perhaps we believed we'd been summoned not only to witness a ceremony but give our own testimony.

And little processions were now continually arriving. Out of the gray walls they seemed to me to come, for I could not see the nave. The figures stood slightly posturing, definitely marked against banks of color, figures under the great glowing window and high misty golden galleries. Members of the royal family, representatives of foreign powers, the little princesses, then the most lovely, most royal of all, the Queen Mother, who turns, as it seems to me, and looks into Princess Elizabeth's eyes before she mounts the steps to her box and says to her, "I've given my life to this. This is service, and it is not easy. One day you'll be asked to do as I've done. It is harsh, unrelenting, only at the last rewarding. Do you, young as you are, realize?"

Queen Moves to Place.

Then a pause, a silence once more almost of apprehension. I cannot take my eyes from the chair. Cries of the Westminster boys, broken and sincere as the voices of children ought to be, ring out. Trumpets sound. The Queen, almost like a dream, so still and gentle and yet with lovely dignity, moves toward her place, the four duchesses holding her gorgeous train.

As she passes the chair it seems to me she realizes, as perhaps no one of the many watchers do, its character, its portent.

Then, at last, as with the others, so he out of the very walls of this ancient church steps slowly, a figure as lonely and apart as the chair. The imagination can run riot at times such as these, but I thought that even though the idle know nothing about his especial circumstances, I would understand how well he recognized that this was more, oh much more, than a kind of trade bargain for the nations of the world.

He stood alone, facing that world, as the archbishop cried to its four corners: "Sir, I here present unto you King George, your undoubted King. Wherefore all of you are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?" And the people shout, "God save the King!"

But he knows that his homage and service are more serious than theirs. This is service so onerous, in many ways so ungrateful, that only a selfless man can take them up. He is pledging himself to a spiritual task, and that in a world were spiritual values are often scornfully rated.

His face is stern. He is, it seems to me, at this moment the loneliest man in the world. It is as though he turned to the archbishop for help, guidance and friendliness.

The Queen from her seat watches, and her heart and mind go out to him, but it is not yet her business. The King and the church. It is their part before God.

And so at the altar the King takes the oath. Here, over the whole abbey, the King's voice is clear. High in the triforium we hear every word. He speaks slowly, with chosen pauses, as though he has weighted the awful responsibility of this, "I promise to do so."

Consecrated to God.

And then the circumference of the drama narrows incredibly. The abbey has vanished; the waiting millions beyond its walls, the peers, diplomats and bishops are all blotted out. Within this little space of floor between wall and wall, is the consecration of the King to God Himself.

You do not believe in a God now? You are wiser than that, and you know that these days two and two make scientific four, and that is enough. But for this King it is not enough. He sees that behind this actual reality there is another reality more actual. So he submits himself to God, to the archbishop, God's ensign. The matter now is only between these two. The oath to his people and his country has been taken most solemnly:

"The things which I have here before promised I will perform and keep, so help me God."

But there is more than this. There is a relationship now to be created, so intimate, so sacred that it becomes in its process one of the great challenges to this modern, unhappy world.

Even Stripped of Sword.

For this King is to be no despot, no eager snatcher of enormous power. Under the golden pall held by his faithful lords over him and enveloping him he is stripped of everything.

In a thin garment, so slight as to suggest complete material surrender, he is anointed on hands, breast and head. He is, indeed, after this given the sword, but even that is taken from him and laid on the altar. He is at this moment the one great self-abnegating figure of this present world.

I will honestly confess that I had not foreseen the drama of this intense, almost naked selfless surrender. For how long we seem to have been preparing for the coronation that was to be a manifestation of patriotism, glory and triumph. But it was not so. The drama was not in the flags and trumpets.

Each one of us was thrown back into his own sense of loneliness, bewilderment of consciousness, of great burden. This consciousness was not unhappy. It had in it no defeatism. But it made us one and all swear at that instant a fealty to that idea of service, as I do not doubt we had never sworn before.

Given Scepter and Ring.

"I surrender," the King cries, "everything except service." And this suddenly we acknowledge is the true kingship.

There follows then the glory. Having been stripped of almost everything, he is clothed again. He has put upon him the robe of the cloth of gold. He is given the orb, scepter and ring.

Sitting in King Edward's chair, he seemed, I thought, to have new dignity and confidence, as though the great business of the dedication being over, he steps out into a new world.

The archbishop takes the crown from the altar and lays it there again. The Dean of Westminster receives and delivers it again to the archbishop.

The archbishop stands with it in his hands and turns it a little here and there that he may place it rightly. In the great flood of light from above the crown is like a live thing. Every jewel in it is brilliant with life beyond the life of jewels.

Silence Intense.

Then as the archbishop approaches very close to the King once again they seem to be in especial communion. The silence is so intense that continents, deserts and the undefeated peaks of Everest are sharing it. The King very slightly bends his head. He is crowned, and at once trumpets sound, guns crash from the Tower, bells ring out, and we shout, shout, "God sve the King!"

Only one thing yet remains before the King kneels and takes communion at the altar. He is joined by his Queen. This is in the main man's affair, but a King is not God, to be thanked and to go on to his task alone. The Queen has waited watching and praying for him and understanding how it is with him. Now she plays her part.

The loveliest moment in this great day, the moment of most perfect beauty, was the beautifully ordered, rhythmical advance of four silver duchesses with the golden pall. I was too loftily enskied in the triforium to see the Queen's face in detail, but there was something so young, yet so resolved, in her bearing that the magnificent figure of the Duchess of Northumberland behind her, very regal and grand, did not disturb the Queen's own majesty.

She, too, was anointed with holy oil. She was given the ring, the scepter and ivory rod with the dove. A Queen in very truth, she takes her place beside the King.

Processions Appear Again.

For the great ceremony is public indeed now. The archbishop and peers have taken the oath. The details of this outer world are vivid again as the King and Queen move to the altar for the communion.

A small, crimson-clad choir boy has nearly tumbled over the triforium edge. A member of Parliament just below me surreptitiously is munching chocolate. Far below me I can see a peeress yawning. Two Arabs just opposite me throughout the affair, who had been sitting so still that they might have been symbols of their own ancient desert, begin now excitedly to gesticulate.

A great "amen" rises higher in ascending diminuendo like a lark's song.

Little processions appear again. Trains are all shaken out. Two peers violently collide. The princesses stand waiting before they move down the nave. Margaret Rose turns her small head and gazes up into the triforium as though sorry for those poor, enskied journalists.

The Queen is there, her head high. Even at my distance I can see her eyes proudly shining. With all our hearts relieved with this urgent tension, we shout from the rooftops, "God save the King!"

Borrower Admits Starving Python, Upsets N. Y. Court

New York, May 12 (U.P.).—Magistrate Nicholas M. Pinto, who believes he is in imminent danger of becoming the main course in a boa constrictor's meal, has summoned everybody who has anything to do with Brooklyn's vagabond snake and ordered the mto capture it.

The boa, which responds to the names of Suzy or Lena, has been at liberty in Brooklyn for a week. Into court yesterday came Charles Mulle. It was from his home that Suzy escaped.

Mulle said he borrowed her from Charles Hand, a friend.

"I said to Hand," Mulle testified, "I said leave me take Suzy home to show the kids, and he let me."

"What does Suzy eat?" inquired Magistrate Pinto.

"Small mammals," said Hand.

"Including human beings?"

"Including human beings," Hand said.

"What did you feed Suzy?" the judge asked Mulle.

"Nothing," Mulle replied.

"My, my," said his honor.

Detroit M. E. Bishop Is Facing Operation

Gary, Ind., May 12 (A.P.).—Bishop Edgar Blake, of the Detroit Methodist Episcopal area, will undergo an operation in a hospital here tomorrow.

He has been ill six weeks. Dr. H. M. Baittinger, who will perform the operation, said he had not been able to diagnose the ailment, but asserted the bishop was "dangerously ill." Members of the bishop's family arrived yesterday.

Motorist Injured In Chase Gaining

Howard Shirk, 33, of Relay, Md., one-legged motorist, whose automobile overturned on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near Laurel, Md., early Tuesday while he was being pursued by a Prince Georges County police officer, was improved at Casualty Hospital last night.

Officer Edward Merson said he was returning from the Hyattsville substation when he saw an automobile headed south at Laurel, without lights. After he had stopped the man, later identified as Shirk, Merson said he stepped out of the police car and approached the motorist. The man immediately turned his car around and drove north on the boulevard at high speed, the officer said.

After a chase lasting a mile and a half, Merson said the fleeing auto struck a curbing and turned over twice. Shirk was taken to Casualty Hospital, where his condition was first thought to be serious.

Plot of Assassins For London's Fete Believed Smashed

Paris, May 12 (A.P.).—Police believed a plot against dignitaries attending the London coronation may have been broken up today with the arrest of a member of the notorious Ustachi band of assassins.

Agents of the French surete nationale disclossed the arrest over the week-end of Stephan Marusic, whom they described as one of the leaders of the Balkan ring to which the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia in 1934 was attributed.

He was seized on a false passport charge, and a search of his hotel room revealed "interesting documents," the agents said.

A heavy guard of Yugoslavian detectives waited here tonight to escort Prince Paul of Yugoslavia home when he returns to Paris from the London ceremonies.

Queen Mother, Now Nearly 70, Sees Crowning

'Bulwark' of Vast Empire Wears $2,000,000 Worth of Gems.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 12.—Queen Mother Mary, gray-haired but still regal at nearly 70, saw her second son crowned today while mists of memory dimmed her eyes.

Twenty-six years ago the crown of England's Queen was placed upon her head in the same Westminster Abbey. On January 28, 1936, she followed a draped coffin from Westminster Hall when the body of her husband, George V, made its last earthly journey.

Today she was a spectator. In her place, receiving the Queen's crown, was Queen Elizabeth. The first lady of the royal family, aside from the new sovereign, was little Princess Elizabeth, 11 years old.

Dignified Appearance.

But Mary bore herself with the dignity for which the British Empire knows her.

She stepped firmly down the abbey aisle to her place in the royal box. From her head and throat blazed the great masses of jewels she loves. The gems she wore were estimated to be worth more than $2,000,000.

About her neck were five ropes of diamonds. In her hair was a great diamond-studded diadem, part of the crown she wore at her coronation in 1911. Her gown was covered with sparkling jewels.

Ermine on Gown.

The gown was of supple cloth of gold with a 5-yard purple velvet robe fringed with ermine and embroidered in gold. A design of roses and fuchsias was embroidered on the gown in silver and diamante.

It was the first time an English Queen Mother had attended her son's coronation.

Those who saw the Queen Mother—she will be 70 two weeks from today—were struck with the impression she still is a bulwark of Britain's monarchy.

Edward Postpones Wedding for King

as his spokesman, announced he no longer could give to the press details of the duke's movements.

"The duke feels that until some announcement can be made regarding his marriage," Rogers said, "it will be better not to give piecemeal details."

The engagement announcement, which friends believed the duke authorized for publication yesterday, brought congratulatory cables from the United States.

After the coronation broadcast the duke played golf with his American friends, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers. He played poorly, missing a number of putts on the spongy ground.

He may have suffered from the strain of a coronation that might have been his.

The future bride stayed home, supervising kitchen preparations for a simple supper after King George's address.

There were no flags on the chateau, although many British and French emblems flew from houses in the vicinity. Rogers, host of Mrs. Warfield when she was at Cannes, said servants had been unable to buy a British flag in nearby Tours.

The friend who reported the wedding postponement said:

"A number of members of the royal family believe the marriage should be public," he declared. "The government insists it should be a private affair."

The new monarch and his mother, he said, argued that Edward was entitled to all the splendor of a public ceremony in view of his service as King and Prince of Wales.

The duke and his bride-to-be were preparing an invitation list for the ceremony.

Aunt Sails for France.

New York, May 12 (AP).—Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, whose niece, Wallis Warfield, is soon to become the Duchess of Windsor, sailed today on the United States liner President Roosevelt for Havre, France.

Presumably, Mrs. Merryman, who is the prospective bride's aunt Bessie, is on her way to the wedding. On that point, however, and on all others, she declined to comment.

Mrs. Merryman has frequently acted as chaperone for her niece in London and in France. She returned to the United States from Europe last February. The President Roosevelt is due at Havre Thursday of next week.

George Is Crowned With Pomp In Historic Abbey Ceremony

000 waited along the procession road back to Buckingham.

More than 7,000 fainted among those who gathered through the night to cheer. It was the greatest crush London has known. Two died. A girl fell down an elevator shaft and a youth was killed fighting in the crowd.

Rain fell as the monarchs left the abbey in early afternoon, but the crowd stuck it out and there were cheers and shouts at every turn of the long route homeward, where George in the evening broadcast to the empire his thanks to his half billion subjects.

"The Queen and I will always keep in our hearts the inspiration of this day," he said. "May we ever be worthy of the good will which I am proud to think surrounds us at the outset of my reign.

"I thank you from my heart and may God bless you all."

Seventy-seven hundred bejeweled and rich-robed peers and peeresses, lords and members of Parliament, visiting royalty, envoys of Britain's dominions and of foreign governments, watched the centuries-old ceremony of coronation, the placing of the crown which Edward renounced for love.

The climax came at 12:30 p. m.

The venerable Archbishop of Canterbury stepped before the altar and took into his hands the crown of St. Edward.

He intoned in prayer:

"O God, the crown of the faithful: Bless we beseech Thee and sanctify this Thy servant George our King; and as Thou dost this day set a crown of pure gold upon his head, so enrich his royal heart with Thine abundant grace, and crown him with all princely virtues, through the King eternal, Jesus Christ Our Lord."

Great Shout Arises.

Then reverently he placed the crown upon the King's bowed head.

There was a great shout "God save the King!"

Trumpets sounded. Guns in the Tower of London boomed. The crowds outside took up the cry. Radio and cable carried the word and around the world in Britain's far-flung domain, other cannon roared and other crowds echoed the shout.

A new King was crowned. He had received the sceptre, "ensign of kingly power and justice." In clear and steady voice he had taken the oath to rule justly.

He was proclaimed under the blessing of the church to rule the peoples of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa, of the British possessions and territories and the Indian Empire. He was also priest, titular head of the English Church and pledged to defense of the faith.

By his side was 37-year-old Elizabeth, born a commoner but with her own crown of gold and pledged with him over Britain's half-billion subjects.

Thus, on the day and at the hour set for Edward of England, George accepted his brother's discarded mantle of kingship.

The little princesses' great moment came when they put little coronets on their head at the same time the archbishop crowned their mother, Queen Elizabeth. Princess Margaret twirled her coronet to be sure to get the front part on her forehead, put it on quickly, and then looked doubtfully at her older sister and at her aunt, the Princess Royal, Countess of Harewood.

Still not sure that it was just right, she pushed the coronet to one side, then sat back on her hands to watch.

There were also the Queen's parents, the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, first to enter the royal box.

And there was the Duke of Gloucester, who gave "the brother's kiss" in dramatic homage to the King—as brother and third in line of succession. He performed the duty that would have fallen to George had Edward remained as King.

The great day of pomp and ritual, the thirty-sixth coronation of a British sovereign within the abbey walls since William the Conqueror came in 1066, began at early dawn. Thousands had waited the night through for the first procession.

Enter Abbey at 6 A. M.

The nobility in velvet and ermine and carrying their coronets began their entrance to the abbey at 6 a. m. beneath cloudy skies. The great gilded gates of Buckingham Palace opened and promptly at 8:40 a. m. the procession moved toward the abbey—a chain of royal limousines in one of which rode American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham and special Envoys James W. Gerard, Gen. John J. Pershing and Admiral Hugh Rodman.

There were Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in open state carriage; empire and dominion heads; and the royal family escorted by life guards on black chargers, in crimson tunics and white buckskin breeches, black topboots and white plumes atop silver helmets.

There were the little Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose in the glass coach with their aunt, the Princess Royal, and her elder son, the 14-year-old Viscount Lascelles.

Then came the Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent, the Queen Mother and finally at 10:30 a. m., the King and Queen.

The great crowds cheered. Church bells pealed.

At the abbey annex, footmen lowered the steps of the royal gold coach and the youthful Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal, of England, welcomed their majesties.

They were conducted into the abbey, calm and serious, to be met by the venerable archbishop.

First came the recognition, the cry "God Save the King" as the archbishop turned to the four directions; then the administering of the oath; the anointing with holy oil; presentation of the spurs and sword, placing of the crown, conduct to the throne and presentation of the Holy Bible.

Then a similar but briefer ceremony for the Queen.

From his perch in the last of a long row of choir stalls, the American Envoy Gerard leaned far forward to follow the ceremonial. He was flanked by Russian Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff and the Italian Ambassador, Count Dino Grandi—who represented his country in the absence of a member of the Italian royal family.

Special Service For Coronation Held in Capital

Dr. Freeman Offers Prayers for New Rulers at Cathedral.

In the presence of the British Ambassador and his staff and ministers of the English dominions, a service celebrating the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth was held in the great choir of Washington Cathedral yesterday morning. Richard Southgate, chief of the division of protocol in the State Department, represented the Secretary of State.

The service, conducted by the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, was an adaption of the form recommended by the Archbishop of Canterbury for use in churches throughout the British Empire. Bishop Freeman was assisted by the very Rev. Noble C. Powell, Dean of the Cathedral. Music was furnished by the Cathedral Choir, under Robert G. Barrow.

"Pomp and Circumstance," by the late Sir Edward Elgar, was played on the organ as a prelude to the ceremonies. The Dean of the Cathedral read lessons from the Book of Joshua, following which the bishop recited a prayer of thanksgiving, saying:

"Let us now offer our thanksgiving to Almighty God for raising up his servant, King George, to be the ruler to the British Empire."

The bishop then prayed for "blessings upon thy servant, Elizabeth, consecrated in Thy name this day to be Queen."

Then followed an anthem, "I vow to thee, my country, all earthly things above," with words by the late Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, formerly British Ambassador to Washington, set to music by Sir Walford Davies. Chaplain Wolven led the congregation in reciting the Apostles' Creed and then offered special prayers for the guidance of Great Britain's new rulers.

A stanza of the British national anthem was played on the organ after the congregation rose from prayer. The recessional hymn was "Praise, My Soul, the King of Heaven." A special program was printed for the occasion and distributed to those in the church.

Thomason Takes Post As Clarksburg Official

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 12.—The new city administration functioned today under the leadership of R. M. Thomason, insurance agent, as city manager.

Other new city officials include William P. Coughlin, city clerk, who served in that capacity from 1933 to 1935; Robert Ziegler, police judge; State Senator Byron B. Randolph, city attorney, and Thomas S. Lang, city engineer, who, with the exception of the last two years, served in that position more than a dozen years.

Shaw Boycotts King Coronation As 'Amateurish'

London, May 12 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw boycotted the coronation of his sovereign, King George VI, today, announcing "nature has made me proof against the illusions and idolatries which such ceremonies are intended to create."

"As I am by profession a creator of theatrical illusions," the famed dramatist said in a statement to the Communist organ, the Daily Worker, "these amateur pageants only bore me."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Ruler Pledges Loyal Support To His Empire

King George's Address Heard by Subjects Around World.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 12.—King George VI, newly crowned, tonight thanked his empire around the world from Buckingham Palace on a vast radio network. His reply to broadcast greetings from the fourth of the world he rules was:

It is with a very full heart I speak to you tonight Never before has a newly crowned King been able to talk to all his peoples in their own homes on the day of his coronation. Never has the ceremony itself had so wide a significance for the dominions are now free and the people partners with the ancient kingdom. I felt this morning that the whole empire was in very truth gathered within the walls of Westminster Abbey. I rejoice that I can now speak to you all wherever you may be, greeting old friends in distant lands and as I hope new friends in those parts where it has not yet been my good fortune to go.

"Health and Happiness."

In this personal way the Queen and I wish health and happiness to you all and we do not forget at this time of celebration those who are living under the shadow of sickness. Their example of courage and good citizenship is always before us. And to them I would send a special message of sympathy and good cheer. I cannot find words with which to thank you for your love and loyalty to the Queen and myself.

Your good will in the streets today, your countless messages from overseas and from every quarter of these islands has filled our hearts to overflowing. I will only say this, that if in the coming years I can show my gratitude in service to you that is the way above all others that I should choose.

Symbol of Unity.

To many millions the crown is a symbol of unity by the grace of God and by the will of the free peoples of the British Commonwealth. I have assumed that crown. In me, as your King, is vested for a time the duty of maintaining its honor and integrity. This is indeed a grave and constant responsibility but it gave me confidence to see your representatives along the abbey and to know that you, too, were enabled to join in that infinitely beautiful ceremonial. Its outward forms come down from distant times, but its inner meaning and message are always new. For the highest of distinctions is the service for others and to the ministry of Kingship I have with your sharing dedicated myself with the Queen at my side in words of the deepest solemnity.

We will, God helping us, faithfully discharge our trust. Those of you who are children now will, I hope, retain the memories of the day of carefree happiness such as I still have of the day of my grandfather's coronation.

In the years yet to come some of you will travel from one part of the commonwealth to another, and moving thus within the family circle will meet many whose thoughts are colored by the same memories, whose hearts unite in devotion to our common heritage.

You will learn, I hope, how much our free association means to us. How much our friendship with each other and all the other nations on the earth can help the cause of peace and progress. The Queen and I will always keep in our hearts the inspiration of this day.

May we ever be worthy of the good will which I am proud to think surrounds us at the outset of my reign. I thank you from my heart, and may God bless you all.

The coronation around the world:

Dublin—The Irish Free State took almost no notice of a coronation for the first time in 800 years.

Sydney—Even desert aborigines feasted as Australia celebrated the coronation.

Colon—British Steamship offices and vessels at Cristobal, Canal Zone, were decked with flags.

Tokyo—Emperor Hirohito ordered his representative at the coronation, Prince Chichibu, to confer Japanese honors on George and Elizabeth.

Shanghai—British military forces in China and Hongkong celebrated elaborately; Italian men-o-war recently occupying places in "navy row" off the Shanghai waterfront moved down the Woosung River; many believed it was to avoid joining British, American and other fighting ships in displaying colors in honor of the coronation.

Chicago Nun Killed In 4-Floor Plunge

Chicago, May 12 (AP).—Sister Adrian, a member of the Order of St. Joseph for 24 years, plunged four floors to her death today from convent quarters in the Lourdes High School Building. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, after taking testimony from Sister Adelgunde, school principal.

Sister Adrian had undergone an abdominal operation in February and had been advised, Sister Adelgunde said, to be in the fresh air as much as possible. The principal testified she believed Sister Adrian had become dizzy and had fallen after opening a window.

Italian Papers Devote 1 Line To Coronation

Press, However, Reports Riot Against King for Ireland.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 12.—Official Italy, angered by English press taunts over Italian defeats in the Spanish civil war, virtually ignored the coronation of King George VI today.

The only report of the London pageant provided for the controlled press was a one-line dispatch issued by the official news agency, Stefani.

"The coronatoin of King George of England took place this morning," was all it said.

There was an account, however, of disorders in Dublin. The newspapers related that police dispersed a crowd demonstrating against the "coronation of an English King for Ireland."

Radio stations had only the same reports as the newspapers.

Members of Rome's British colony, who tried to listen to London broadcasts of the coronation, complained reception was poor.

Local Britons attended a coronation service at the English church in Rome. Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome; Francis Osborne, British Ambassador to the Holy See; Albert Heymans, South African Minister to Rome, and members of their staffs were present.

An authoritative source said tonight Elizabeth MacKenzie, correspondent for the London News-Chronicle, would be expelled from Italy for sending "anti-Italian dispatches."

Fair Planners Draw Criticism For Art Slight

Kroll Attacks Policies of Exposition in Address at Convention.

Failure of planners of the 1939 World's Fair in New York to provide for an exhibition of contemporary fine arts is an "outrageous slight to American artists," one of their number charged here yesterday.

Leon Kroll, whose oil paintings have won many important prizes and who is now doing a group of murals in the Justice Department Building, lodged the criticism in an address before the American Federation of Arts.

Attacking the policies of the corporation, he told the convention at the Wardman Park Hotel:

"America will be judged by this fair—unjustly judged because the fair, if present plans go through, will not be representative of the best we have to show the world. The contrast, in this respect, between the plans of our fair and the exposition about to open in Paris is something we all should be heartily ashamed of."

WPA Benefit Stressed.

Hallie Flanagan, national director of the Federal Theater project, said lavish sets and gorgeous girls might have spelled the doom of the American theater if WPA had not intervened. Such social material as "The Living Newspaper" and "Triple-A Plowed Under," along with development of new techniques, is giving the theater "a new function as an airing place for present problems and making it once more an art of the people," she declared.

Motion pictures are living down their old reputation for cheapness and superficiality, the delegates were told by Miss Evelyn Gerstein, critic and lecturer. Such products as "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" or "The Informer" deserve to be classified in the realm of art, she contended.

American Art Topic.

Pan-American art was the general subject of the afternoon session yesterday, with Ricardo J. Alfaro, former president of Panama, presiding. Speakers included Roland J. McKinney, director of the Baltimore Museum of Art; Hector Diaz Leguizamon, secretary, Argentine Embassy; Concha Romero James, Pan-American Union, and Alma Reed, Delphic Studios.

Highlights of the closing day's program include a symposium on Federal art projects this morning, a folk music concert this afternoon, conducted by John Powell, and a banquet to be addressed by Joseph Hudnut, of Harvard, and Frank Crowninshield, editor, critic and collector.

Road Crashes Dwarf Other U. S. Disasters

Auto Deaths Greater Than Loss From Cyclones, Bullets, Floods.

Death toll by bullets, battlefields, cyclones and floods was found yesterday to be lower than the loss caused by automobiles and highways.

"Compared to the annual death toll of 100,000 from accident, negligence and carelessness produce a loss of life infinitely more startling than cyclones and floods. Accidents are the biggest menace and the biggest disaster America has in its midst."

Speaking before Feiser, Dr. A. D. Lazenby, chairman of life saving and first aid for the Baltimore, Md., Chapter, said:

"A disaster is upon us, surpassing in its threat to our lives and safety any of the great disasters in which the Red Cross has functioned so spectacularly and so efficiently. The time has come for us to mobilize again to bring to public consciousness, the peril of the highway, the peril of the home and the peril of the shop."

Richard W. Thrush, assistant director, Red Cross first aid and life saving service, said:

"Somehow, in this country we have come to associate cautiqn with cowardice. We are not far removed from our pioneer ancestors, and perhaps we have a twisted tradition akin to foolhardiness that has come down to us through the years. To be cautious may make us appear afraid."

In addition to the mobile first aid units, said Thrush, March 1 Red Cross records revealed 1,324,427 certificates issued to persons who had completed courses "insuring that there should be a trained first-aider within reach of any scene of accident.

Thrush said 1,586 highway first aid stations have been established.

Funeral Today For L.W.Reilly, CatholicAuthor

Retired Editor of Several Religious Publications Dead at 83.

Funeral services for Louis W. Reilly, 83, prominent writer for Catholic publications and a retired Government employe, who died Tuesday at his home, 6006 Broad Branch road, will be held this morning at 9 o'clock in the Shrine of the Most Blessed Sacrament Church. Burial will be in New Cathedral Cemetery, Baltimore.

Mr. Reilly had been ill about seven months. He was retired in 1923 after serving many years as examiner and investigator in the swamp land division of the General Land Office. He entered the Government service in 1904.

A native of New York, Mr. Reilly was a graduate of St. Francis Xavier's College there and received his master's degree from Notre Dame University.

He was well known as a contributor to Catholic publications since 1876, having served as editor of the Catholic Columbian for five years and as associate editor of the Baltimore Catholic Review. He also wrote for the Catholic Telegraph, the Catholic Union and Times, the Catholic American and other papers.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Rose Mapes Reilly, and the following children, Mrs. William H. Ontrich, Mrs. Matthew G. Lepley and Mrs. Charles E. Davis, all of Washington, and Mrs. L. J. Kessel, of Chicago; Arthur Reilly, of Portland, Me., and Raymond J. Reilly, of Nutley, N. J.

Huff May Decline Post As D. C. Prisons Head

Doubt that Ray L. Huff, recently proffered the superintency of District penal institutions, would accept the job was created yesterday when it was learned he has not resigned from the Federal Parole Board.

Questioned late yesterday, Huff said he was "considering the situation."

8 Boys May Face Ball Game Charge

Three boys, ranging from 14 to 16, may face Juvenile Court prosecutions following a ball game yesterday in which a teacher was injured.

The teacher, Miss Eleanor Dodd, 22, dental hygienist at the Kingsman School, Fourteenth and E streets northeast, was cut by flying glass when a window was broken by a ball. She was treated for lacerations.

Police were summoned by Mrs. Florence H. Rogers, supervising principal of the schools in that area. Mrs. Rogers told police she intended to prosecute the youths. "These boys will not obey the law," she said. "They stay out of school and play on our playground when they are much older than our students. They endanger the smaller children."

Miss Dodd said she did not intend to press any charges against the boys and dismissed the incident as an accident.

Lieut. Walz Buried.

Funeral services for Lieut. Paul C. R. Walz, U. S. Army, who died April 28 at San Juan, Puerto Rico, were held yesterday at Fort Myer, with burial in Arlington Cemetery. He was graduated from West Point in 1931.

U. S. Bases Case Against du Pont On Card Index

Contends Stocks Traded Were Ear-Marked for Return.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 12.—A tiny double-cross mark in red ink found on certain card index records in Pierre S. du Pont's tin-box ledger of securities owned in 1929 became a key point today in the income tax case against du Pont and John J. Raskob.

Placing the 1929 and the 1930 ledgers of the Wilmington, Del., industrialist into evidence, Government counsel contended the cross marks—resembling the cross used in the game of "tick-tack-toe"—were du Pont's method of "ear-marking" the stocks he purchased from Raskob in the sales back-and-forth following the 1929 panic, following which the millionaires established deductible losses on their 1929 income tax returns.

Says Marks Made in '35.

Ralph T. Ellis, office assistant for du Pont in Wilmington, testified he was "positive" the markings were not placed on the card index records at the time the securities were purchased from Raskob. He said he believed the marks were not placed on the cards until 1935, when the Government instituted its action to collect $617,316 from du Pont and $1,026,340 from Raskob in alleged deficiency in their 1929 tax.

The Government contends the sales back and forth were fictitious and were accompanied by a repurchasing understandings, and that the stocks sold back and forth were earmarked so each would get his original blocks of securities back.

In support of this contention, Mason B. Leming, chief of the Government's staff of attorneys in the case, introduced the ledgers into evidence during his examination of Ellis, who had been on the witness stand almost four full days.

Country Store Ledger.

The ledgers of Raskob, entered into evidence previously, were the usual paperbound volumes, well worn and resembling those in any country store, but the du Pont ledger was a series of cards, indexed in a shiny green tin box. It contained the records of many millions of dollars in securities.

Seven cards in the 1929 section of the ledger were marked with the red-inked "tick-tack-toe" sign, and beneath this was a certificate notation reading "Ctf. X....," on which was recorded the number of the stock certificates, it was brought out.

Army 'Flying Fortress' Over Capital Tomorrow

The Army's four "flying fortress" bombers will circle over Washington tomorrow morning about 6:45, the Associated Press reported. The flight, originally scheduled for this morning, was postponed because of unfavorable weather conditions further North.

The four planes, the Army's newest and largest, will leave Langley Field, Va., at 6 a. m. on an 1,800-mile nonstop flight that will take them over 20 principal cities. The flight will go as far North as Portland, Me., returning by way of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio.

Allen Opposed to D. C. Men's Minimum Wage

Broadening of the District's minimum wage law to include men was opposed yesterday by Commissioner George E. Allen. His stand was taken, he said, following advices that organized labor, generally, does not favor minimum wages for men.

Meanwhile, the Commissioners appointed a committee to investigate questions which may arise in connection with the wage law's administration. Members of the committee are: Judge Fay Bentley of the Juvenile Court, chairman; Elwood Street, director of the Board of Public Welfare, and Dr. George Ruhland, health officer.

Last Rites Today For Mahlon Marsh

Funeral services for Mahlon Marsh, 91, retired clerk of the Pension Office, who died Monday after a short illness at his home, 628 E street northeast, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Hysong's undertaking establishment, followed by burial in Milford, Ohio.

A native of Ohio, Marsh came to Washington 47 years ago. He was a member of Waugh M. E. Church.

Surviving him are two sons, Earl G. and Allen J. Marsh, both of Washington, and two grandchildren.

Ordnance Unit Held to Oppose Arms' Control

Nationalization Would Not Work, Gen. Tschappat Tells Banqueters.

The Army's Ordnance Department is opposed to nationalization of the munitions industry, Maj. Gen. W. H. Tschappat, chief of ordnance, told distinguished guests at the eighteenth annual dinner of the Army Ordnance Association at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

The Ordnance Department, according to its chief, does not favor nationalization because "such a policy would not work in war time." Gen. Tschappat went on to say that such nationalization in peace time would be poor preparation for an emergency.

Discussing general neutrality provisions, Gen. Tschappat stated: "From an Ordnance Department point, the manufacture and sale of arms and equipment abroad has a decided advantage in that our manufacturers learn from actual experience how to produce, if not our own ordnance designs, then items comparable to them. * * * The recently adopted neutrality law does not prohibit sales to countries at peace by properly licensed manufacturers."

Gen. Tschappat was one of the speakers at the banquet at which Maj. Gen. J. G. Harbord, chairman of the board of directors of the Radio Corporation of America, deputy chief of staff during the World War, was presented with the association's Ordnance Medal of Merit. He was cited by Col. Frederick H. Payne, former Assistant Secretary of War, and the presentation was made by Brig. Gen. Benedict Crowell, president of the association. Unable to attend, Gen. Harbord's speech of thanks was read in New York, and delivered by radio.

Principal speaker, Hilaire Belloc, English author and historian, told the audience of Congressmen and Army leaders that a rapid-promotion system, which would push young officers toward the top, was sorely needed by all the powers of the world.

"Talking on "Yesterday's Wars Are Not Tomorrow's," Belloc pointed out that the "occasion, field and technique of war" will determine the quality of the next major conflict.

In his speech of acceptance of the Ordnance Medal of Merit, Gen. Harbord discussed the role of radio in any future war. "Victory," he stated, "no longer results from getting there first with the most men. There must be equal speed with huge quantities of munitions, which include everything that an army in the field can use—ranging from tanks and locomotives to the tiniest radio tube."

Roper Predicts Plan to Permit Helium Export

Sentiment Gains in House Against Loosening of Restrictions.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Roper expressed the belief yesterday a "well-guarded plan" will be worked out to make helium gas available to other nations for commercial aircraft uses.

(The United States, which produces most of the world's supply, now restricts exports of the gas.)

"As distressing as the Hindenburg disaster was," Roper said, "we must not be discouraged, or prejudiced, but continue study of the field. We must recognize as significant the record made by lighter-than-air craft in carrying thousands of passengers in repeated trips without accident across the seas."

In the House of Representatives sentiment developed today among some members against relaxation of restrictions on helium exports.

The head of Secretary Roper's business-aviation committee said the American Zeppelin Transport Corporation was ready to institute transoceanic passenger service within two years, provided certain Government concessions were made.

Col. Robert G. Elbert, chairman of the aviation committee of Roper's business advisory council, said the Zeppelin corporation wanted subsidies like those granted ships, and helium gas at reasonable rates.

Lakehurst, N. J., May 12 (AP).—Word from Secretary Roper in Washington that a well guarded plan probably would be worked out to make helium from America's virtual monopoly available for world commercial needs was received enthusiastically today at the naval air station, where officials are investigating the destruction of the hydrogen-filled Hindenburg.

"The exportation of helium," said Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, naval station commandant, and one of America's leading lighter than air authorities, "would probably mean the production of much greater quantities than heretofore," and should result in a consequent reduction in price, with resulting benefit to all concerned."

Wanted: A Mayor For Warrenton

Warrenton, Va., May 12 (AP).—Warrenton, which will have an election of town officials June 8, is about ready to hang out a sign, "Candidate for mayor wanted."

Thomas E. Frank, postmaster and former owner and publisher of the Fauquier Democrat, who has served as mayor for several terms, has not filed for re-election, and has stated that if elected he would not serve. His name was written in on the ballot at the last election and he was kept in office.

Battery Manufacturers' Conclave Opens Today

Technical, merchandising and management problems of the battery industry will be discussed by 100 delegates to the spring convention of the National Battery Manufacturers Association, which convenes at 10:15 a. m. today at the Shoreham Hotel. The opening day session will be climaxed with the annual banquet at 7:30 p. m. in the west ballroom of the hotel.

Charles J. Dempwolf, chairman of the association's technical committee, will preside at this afternoon's session. Speakers will be Dr. George W. Vinal, of the Bureau of Standards; L. E. Lighton nad H. C. Riggs, of the Exide Battery Co.; V. L. Smithers and H. R. Harner and J. E. Hatfield, of the Eagle-Picher Lead Co.

Caton Shooting Case Suspects Are Indicted

Trio, Accused of Firing on Detective in Holdup, Face 4 Charges.

Three youths, arrested as suspects in a shooting affray last month with Detective Sergt. John Caton, yesterday were indicted by the grand jury on charges of robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon, assault with intent to kill and housebreaking and larceny. They were William D. Knight, 17; his brother, Louis Knight, 18, and Ferguson A. Thiebolt, 19. All were arrested as a result of an alleged attempt to rob the ice cream parlor at 806 Upshur street northwest.

The store, according to police, had been victimized by bandits on several occasions, and when Detective Caton passed by on April 6, he noticed there was something unusual going on in the store. He attempted to halt the alleged robbery, and when one of the trio pulled a gun, a pistol battle followed. Both the Knight boys were shot, and a third bullet from Caton's service weapon went through one of the sleeves of the coat of Thiebolt. Caton was wounded seriously in the affair and was confined to the hospital for weeks. While there he was promoted.

In another series of indictments, the grand jury named Eugene C. Young, 17-year-old colored youth, as the perpetrator of more than a dozen housebreaking and larceny offenses.

Robert L. Grayson, joy-riding and grand larceny; Russell T. Anderson and Charles P. Thomas, assault with intent to commit robbery; John Smith, Thomas M. Crane and Alfred Gagnon, robbery; William Wallace Smith, William Joseph Matera, Victor B. Wheatley and Henry Carter, gaming charges; James Manzan, false pretenses; James R. M. Butler, forgery and uttering; Robert Dailey, assault with dangerous weapon; Jesse Mower and Samuel Hicks, assault with intent to commit rape.

William D. Knight, Ferguson A. Thiebolt and Louis F. Knight, assault with dangerous weapon and assault with intent to kill; Nelson Beaton and Edwin Allen, violation of the national motor vehicle theft act, and Benjamin F. Jones, first-degree murder.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were: Sidney Moulthrop, false pretenses; Oliver Dade, grand larceny, and Max Pollicove, housebreaking.

Mary D. Boarman and William F. Ryan Announce Plans for Wedding; Girl's Father Leaves Her Estate of $100,000.

Miraculously saved from death in the tragic triple-slaying and suicide on Queens Chapel road last January, Mary D. Boarman and William F. Ryan will be wed June 1 in St. Anthony's Church, Brookland, it was learned yesterday.

Happy and apparently fully recovered from the shock of the tragedy which left her the sole survivor in her family, Miss Boarman told how she and "Bill" met at a picnic seven years ago.

Miss Boarman is a graduate of St. Patrick's High School, Washington, and of Strayer's Business College. She resigned recently as a stenographer for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. After the marriage she is going to keep house. They will live for the time in the Boarman homestead near the District line.

Ryan, a graduate of Tech High School, is employed as a bookbinder with his father's firm in Washington. He lives at 2612 Twenty-eighth street northeast.

On January 12 last, Miss Boarman and Ryan were attacked by her father, Corbin E. Boarman, as they drove up to her home. A pistol bullet fired by the father passed through his daughter's right arm and grazed Ryan's head.

The mother, Mrs. Anna F. Boarman; an older sister, Margaret, and a brother, William, were killed in the tragedy. The elder Boarman hurled himself beneath a freight train near the Catholic University station.

Neighbors of the Boarmans were deeply shocked at the tragedy. The elder Boarman, a retired employe of the C. & P. Telephone Co., had been highly regarded by those who knew him. It was believed he was suddenly stricken with a mental disorder.

His will, drawn up six days before the tragic event, revealed an estate of $100,000, virtually all of which is inherited by Miss Boarman.

Lewis Asserts 'Surrender' Has Price of Peace

Tells Garment Workers C. I. O. Divorce From A. F. L. Solution.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 12.—John L. Lewis demanded complete surrender from the American Federation of Labor as the price of peace with his own Committee for Industrial Organization today—and declared he did not want peace.

Addressing a meeting of the second largest of his C. I. O. unions—the International Ladies Garment Workers—Lewis said:

"If the federation wants peace, let it issue some statement that it is willing to concede the principles on which the C. I. O. was founded."

But then he referred to the automobile workers he organized and shouted:

"You can take my word for it, they do not want peace with the A. F. L. And neither do I."

Accuses Green of Treason.

He accused William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, of committing "treason" against his own organization; "not merely treason," he said, but "moral turpitude," by seeking to prevent a settlement of the C. I. O. automobile strikes.

Lewis came to address the 520 delegates representing 240,000 garment workers after some leaders of their union, including President David Dubinsky himself, had expressed hopes for peace between the warring labor groups.

Absolves C. I. O.

"Peace in the labor movement?" Lewis asked. "Who created war? The C. I. O. did not withdrawn from the A. F. of L. They dedicated themselves to the proposition of organizing unorganized workers and bringing them into the A. F. of L. If that was a crime or treason, the federation has made the most of it."

He declared the federation "has not changed his policy," though some within it now "suggest lack of unity in labor is a bad thing." "But I know it is not such a bad thing because 1,250,000 new members have affiliated with the C. I. O.," he added.

Lewis then asserted he had "no desire to interrupt this march or to bring any further conflict in the ranks of labor by attempting again to negotiate or iron out the differences with the A. F. of L."

WHEN FOOD LIES LIKE LEAD IN STOMACH

Don't Take Bicarbonate

If excess stomach acidity is causing distress after eating don't take Bicarbonate of Soda. You may aggravate the very trouble you want to correct. Scientists have discovered that Bicarbonate goes too far—it not only neutralizes the EXCESS acid but also destroys the NECESSARY, NORMAL ACID BALANCE of the stomach. Your digestive system is knocked out—no wonder you always feel distressed after eating.

To get safe relief from EXCESS stomach acidity ask at Peoples, or any druggist, for Cal-Trate Tablets—they contain NO bicarbonate of soda and are not a laxative. They merely neutralize the SURPLUS acid, then pass out of the system. Then you feel great.

Sightless Peddler Seized for Selling Peanuts in Park

Felix Destrito, former flyweight champion of the Philippines and now a blind peanut peddler, was in Police Court Tuesday for selling in a restricted area.

Arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt, Destrito told the court he could not make a living for his wife and eight children unless he went through the parks selling peanuts.

He had been arrested Sunday and charged with selling in the park behind the White House. Park Policeman Reynolds Bartmess said he had warned the man previously, and court records show Destrito had been arrested on similar charges.

Destrito appeared in court with his 2-year-old German shepherd dog, which he got two months ago from the Seeing Eye, training school in Morristown, N. J.

After hearing the story, Judge Hitt took the man's personal bond and advised him to see the District Commissioners about getting a license to sell in parks.

Destrito said he fought under the name of Young Aguinaldo against Fidel La Barba, Tony Canzoneri and Jimmy McLarnin. He lost his sight, he said, from continuous beatings.

"MY CHRYSLER GIVES 18 MILES TO THE GALLON DRIVING AROUND NEW YORK"

★ CLEVELAND OWNER GETS 20½ MILES PER GALLON!

"In thousands of miles of business driving, I am convinced that my Chrysler Royal tops them all in power, comfort and low cost of operation. The new Gold Seal engine is truly remarkable . . . it spins this big, roomy car along over all sorts of roads at 20¼ miles per gallon."

F. P. SCHREINER, Cleveland, Ohio

★ WICHITA WOMAN PRAISES CHRYSLER'S EASY HANDLING!

"The beauty of the new Chrysler Royal attracted us at once. Since we have owned it, we have been completely charmed. I have never owned a car which handled so nimbly and parked so easily. The safety-steel body is astonishingly quiet. The riding qualities are superior to any car I have ever ridden in."

MRS. STANLEY SPURRIER, Wichita, Kan.

● "I use my car in business and it gets hard driving, mostly in thick traffic. In spite of that, my Chrysler Royal gives 18 miles per gallon and better, day in and day out. Three other big factors stand out . . . the roominess, the safety-steel body . . . and those wonderful hydraulic brakes."

HARRY E. MILES

More Scientific Relief.

Senator Vandenberg and Representative Bacon note that their substitute relief bill follows the line which the Republican Party has taken on this subject since it became a national issue. That is to say, it endeavors to get relief out of politics by giving it a bi-partisan direction and it would center the administration of relief in the States, restricting Federal direction to allocation of funds and establishment of standards.

Messrs. Vandenberg and Bacon could have made out an even stronger case for their proposal than is found in the text of their statement. It does not merely "reflect the theory of the Republican national platform." More to the point, it closely parallels the methods actually employed by both the National Resources Committee and the United States Employment Service, two of the most successful of New Deal agencies. To emphasize this would give the proposal more standing than is obtainable by linking it with Republican philosophy alone.

In the case of both the National Resources Committee and the Federal Employment Service the function of the central government is largely restricted to the establishment of standards, plus some small financial assistance to enterprises carried on by the localities under those standards. The system works well because it emphasizes local interests, minimizes the defects of bureaucracy, and provided a flexibility of operation impossible in a strongly Federalized agency.

It is also noteworthy that both the National Resources Committee and the Federal Employment Service are closely connected with the relief problem. An essential function of the former is to plan desirable and socially useful projects, completely removed from the "boondoggling" class, which will simultaneously meet unquestionable needs and provide constructive employment in the localities for which they are specifically designed. It is the function of the Federal Employment Service, through the locally-controlled employment exchanges, to direct the unemployed with a minimum of delay and a maximum of efficient personnel management, to such openings as may be available.

The substitute relief plan suggested by Senator Vandenberg and Representative Bacon would be the more effective if, in practical operation, it could be closely co-ordinated with the already decentralized activities of these two agencies. The proponents of the scheme would have done well to emphasize that possibility rather than to urge the taking of "a realistic unemployment census." This the extensive data already in the hands of the United States Employment Service would render largely superfluous, even if there were any indication that such a special census could give dependable results.

A Systematic Approach.

Without waiting for the verdict of the Supreme Court upon the constitutionality of the social security act, the Senate Finance Committee and the Social Security Board have decided to undertake a joint study of the provisions of the law with a view to its eventual amendment. They will be assisted in their co-operative endeavor by an advisory board of 24, representing industry, labor and the general public.

This is a most interesting and novel way of dealing with a difficult legislative problem. If we had had more of this kind of co-operation in the past, there would be fewer problems confronting the Social Security Board at the present time. Of course, any form of social insurance calls for constant adjustments to meet changing conditions. As the Webbs pointed out when Great Britain passed her first national insurance act, "insurance schemes are always in the melting pot."

It was a foregone conclusion that this country would have to learn by experience how to modify its original plan. But, unfortunately, our task has been rendered doubly hard by the haste with which the present law was passed without adequate study of its complicated provisions. The result is that experts within as well as without the Government service knew before the system began to function that a great many changes would be necessary. It has been wisely decided, therefore, to waste no time but to set to work studying various controversial issues such as the provision for an old-age reserve fund, the advisability of extending the benefits of old-age payments to excluded groups and other important questions.

Unofficial criticism of the present measure has generally been of a constructive and friendly nature. With the benefit of this preliminary discussion, the official group ought to be able to progress toward formulation of a plan for revision that will correct the defects of the present system, both in its economic and administrative aspects.

Economy Is Good Politics.

The vote of a House Appropriations subcommittee to cut relief costs to $1,000,000,000 is one among many recent indications of the growing strength of the economy drive in Congress. But it is necessary to note that the movement is not yet progressing as it should under firm guidance in accordance with a carefully prepared retrenchment program. Indeed, there is some danger that indiscriminate reductions in budgetary items may defeat real economy efforts. Nothing is gained by a brave slashing of appropriations, if these cuts are later restored by voting supplementary outlays. For that reason, what Congress does at this time to appropriation bills is less important than what Congress thinks about the spending program.

Votes to cut relief outlays by one-third, for example, may prove to be little more than empty gestures unless Congress insists upon radical changes in the existing system of administering relief through the WPA. Fortunately the chances of such basic reforms are greatly improved by the rise of a questioning spirit that subjects the President's hazy budgetary estimates to close and critical scrutiny. This show of legislative independence, this reassertion of the parliamentary prerogative, is the important factor in the situation.

Those who are disposed to minimize the strength and sincerity of the economy sentiment in Congress are advised to contrast the present mood of restraint with the recklessness prevailing when cash payment of the bonus was voted over the President's opposition. That revolt against executive commands added a large sum to the mounting public debt. The present opposition is due to a desire to curb Administration spending. Such a profound change in objective cannot be lightly dismissed as a mere political gesture without substantive meaning. It is rather a sign that Congress is at last aware of the crucial dangers of prolonged deficit financing.

There is no reason to feel discouraged if the first tentative efforts at economy appear fumbling and not altogether intelligent. They have at least shown that there is opportunity for real leadership in the campaign to cut governmental costs and that efforts at retrenchment are now to be regarded as good politics.

The greatest obstacle heretofore to attainment of a balanced budget has been the complacency with which Congress has viewed the expanding deficit. The growing popular realization that prolonged deficit financing imperils the public credit and may lead to uncontrollable inflation has produced a chastened mood most reassuring to economy advocates. The instinct of political self-preservation is beginning to work for, rather than against, a reduction in public expenditures. We are on our way toward achieving tangible results with the help of that changed emphasis.

Another Change At St. John's.

The resignation of Gen. Amos Woodcock as president of St. John's College, Annapolis, is attributed by him to two fundamental differences of opinion with the college board.

One of these was his desire to make the Annapolis institution co-educational, the reason for this being primarily the financial difficulties which have for some time beset St. John's. His second proposal was that the board should reorganize itself in keeping with the ancient charter which requires that seven of its members live within 16 miles of the college. With this proposal seems to have been associated a desire on the part of Gen. Woodcock to be made president of the board as well as president of the college, thus exercising a greater personal authority over its destiny.

The first of these proposals would have transformed St. John's out of all recognition. The venerable institution at Annapolis—it is the third oldest college in the country, yielding precedence only to Harvard and William and Mary in this respect—would lose far more in tradition than it would gain in tuition fees by opening its doors to young women as day students. It has been said that the proximity of the Naval Academy would make many girls willing to enroll at St. John's, if it were co-educational. This is scarcely to be regarded as an impressive argument from the viewpoint of the college.

Apparently the residence provision in the college charter, requiring a large proportion of the board to live in the neighborhood of Annapolis has long been more honored in the breach than in the observance. Transportation developments of course have completely undermined the original validity of this rule. Of late years St. John's has become more and more representative of Maryland as a whole. It seems logical that the composition of the board should represent this trend.

St. John's College, founded as King William's School in the reign of William and Mary, is inextricably entwined with the history of Maryland. Its physical equipment, its beautiful campus, and the high quality of both faculty and student body entitle it to a higher reputation as an educational institution than it has recently been able to maintain. There is a loyal body of alumni, many of them prominent, and there would seem to be no good reason why, under the right leadership, it should not rank as one of the outstanding small colleges of the country.

Circumstantial evidence indicates that at least some of the difficulties of St. John's trace to a failure to obtain the type of president which the institution requires. The college has had three different executives in the past 15 years and the stormy departure of each has been marked by upheavals which of course have accentuated its problems.

The task of a college president today is arduous at best. Apparently it has been particularly so at St. John's. The many alumni and well-wishers of the college, in Washington and adjacent territory, will hope that the next executive appointment will be followed by that period of tranquillity which St. John's so greatly needs in order to take its rightful place in the academic world.

The King Speaks.

The brief message which King George VI made over the radio yesterday, as the capstone to a memorable day, was guileless in its simplicity.

There was not a line or a syllable to give offense to anyone. It was compounded of humility and kindliness, of gratitude and self-dedication. And there was not a word in the message which was not, one may hazard, deliberately calculated to assure the people of the empire that the era of George V did not end with the latter's death; that the brief interlude of Edward VIII is definitely a thing of the past and the abdication crisis a nightmare to be forgotten in the bright light of a new day.

More than one observer, writing of the coronation, suggested that the shadow of the Duke of Windsor dogged the footsteps of the participants and obscured the vision of those who lined London's streets to witness Britain's pomp and pageantry at its best. This may be so. But it is clear that the able men who have Britain's destinies in their keeping are determined that the shadow is to be transient.

The institution of monarchy, these men realize, is for Great Britain more than an heirloom—it is a political necessity. There are, to be sure, a host of factors which keeps the British Empire and the British Commonwealth of Nations together. Yet the common crown is a bond of vast importance and Britain's rulers are determined that never again is it to be placed in jeopardy as it was last December.

For many decades the political prerogatives of the monarch have steadily dwindled and in our time have practically vanished. The abdication crisis also made it clear that the King as person can have no existence apart from the King as symbol.

More than ever before the King of England today is a figurehead. But it is of the essence of necessity that he be an admirable figurehead, a parfit gentil knight, sans peur et sans reproche. And it is a striking manifestation of that mystical quality, strangely mixed in the British character with hardheadedness, that the more the King becomes that kind of a figurehead the better he is able, in his person, to command the love and respect and the loyalty of his far-flung subjects.

For, of course, they are not really his subjects at all but the real rulers of the kingdom, the commonwealth and the empire, bound together in what George VI yesterday rightly emphasized as a "free association."

Medals And Mavericks.

Paradoxically, there is one essential part of a successful democracy that cannot be really democratized. It is the organization for defense. An army isn't a government of the soldier, by the soldier and for the soldier. It is a technical organism with a head and limbs designed for specific purposes. And the head of necessity does the thinking. For the rest, theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do or die.

An army cannot be effective otherwise. It is an emergency body. And emergencies cannot be met save by swift obedience to competent orders. The army and navy in peace time aim to develop both ability to direct and swiftness to respond. Medals and citations, ribbons and bars are the honors awarded for something more than routine observation of the rules of the game.

In a lesser way that game is played in every fire department, in every police force, in every business, large and small. And where it isn't called discipline it is called esprit de corps.

But science and art are "something else again." And there is strong likelihood that the suggestion of Representative Maverick, that a Congressional Medal of Honor be provided for notable service in civil pursuits as well as for military and naval heroes, will arouse little enthusiasm among its possible beneficiaries. They will see the lack of logic in the suggestion.

Members of the aristocracy of brains are, again paradoxically, of the essence of democracy, possessing its predominant qualities refined from the grosser parts, eager to give to the community rather than to receive from it. Why, they may modestly inquire, gild the lily? Why ask for artificial distinction when natural distinction is already apparent? Geniuses are kittle cattle. Why brand the brainy?

It is ironic that it should be a Maverick who put this mark on the unregimented.

A paragrapher says the slickest thing is an eel swimming in oil. That's pretty slick, yes—but what about the seat on the water wagon?

No Summer Concerts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The announcement that there will be no summer concerts this season is little short of amazing. The huge crowds which have attended the concerts of the past two summers have demonstrated conclusively that a very real need for them exists. The orchestra, in its appeals for support, has insisted, very rightly, that it fulfills an important public service. But if this is true of the regular season it is even more true of the summer concerts, which have brought this service to thousands who are not served by the winter concerts. Anyone who has looked at the faces of that vast crowd at the Water Gate must realize the need those concerts supplied, and the loss which must result from their abandonment.

A similar announcement last spring resulted in the orchestra players themselves organizing a summer series which was even more enthusiastically received than the first. No such plan has been advanced this year, as it is said that several of those most active in last summer's enterprise were subsequently dismissed from the orchestra.

Whatever the reason for the decision, it seems to square rather poorly with any notion of "public service" which has any reality. If the public is to support the orchestra, a better recognition of the needs of that public is in order. J. F. O.

An Uncertain Court.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The sudden shift in the attitude of the Supreme Court in declaring the Washington State minimum wage law constitutional, along with the National Railway Mediation Board act, the amended Frazier-Lemke law, the Virginia milk price statute, the Wagner Labor Relations act, etc., while it proves that the court can change its mind—can change their minds—when public sentiment is sufficiently pronounced, does not indicate any inherent or habitual liberalism in the high tribunal. The Court's record, with rare exceptions, points directly to the contrary.

But even if the recent liberal decisions really did indicate that the Court has, in Attorney General Cummings' language, put on "the robes of repentance," how can we ordinary mortals tell how long the period of repentance is going to last? As William Jennings Bryan said of the income tax decision, "We cannot be expected to know when a judge is going to change his mind—either forward or backward." The American people have expressed themselves pretty clearly in the elections of 1932, 1934 and 1936 as favoring social welfare legislation. It would seem that they are entitled to a Supreme Court predominantly humanitarian and progressive—not merely one that, having been almost uniformly reactionary yesterday, shows signs of liberalism today, but tomorrow may do—nobody knows what. LINN A. E. GALE.

Reactions To Pegler.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you permit me the pleasure of differing with the gentleman who differed with Westbrook Pegler anent the photographers who were attempting to snap pictures of a four-starred gentleman about to embark from these shores?

The good that Pegler has done of late could easily be expressed in terms of Pershings raised to the tenth power. The reverse would be true, were it not for the fact that the hard-boiled general has shown a wonderful capacity for muffing the ball over a long term of years. That last may not be true, because the old man hasn't even tried to catch it. When they get so far past 70 that they want to knock a man out for taking a picture, it's about time to give 'em chloroform. Publicity is the surest antidote for stuff of this sort, and it should by all means be pitiless. More power to Pegler.

I helped to make this baby. Let me help also to break him—at least of this kind of foolishness.
BATTLING KID PEGLER.
Washington, May 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It's refreshing to see such individuality as exemplified by your columnist Westbrook Pegler. It takes a tremendous amount of fortitude to show such freedom in dispensing the truth. He is a good marksman and his steel-tipped shafts sink deep into the target.

'Fanatically Partisan.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a reader of The Post for more than 40 years, I believe I am justified in protesting against such language as appears on the editorial page of May 7. In comments on an address by the Chief Justice are found a fanatically partisan characterization of the President's plan to modernize the Supreme Court, as "the slapdash, superficial, devious and damnably dangerous proposal now before the country."

It should be remembered that even in Washington President Roosevelt has friends and firm supporters who sometimes read The Post. Such language is deeply offensive, seeming to pass the limits of decency, and to be shamefully disrespectful to the Presidential office.

Fascism's Threat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial "Investigation In Order," your cartoon and Mr. Pegler's "Fair Enough," of May 11, are all exceptionally good. Congratulations! The cartoon "In the Pantry" exposes, in no uncertain terms, exactly what the Fascist plotters are, the international rats. Kindly keep that flashlight ever flashing on this monstrous scourge, the world fascism, lest we find ourselves enmeshed in the same bloody net that the peaceful peoples of Italy, Germany, Ethiopia and Spain have found themselves.

Let no one think that we are immune to fascism. Let no one think that many of our millionaires and billionaires, together with many of our high public officials are not Fascists at heart. The past acts of these prove them to be so. They are Fascists, but dare not say it openly—not yet.

But this monster, fascism, can be defeated. It can be defeated only by the masses of people. It has been crushed in France; it is being daily crushed in Spain. The best way to bar fascism is to educate the people against it. And your paper once in a while is giving us plenty of light on it. Let us have some more of it. J. T. CHAMBERS.
Washington, May 11.

The Jordon Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the reopening of the Jordon murder case the retrial of Jordon draws near at an opportune moment when the Criminal Justice Association has just made known its first annual report.

The purposes of the association are to be a fact-finding and fact-disseminating body. According to these purposes an investigation of disputed testimonies concerning the murder of Mrs. Jaynes at the Garden T Shop seems particularly relevant to the work the Criminal Justice Association has undertaken. To have the facts of the case disseminated would be much appreciated by the voteless citizens of the District.

The maneuvering in this case has aroused suspicion in many minds that there has been some unethical force at work in the way the case has been handled. It might be well for the public to take notice and demand that all testimony be published and none of it be suppressed.

The Alcazar's Fall.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Joseph Gedra criticizes your editorial of April 30, "Kultur for Spain," and condemns the sad way the Loyalists demolished the Alcazar, occupied by women and children along with the Fascist defenders. I'm sure Mr. Gedra knows only half of the story. The women and children that the Fascists were so nobly defending were the wives, daughters and sweethearts of the Loyalist attackers. The Fascists were not the gallant gentlemanly soldiers he would like to believe they were, but were keeping these women and children with them as hostages, knowing full well that the Loyalists would not destroy their women and children. This reason contributed more than any other to the failure to take the Alcazar.

Two Civic "Whys."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why are the comfort stations at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue closed on Sundays when hundreds of visitors are in the city over the week-end and to spend the day?

If for the sake of economy, it should be directed elsewhere.
A DISGUSTED VISITOR.
Washington, May 10.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why have no sanitary drinking fountains been placed in Lafayette and Franklin parks? Do the authorities think that people don't use water for drinking purposes any more? Before these parks were revamped, each one had a drinking fountain, such as it was.

The Church Of The Future.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of May 9 Mr. John C. Rogers gives a suggestive communication on "Religion's Choice." He well illustrates St. Paul's word: "We know but in part and proclaim but in part." Agreeing with the spirit of his words, I demur at the choice he gives between cringing under dictatorship or opposing fascism in a militant way on the part of the church. I do no submit that "religion has failed," even if organized churchianity has.

Religion has no more failed than has statesmanship. Yet statesmanship failed in trying to prevent our Civil War. It failed in its peace terms at the close of the World War. It failed in dealing with Ethiopia. It fails today in dealing with the Arab-Jewish question in Palestine. But politicians will continue to sit in the seats of statesmen until better days come when patriots take their places. So will organized ecclesiasticism seek to rule in the interests of its particular sect until enlightened mankind demands that Christianity with its love and constructive principles take its place.

The screams concerning "persecution" which we now hear are in most cases but the dying groans of mummery, superstition, falsehood and sham which have masqueraded in the guise of religion, but which awakened mankind is seeking to overthrow, often by means as crude as what we face today in our labor struggles. If men of the type of Mr. Rogers would see that "religious persecution," so called, is in most cases "religious purification," we would be more discerning in our thought.

Time and again have critics and philosophers in the past "buried" Christianity, but just as often has it broken open the tomb and, like Christ, come forth in a new form of life. The present upheaval in the church means to men of faith in God and in mankind but the death and burial of paganized churchianity that has outlived its usefulness, if it ever had any. Out of this painful but necessary purging of religion will come forth a better day for Russia, Germany, Italy, Spain and Mexico. And the church of the future will minister unto and not seek to rule and exploit mankind.

Lafayette Park.

PARK is a word which suggests to the imagination a place of retirement; a peaceful retreat from the hurly-burly. Lafayette Park, guarded at each corner by statues of heroes—Lafayette and Rochambeau, the Frenchmen; Kosciusko, the Pole, and Von Steuben, the Prussian—takes its place competitively. But as we thumb the pages of long ago data, this restful arena presents other unconquerable distinctions among its contemporaries.

Originally the land was part of patents issued to John Pierce, September 23, 1685, when he obtained two tracts of land of 500 acres in that vicinity. In 1791, property was owned by Edward Pierce, a successful farmer. An apple orchard then covered the square. In the division of the soil of the District of Columbia, the entire region, October 11, 1792, fell to the share of the Government. In 1826, the square was leveled and fenced with a paling fence. This wooden fence was replaced by an iron one in 1853. It is no longer a barrier to ingress or egress.

The park gained name after Gen. Lafayette made visit to this city in 1824. There is dispute as to who gave the play-place name. Credit gravitates to George Washington. It is pointed out that the First President wrote "Lafayette" to designate the park on Maj. l'Enfant's original map. Early records show that because of its location in proximity to the White House it was referred to as President's Park. Maybe this was a just appellation. Without doubt, Lafayette Park was looked upon by holders of Presidential office as a thought laboratory—a proving ground for theories of government and a place to solve, undisturbed, conflicting issues of state

It is haunted property. Old ghosts walk. In 1814, Dolly Madison dashed across the square, then a cow pasture, with the silver service from the burning White House, fired by the British. Henry Clay, statesman, sauntered within the realm. The Blairs, the Lees, the Rodgers and the Decaturs, all associated with American life, and many other familiars, are identified in one way or another with the place.

Saturday, January 8, 1833, must be set down as a notable day in the history of the park. On that date, the statue of Andrew Jackson on his rocking horse, the work of Clark Mills, was dedicated.

Six years later, February 27, 1859, the neighborhood was thrown into the wildest excitement on Sunday afternoon by what was perhaps the most sensational homicide of a purely private character in the whole history of that era. Paul Barton Key, son of author of the national anthem, fell a pistol victim in the park as the result of a jealous feud.

A desire for change, face lifting, took place in 1935. Much that was historic, original in outlay, yielded to the whims of modern landscape artists. The snake-like paths were straightened, widened; flower beds, once the delight of each onlooker, were uprooted. What remained, after the desecration, were the trees, 92 in number—elm, magnolia, linden, cypress and oaks. In the collection, as a sort of arboreal laboratory, were trees of foreign habitat and historical significance and association.

Maybe all the work done answers the definition of improvement, but somehow the older inhabitant prefers the setting of antiquity. If searching for the trysting place today where, years ago beneath the smile of a spring moon, he told his sweetheart the great secret, he could not locate it. Modernity has made the inconsiderate deletion.

No recital about this hallowed spot would be complete without reference to that contingent who have grouped themselves as the squirrel and pigeon feeders. Children and grown-ups, male and female, take part in this pleasant pastime of sharing peanuts and cracked corn with the fur and feather denizens of this historical monument. One who stands apart, because of a desire to get ahead of any contenders for honors, is a lady. She schedules breakfast for the pigeons daily, Sundays excepted, at 7 a. m. Oddly, too, she seems to have acquired a "pigeon lingo," and, passing, one may hear strange mutterings to the feathered flock.

This mellow old plot continues to protect its reputation as the most famous park in Washington, despite such recent changes as a transformed theater nearby exhibiting motion pictures, a brand new building of the "ultra modern" style and such physical changes to the park itself as an up-to-date drainage system, twentieth century park benches and a Sixteenth street vista.

Big Fish News.

When is a fish news?

If it is a 17-inch trout it is, when Herbert Hoover catches it. If it is a tarpon it is, when President Roosevelt catches it. If it was a 50-foot stingray, it was when it ran afoul an otherwise unknown freighter and was finally gaffed and winched off by unknown sailors. If it is a record-breaking shark, it is, even if you catch it. But not a trout or a tarpon, when you catch it.

So sometimes it is the fish and sometimes the fisherman, that makes it news. One or the other has to be big. For most of us, this means that it must be the fish.

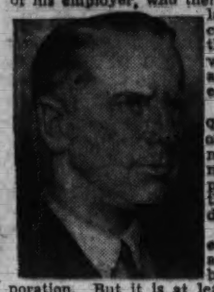
Labor Rackets.

GRANTING THAT the honest American workingman needs a labor union to protect him from the greed of his employer, who then will protect him from his labor union when that becomes necessary, including the parasite incompetents who live by their unionism, as well as the wolfish racketeers?



This is not a facetious question, because the records of labor leaders have much in common with the most cynical and brutal employers and that as between the two masters there is no desirable choice.

It is bad when the honest workman is spied upon and denied his human rights by agents of a soulless corporation. But it is at least that bad, if not worse, when he is spied upon, robbed of his earnings and coerced into strikes by men who cleverly appear to be acting in the interest of the oppressed.

He can at least complain against ill-treatment at the hands of his boss, but if he resents worse outrage from a labor leader holding credentials from the labor movement he may then be arbitrarily classified as a rat and traitor to his class.

He is not a traitor to his class at all. He is a martyr to his class, in fact, but he suffers like any Italian or German martyr under the Fascist or Nazi racket. He may be called an enemy of the labor movement and lose his working papers by the decree of labor racketeers who hold him in a power no less fierce and arrogant than that of the Duce or the Fuehrer of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co at its worst, and be permanently disqualified from employment in his trade in his own country.

* * * *

I MENTION his own country for dramatic effect, because he may be outlawed on the order of some bolo from Russia or some other foreign country or some foreignized American whose heart is set on a repetition of the Russian revolution here.

His family may hunger and freeze for the protection of some scheming scuttle-butt lawyer of the labor movement who has neither the ability nor the will to do a man's work at a man's job, but can't be fired because it is against the law to fire a man from union activity.

The scuttle-butt lawyer always will engage in union activity, because he knows that is his only protection, his only qualification. He knows that the day he quits agitating trouble for his betters, loafing, malingering and doing sabotage in the name of unionism, he may be legally canned for his notorious incompetence, so he spends his spare time making speeches against the boss.

If, finally, the employer, whether soulless corporation or little independent, kicks him out for good reason the union may call the honest workingman on strike, and a hundred thousand with him, as a solid rebuke to a horrible injustice.

The Government now dips its bill into the affairs of employers, soulless and otherwise, but it ignores the case of the workingman who must pay some racketeer fifty or a hundred or perhaps a thousand dollars for a union card permitting him to seek employment at his own trade in his own country. The Government honestly resents the shooting and beating of workmen by the agents of the employer, but has yet to realize that workmen have been shot, beaten and run out of town by union leaders who rode the cushions on the earnings of the forgotten man.

* * * *

LITTLE LOCAL PROSECUTIONS have shown that the labor leader sells out his union to the employer, using the strike as a weapon of extortion, but these have been dismissed as mere blemishes on the great labor movement and trivial matters not worth national notice.

Labor is big, and the racket is as good on one side as on the other. A few hoodlums of the type which is despicable when employed by the boss may bulldoze a whole industry in a single union meeting, and, with the holy sanction of a union vote, call upon vast numbers of other union men elsewhere to quit their good jobs for a cause which may be traced back to the greed or ambition of two or three leaders of the labor movement.

The union racketeer is as vicious as the soulless corporation ever was, but clever, too, because he takes advantage of the workingman's bashfulness in meeting, his ignorance of parliamentary tricks, and, worst of all, his shame at being pilloried as a traitor to his own kind.

It is just as well to recognize that strikers often strike against their will and that the mine operators of Harlan County, Ky., have been no worse at heart or practical atrocity than some leaders of the labor movement to whom the honest workingman shows disaffection at peril of his livelihood, if not of his very life.

The Once Over

Hollywood's Labor Troubles.

Hollywood's screen stars have just made a personal appearance in the first movie version of "Industrial Unrest" or "William Green's Pastures."

Dialogue by William Montgomery. Incidental music by the A. F. of L. Sound effects by common consent. Technical and historical research by the Screen Actors' Guild.

* * * *

A strike was averted, but the mere willingness of the movie stars to take part in one showed how desperate they have been for actors and excitement ever since "talkies" came in.

* * * *

A dozen famous screen queens were all ready to strike the day before the settlement, but it had to be called off. There was no chaise longue.

* * * *

And the lighting wasn't satisfactory.

* * * *

The actors claim that 50 per cent of the performers in pictures are extras and part-timers who get less than $2,000 a year. And for this they have to do everything from repulsing the charge of the Light Brigade to fighting the Battle of Jutland over again.

* * * *

Two thousand dollars a year! The public thought even the White Russian Wolfhounds got more than that.

* * * *

One of the demands is that actors employed by the day get paid for overtime. Under present conditions, they said, if a man is hired to participate in Custer's Last Fight he often has to scalp well into the night for daylight rates.

* * * *

If the boys who write some of those animated cartoon scripts would walk out everybody would be happy. Provided they kept walking.

* * * *

And it would be just great if the directors who insist on all those automobile pursuit scenes with the screeching brake effect would quit.

* * * *

At a late hour today Mickey Mouse was reported ready to strike because of a fear that if he didn't they would call him a rat.

* * * *

Donald Duck's attitude is not known. But Popeye the Sailorman has offered to meet the movie czars and win all the demands single-handed. If the guild will furnish an unlimited supply of spinach.

After the Coronation.

The Queen—Well, how do you feel?

The King—Terrible. It will take me months to get well. And you?

The Queen—I'm a wreck. If the parade had lasted another minute I would have screamed!

The Queen—What?

The King—Edward wasn't so dumb!

Mussolini has barred reporters from Italy, but there won't be any gasps of astonishment until the world hears he has banned photographers.

Fulpan On Cherry Tree Issue

Congressman Calms Concern Of Ladies In Petunia.

By Louis M. Jiggitts.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Petunia, April 1, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I have noticed in the papers that they are thinking of tearing up the cherry trees in Washington. Only last year I made a visit to Washington just to see the cherry blossoms and I am writing to ask you not to let this happen.

As an admirer of both you and the cherry trees I would like to hear as soon as possible what you are going to do about it.

I understand that the Japanese gave these trees to us as a gesture of goodwill. Do you want to offend Japan?

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

Washington, D. C., April 3, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
My dear Mrs. Dobbin:

The Congressman is attending a very important official function today, but I am delighted to inform you that he does not want to offend Japan. He has often stated that his success is due in great part to his continuous efforts not to offend anybody.

Assuring you that it has been a pleasure to give you this information, I am yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

Petunia, April 6, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

What I want to know is what you are doing about the cherry trees. I think it is a fine idea to erect a memorial to Thomas Jefferson but why tear up the pretty trees? Why don't you place it somewhere else and have two beautiful places instead of one?

You know we are all interested in Washington. We feel like it belongs to us. Just yesterday your friend Pinkus Pratt was in town to see my husband and he was disturbed about the cherry trees, too. He said he had intended to come to Washington this spring and had written you about seeing some Senators and the cherry blossoms when his wife decided she'd have to have some spring clothes instead. He said he was already saving his money to come next spring, but if they were going to tear up the cherry trees he guessed he wouldn't come. He said he didn't believe the trip would be worth it just to see the senators.

I saw Primrose Potts yesterday and she said that she had already written to her Cousin Poke for whom you got a job on the Capitol Police to use his influence and he had told her to write you as you had great weight in Washington, but that she didn't want to write you as you had already done so much for her Cousin Poke and she didn't feel that she ought to ask you to save the cherry trees for her. But she told me to let you know that she is also worried about it.

Please let me know by return mail that you are going to save the cherry trees.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

Washington, D. C., April 8, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
Dear Mrs. Dobbin:

I appreciate your letter and your kind remarks about my influence. The question of where to place the memorial is in the hands of the Jefferson Memorial Commission. I must give this matter very careful consideration, for while I most certainly respect your good advice there are very cogent reasons why I do not care to offend my fellow Congressmen who are on the commission. However, I shall take the matter under advisement.

Thanking you for giving me your worthy opinion on this important subject, I am

Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Petunia, April 10, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

What do you mean you don't want to offend fellow congressmen? Do you mean Congressmen are like lawyers in public? I've seen the lawyers over at Biddlesville when they were trying a case look like they were going to kill each other or at least commit assault and battery, but after the case was over they would go out of the courtroom arm in arm like a bride and bridegroom.

Who are these Congressmen you don't want to offend?

I talked to some more people today and they are getting quite upset about you and the cherry trees. Please let me hear what you are doing by return mail.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Washington, D. C., April 13, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
My dear Mrs. Dobbin:

The Congressman has been called into an important conference this morning on the question of economy and this afternoon he has promised to discuss with several members the advisability of changing the name of hors d'oeuvres, but I am glad to inform you that he is still giving the matter you are interested in a great deal of thought.

I can assure you that the Congressmen never act like brides and bridegrooms unless they are newlyweds.

The Memorial Commission is composed of Congressman Boylan, the chairman, and several others. They are all important also, and naturally Congressman Fulpan is friendly with them.

Assuring you that it has been a pleasure to give you this information, and trusting that whenever you are interested in any other matter you will not hesitate to call on us, I am

Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

Petunia, April 15, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

When the wonderful cherry trees are in danger of being destroyed why are you thinking of hors d'oeuvres?

Please let me know what you are doing about it at once.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

Washington, D. C., April 17, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
My dear Mrs. Dobbin:

In the continued absence of the Congressman I am glad to explain hors d'oeuvres to you and what the Congressman is doing about it. It is French pronounced like "aw dueves" and is an appetizer consisting of antipastos, anchovies and canopies. A great many people can't pronounce it and Congressman Maverick thinks we ought to have an American name for it like doodabs or something. As a leader here Congressman Fulpan feels that it is his duty to assist a fellow Congressman when possible, and he has promised to help think up a name.

Assuring you that it is always a pleasure to answer inquiries from a constituent, I am

Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

Petunia, April 19, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

If the Congressmen worked as hard as people do in Petunia they wouldn't need appetizers. I hope you will forget about food and think of the cherry trees. Your constituents are thinking a lot about them. In fact, the Petunia Ladies Upward and Onward Club is going to discuss the subject at the next meeting and I have promised to present your stand on the matter.

We admire the cherry trees and we want to know how you feel about it. Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

April 21, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
My dear Mrs. Dobbin:

I regret that the Congressman is still at work. He is in a very important conference today on Government reorganization, but I am sure that he will be glad for you to report to your worthy club that he, too, admires the cherry trees.

Assuring you that it has been a great pleasure to inform you of the Congressman's stand as requested, A am Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

Petunia, April 24, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I am glad that you also admire the cherry trees but what are you doing to save them.

I was talking to your friend, Mr. Cy Skribbels, the editor of the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette, and he said he was going to write an editorial about this matter as soon as he could get around to it. He said he was going to remind Congress how much Jefferson loved trees. He said that Jefferson while President planted poplars along Pennsylvania avenue and that Jefferson would be the first to protest cutting the beautiful cherry trees that have made the Tidal Basin a mecca or something for the American people.

Everybody in Petunia is beginning to talk about it and wonder what you are going to do. In fact Mrs. Fannie Sitz told me today that she was going to write a poem about it if you didn't do something to stop it. You know Miss Fannie is a great admirer of yours since you wrote her confidentially about the Supreme Court and she said she hoped she wouldn't be forced to choose between you and the cherry blossoms.

I suggest you talk to the commission members at once.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

Washington, D. C., April 27, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
Dear Mrs. Dobbin:

I am greatly disturbed that any of my constituents have the slightest doubt about my position on any issue. During my many years of service I have always made it a rule to take an unequivocal stand on every issue of importance. I have perhaps been too outspoken for my own good, but I would eschew political preferment in a moment if to gain it restricted my right to assert myself openly and fearlessly upon each and every occasion.

I trust that you will correct any erroneous impression which any of my constituents may have in this matter.

I am still giving the subject my most serious consideration and I have every hope that I will arrive at a solution that will leave everyone pleased.

Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I read your last letter to the Ladies Upward and Onward Club and they appreciate the way you stand on all issues, but they still don't understand your position in this matter.

I am sending you a resolution they passed asking you to save the cherry trees.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

Dear Mrs. Dobbin:

I am delighted to inform you that the cherry trees will not be torn up. Definite action has been taken in this regard, and you may rest assured that the trees will remain.

Petunia, May 5, 1937.
Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Congressman Fulpan:

Petunia is happy. The cherry trees have been saved and Fulpan is again the man of the hour. We are proud of you and I would like to report your wonderful work to the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette.

And now that you have saved the cherry trees where have you decided to place the Jefferson Memorial? This is of great importance and we don't want you to let the matter rest until another place has been definitely selected.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. DORA DOBBIN.

Washington, D. C., May 7, 1937.
Mrs. Dora Dobbin,
Petunia.
Dear Mrs. Dobbin:

I deeply appreciate the expressions contained in your letter of recent date. I would prefer that you not publish anything about my efforts in the paper as it has always been my habit to avoid publicity whenever possible. I am glad that you appreciate my efforts but I must acknowledge some help from other sources. And the people generally over the entire country felt as you did about the matter. Public opinion is a great asset to any congressman, I can assure you.

The Memorial Commission has not yet decided where it will place the memorial, but I am giving a great deal of thought to the matter.

Assuring you that it has been a pleasure to serve you, I am,

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I do hope that you and the commission will place the memorial where it will serve the people who Thomas Jefferson loved. I am sure that there are many places in Washington where a fitting memorial can be placed, but I am also sure that you know best.

When you come up for re-election next year I am going to suggest to the ladies the slogan, "Petunia Has Faith in Fulpan." Several of the ladies have already admired it. I hope you like it.

Please let me know when you decide where you are going to place the memorial.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Dobbin:

I am grateful for your most recent letter. I will be delighted to inform you as soon as we have decided where to place the memorial.

I like the slogan you suggested and I want to add that I have the greatest respect for the acknowledged good judgment of the Petunia ladies.

Yours sincerely,

Conversations In London.

THE STATESMEN gathered in London this week went there to represent their nations at the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth. But they are staying on for a more humdrum if, to them, more vital purpose. The current celebrations in the British capital have provided the setting for an exchange of views with British leaders which foreign statesmen are eager to capitalize.

During recent weeks the fear that war is just around the corner has tended to subside. Nonetheless, a good part of Europe continues to live in a state of acute alarm. That explains the present frenzy in diplomatic activity. It also explains the widespread concern over what Great Britain intends to do.

For Great Britain is today, as it has been for some time, one of the principal European enigmas. That, in itself, would not be important were the British Empire on its last legs or the United Kingdom without influence or importance. But neither is true. And that is why such attention is being paid to British policy and so much earnest effort is being expended by foreign governments to secure British cooperation or support for this policy or that.

* * * *

IN ONE SENSE this is very curious. British prestige today should be at a very low ebb. British diplomacy has suffered a whole succession of serious blows beginning with Japan's aggressions on the Asiatic mainland which more and more tended to imperil British interests.

Later there was the Ethiopian fiasco from which Italy seemingly emerged the victor over Great Britain. Still, later, there was the strange spectacle of little Portugal, tied to Britain's apron strings since way back in the seventeenth century, thumbing its nose at its powerful ally. Most recently Great Britain found itself forced to reach an agreement with Egypt to whose generous terms no British government of the past would have consented.

And yet, despite this whittling away of British prestige, enough remains to dazzle many another power. Nor are these foreign nations wrong in feeling the way they do about British power. They know it is real. If any reminder were needed, one was effectively provided in the $7,500,000,000 rearmament program.

They know, too, that if Great Britain definitely decided to throw its weight on one side or the other in the present diplomatic line-up, the conequences would be considerable. What they would like to know, therefore, is which side it will be. And so far as it is possible for them to bring it about, they hope to be able to enlist Great Britain under their own banners.

* * * *

HENCE THE ASSIDUOUS courting of John Bull. No meteorological index is today being studied so carefully as the British weathervane.

The French, since the Popular Front government came into being, have, indeed, made good relations with Great Britain the Alpha and Omega of their foreign policy. The American commercial doctrine that "the customer is always right" has been adapted by the Quai d'Orsay to "What Downing Street says goes." As proof, witness France's Spanish policy; its Belgian policy, and, most recently, the ungrudging assent given by Paris to Egypt's plea that the capitulations be abolished.

The French have succeeded to the extent that Great Britain and France today are full-fledged allies. But that alliance is a thing apart from the French system of alliances in eastern and central Europe, i. e. with Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Poland and Russia.

With regard to possible developments in regions east of the Rhine, the British have never given any clear indication of what stand they propose to take. They may decide to offer really effective opposition to those nations accused of plotting the upset of the status quo. They may decide that what happens in central Europe is none of their business. You pay your money and you take your choice. In Great Britain each policy has its stanch adherents. The British government itself has never made its position entirely clear.

* * * *

FOR THIS reason Germany still hopes to win over Great Britain if not to a policy of actively supporting the expansionist ambitions of the Third Reich, which is out of the question, at least to a policy of neutrality. And for the same reason Czechoslovakia and Austria turn longing looks in the direction of London. It is reliably reported, in fact, that the new Austrian policy of independence of both Italy and Germany is predicated on the assumption of British support. There are no illusions in Vienna regarding the possibility that Great Britain might, by force majeure, block Anschluss. But there is at least the hope that Great Britain, eager to see peace maintained in central Europe, will give its moral support to the efforts now being made in Vienna and Prague to form a Danubian bloc of the smaller states, particularly Austria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

And even Italy wants British friendship. It has, indeed, used very queer ways of showing this. But the fact nevertheless remains true that without British support Ethiopia will remain a liability.

* * * *

BUT IT IS not alone European statesmen that are interested in British good will at the present time.

In Tokyo, for instance, more than one trial balloon has been launched of late suggesting the wisdom of reviving in one form or other the Anglo-Japanese alliance of prewar days. In part, this is a reflection of Japan's growing difficulties in China and at home. But the Japanese have also learned that the British know how to mend their fences. If Great Britain retreated in 1931-1935, she is again advancing in the Far East. And, furthermore, Japan is now viewing with equanimity the circumstance that this new advance occurs simultaneously with a rebirth of British sea power.

However, so far as the British themselves are concerned, the conversations now taking place in London between Downing Street officials and the statesmen of foreign lands are of less immediate importance than the pending imperial discussions between representatives of Great Britain and the dominions.

In the fervor of reawakened unity induced by the pomp and pageantry of the coronation, British statesmen hope to cement the ties binding the lands united under the crown worn by George VI. To them that is the most pressing need of the day and all else is secondary.

Two Words

By William Lyon Phelps

Lambaste And Lampoon.

An interesting letter from John A. Lindeman, of Alpine, Calif.: "Recently I had occasion to refer to the dictionary to check up on the correct pronunciation of the word lambaste, having heard it used both with the short and long sound of a in the second syllable. And what did I find? Nothing! Nothing at all; there being, apparently, no such word in the English language. The nearest was lampoon."

He then incloses an article from a California newspaper with two headlines, one of which uses lambaste and the other lampoon, apparently as synonymous.

* * * *

I take pleasure in informing my correspondent that Webster's International Dictionary and Funk and Wagnall's Standard Dictionary have the word lambaste; the great Oxford Dictionary has it, and Partridge's new Dictionary of Slang has it. It is always defined as slang; but it has had a long and vigorous life and certainly belongs to the English language. It appeared first in 1637, in Davenant—"Stand off awhile, and see how I'll lambaste him." In 1694 appeared the noun lambasting. They have been steadily used ever since. The origin of the word is simplicity itself; the two words lam and baste were united, meaning "beat" or "pound" or "thrash." There is only one correct pronunciation. Accent strongly on second syllable, which rhymes with paste.

* * * *

Lampoon, also accented on the second syllable, means of course satirizing somebody or something in writing. It comes from the French lampon, a drinking song, hence guzzling, hence (rather obscurely, I confess) a satirical attack. The verb lamponner is nearer to it. One of the best-known periodicals in America is the Harvard Lampoon, which has a well-earned reputation far outside the Harvard yard.

Neutrality Abroad

By Europax.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Paris.

FOR ONCE Europe has been too busy sweeping its own doorstep reasonably clean to make caustic remarks about America's front yard. Absorbed in their efforts to preserve the appearances of non-intervention in Spain, the European powers have refrained from criticising America's neutrality trend.

This restraint does not denote lack of interest. On the contrary. Europe has followed American attempts to frame an effective neutrality policy with intense interest. If the actual passage and signature of the neutrality bill aroused relatively little comment in most European countries, there are several very significant reasons for this comparative silence.

In the first place, Europe at this particular moment could hardly afford to judge harshly a neutrality policy which it is endeavoring to apply in the case of Spain. The very first use which President Roosevelt made of the powers conferred upon him by the recent act of Congress was to reaffirm the neutrality of the United States in the Spanish conflict, along the identical lines traced by the European powers in their nonintervention agreement. Under such circumstances, criticism of America's stand would have been pointedly out of place.

France Doubts Worth Of Planned Neutrality.

THERE ARE other factors in the case, however. In France, for instance—and the French attitude may be taken as reasonably typical of most of Europe in this question—American neutrality is by no means taken at its face value. By this I do not mean that France doubts the depth and sincerity of the average American's desire to keep out of war. The average Frenchman fully understands and thoroughly shares this point of view. But he does not believe that a preconceived policy of neutrality can attain the end in view.

Although the French government is committed to a policy of nonintervention in Spain, this is regarded as an exceptional occasion. In general, France is convinced that there is only one possible source of a real European war: Germany. Accordingly, she is solidly certain that the best hope of peace is to make clear to the Reich that if she starts anything she will have the whole world against her. Neutrality, every country which proclaims its intention of remaining neutral weakens the prospects of peace, according to this reasoning, by just so much.

Furthermore, France is on the whole persuaded that neutrality, even if it were a desirable policy, would not be a practicable one. Most Frenchmen are convinced that every important country in the Old World would quickly and inevitably become involved in any major European conflict, and also that if this war were to last more than a few months the United States as well would soon be drawn irresistibly into the maelstrom. This being so—thus the French argue—would it not be far better in the long run for America to help Europe prevent war rather than to deceive herself into thinking she could keep out of a European war once it had been allowed to begin.

Democratic Sympathies Seen Powerful Factors.

IN ADDITION to these general considerations, there is another important element in Europe's viewpoint on neutrality. This is democratic solidarity, or the naturalness and necessity of close collaboration between the principal democratic powers—in particular between France, Britain and the United States.

Now this supposed essential solidarity between the democratic nations may or may not be a fact. Doubtless most Americans today would be inclined to term it an illusion, and to denounce it as simply a blind to entice the United States into becoming entangled with a European "democratic bloc," so-called, in opposition to another European "Fascist bloc."

It is, in fact, difficult to avoid this conclusion when one studies the European situation today. The center of the continental stage is held by a miniature world war being carried on between these two "idealogical" blocs in Spain in the guise of civil war. Germany and Italy, the two principal dictatorial powers, appear to be drawing closer and closer together, until now there is even talk of an actual alliance between them.

It seems to be improbable that any outright military alliance exists or is even contemplated at present. Besides, it really makes very little difference these days whether an actual treaty exists or not. I remember a very acute American diplomat saying to me some years ago: "The only alliances that matter any more are alliances of states of mind." Applying this simple rule, I have predicted that Italy and Germany would get together in one way or another ever since Hitler came into power in 1933.

This does not necessarily mean, of course, that they will stay together. The French have an old saying, "If you haven't got an alliance with the Italians at the time war breaks out there's some chance of your having them on your side; but if you have an accord with them, there's not the slightest chance of it!"

Tendency Of Europe To Divide Marked Today.

AT ALL EVENTS, it is evident that the tendency toward the division of Europe into two blocs, one dictatorial, the other more or less democratic, cannot be ignored today. Nor can it be denied that the democratic powers—France and Britain especially—would like to have the United States on their side.

But here it seems to me possible—in fact, essential—to draw a significant distinction. If France and Great Britain want and hope to enlist America "for the duration" or even for the preparation of the next war on the side of a so-called democratic coalition against a Fascist bloc headed by Germaiy and Italy and possibly including Japan, then they might as well save their breath and spare their efforts. Quite obviously the United States, though it may be drawn into an eventual conflict, would flatly refuse to sign up for it.

This is perfectly apparent to the French and English. The neutrality act has removed any lingering doubts that they may have had on that score.

If, however, what France and Britain want is to enlist American aid for the prevention of any "next" war—and this implies the renunciation of any plan for the formation of two hostile blocs—then the position is no longer the same. Collaboration between the "three great democracies," to use a term dear to the French orators, in endeavoring to remove the causes of a European conflict, is not only legitimate but entirely attainable. The only prerequisite, as both President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have frequently stated, is that this co-operation must be primarily economic and it must be on a basis of reciprocity

Democracies Show Few Signs Of Collaborating.

ARE THERE any indications that collaboration between the democratic powers is making real progress today? Undoubtedly attempts are being made in that direction, but so far it must be admitted that tangible proofs of progress are completely lacking. The mission of Mr. Norman Davis to London in connection with the sugar conference may bring forth something—rumors of an Anglo-American trade treaty and war-debt settlement are in circulation—but there is nothing definite as yet, and Mr. Davis was obliged to abandon his trip to Geneva to investigate disarmament prospects—a bad sign.

So far as France is concerned, M. George Bonnet went to Washington for the purpose of persuading the United States that economic and "moral"—if not actual political—cooperation with the European democracies was the best means of keeping America out of war. Specifically, he hoped to develop Franco-American commercial relations with the hope of opening up the way to a new war debt settlement.

But uphappily for M. Bonnet, neither of these aims is progressing very fast. At his last meeting with Roosevelt, I am able to reveal, the President was distinctly discouraging. He told M. Bonnet that there is absolutely no possibility of bringing up the question of war debts now and no prospect of it within the visible future. Furthermore, he stated that there was no immediate hope of financial or commercial developments. The United States, President Roosevelt declared categorically, would not take any initiative either for economic or military disarmament.

Thus Europe and America still seem poles apart in many respects. The most that can be said is that between the United States, Great Britain and France there exists a common loyalty to democratic ideals which should lead eventually to more completely similar states of mind and thence, not to alliance for war, but to common action in support of peace.

Meeting of Il Duce, Hitler, Rumored

Vienna, May 12 (AP).—Persistent although officially unconfirmed reports today said Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy and Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler would meet Monday at Hitler's Berchtesgaden home in Bavaria.

The reports declared that Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's air minister, would leave for Venice Friday or Saturday and return to Germany with Mussolini.

Rule by 'Brain Trust' Is Forecast for Japan

Tokyo, May 12 (AP).—Revival by Premier Hayashi of an ancient system of committee government modeled along the lines of President Roosevelt's original "brain trust" was forecast today with privy council approval of a newly created planning board.

The action was interpreted as a move to circumvent opposition to the government's policies in Parliament. Eighty per cent of its members are antigovernment.

It takes superior performance to be outstanding! The Gas Refrigerator, Electrolux, is years ahead in advantages . . . A born leader!

OUTSTANDING

Listen . . .

. . . But you'll hear NO NOISE!

The GAS REFRIGERATOR IS SILENT and DIFFERENT because it has NO MOVING PARTS!

Your own ears will tell you that the Gas Refrigerator, Electrolux, differs basically from all other refrigerators. . . . it's permanently silent. And this is more than a real advantage in itself. It means bigger savings . . . longer service for you. There is no noise in Electrolux because there are no moving parts in its freezing system. And for the same reason, there is no wear, no loss of efficiency due to moving, wearing parts. A tiny, economical gas flame does all the work in this remarkable refrigerator. It circulates the refrigerant that, unfailingly, produces food-preserving cold and plenty of ice cubes.

Come in today and inspect the new 1937 Electrolux. The more you learn about this modern Gas Refrigerator, the more you'll understand why more than 14,000 Washington owners are so enthusiastic about it. Learn too, how little it will cost you to have an Electrolux in your own home!

You git kinda lonesome livin' in a big town where you go all day without seein' anybody you know, but at least you ain't bothered with a lotta gossip. In a small town where everybody knows you, you've got to watch your step because no matter what you do, some suspicious person is apt to misinterpret it and start tongues waggin' all over town.

I know my Uncle Slug almost had his reputation ruined down home one time jest because some gossipy, suspicious woman started a rumor that he'd been drinkin'. This woman happened to be standing up on the depot platform when Uncle Slug walked up, dropped a penny in the letter slot and then looked up at the station clock and muttered somethin' about losin' weight.

G. W. U. Glee Club Concert Is Tonight

Under the direction of Dr. Robert Howe Harmon, the George Washington University Glee Club will give its concert tonight in the Willard Hotel ballroom, with Margery League, soprano, as guest artist. The organization is well known through its yearly spring concerts, its frequent programs at large local gatherings and over the radio, and its appearances with the National Symphony Orchestra.

At tonight's concert, the men's club will be heard in the following numbers: "Prayer of Thanksgiving" (Traditional), "The Jolly Roger" (Rubertson), "Marching Men" (Protheroe), "Old Man Noah" (Bartholomew), "Lamp in the West" (Parker), "The Lotus Flower" (Schumann), "Dear Land of Home" (Sibelius), "Dearest Farewell" (Traditional).

The women's club will sing: "Emitte Spiritum" (Schuetky), "Venetian Love Song" (Nevin)" "Lullaby" (Godard), "List! the Cherubic Host" (Gaul). The combinded clubs will close the program with arrangements of the sextet from "Lucia di Lammermoor" and Rubinstein's "Kamenoi-Ostrov" No. 22.

Margery League will be soloist.

Neighborhood May Festival Is Today

Celebration of the thirty-fifth annual May festival at Neighborhood House will be launched today at 4:30 p. m. Programs will be presented each afternoon and evening through Saturday.

The night programs will be given in the garden theater of Neighborhood House. They will consist of two operettas in which more than 100 children take part. The operettas are "The Cobbler and the Elves" and "The Magic Beanstalk."

Songs, plays and folk dances will make up the afternoon programs.

Saturday will be the gala day of the festival, starting with a concert by the United States Marine Band at 4:30 o'clock. At 5 o'clock there will be the May Day procession of the settlement clubs in N street which will be roped off for the occasion. This procession will be headed by the May queen and her attendants. There will be six May poles around which groups of gaily costumed children will dance.

W.K.Handy Elected President of Lions

Walter K. Handy, official of the Potomac Electric Power Co., was elected president of the Washington Lions Club at the annual dinner meeting in the Hotel Mayflower last night. He succeeds Adam Arnold. H. M. Brundage, [illegible], and R. L. Pollio were named first and second vice presidents, respectively.

Three officers of the club were re-elected: Randolph E. Myers, secretary; Vergne W. Potter, treasurer; F. William Loetsch, lion tamer. Ernest Allwine was the choice for tail twister.

Delegates to the convention in Chicago of Lions International named by the club were Bert H. Piers, Handy and Myers. Four directors selected for vacancies on the board were Hugh V. Keiser, Carl W. Mitman, Jules C. Ricker and Floyd D. Akers.

Knife Wound Fatal To Jordan Bruce

Jordan H. Bruce, an artist, died yesterday at Sibley Hospital as a result of a self-inflicted knife wound, police reported last night.

Bruce, 32, stabbed himself in the chest with a butcher knife Tuesday and succumbed yesterday, after being given first aid treatment by Dr. M. Van Kinsbergen, of 1909 Nineteenth street northwest.

Dr. Van Kinsbergen, whose office is in the same apartment where Bruce lived, told police Bruce had been receiving treatment from him for some time.

ABC Plea Undecided.

After considering for a week the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's recommendation that liquor stores be allowed to locate within 400 feet of business area churches, the District Commissioners announced yesterday they had reached no decision. The question, they said, will be further considered.

As National Hospital Day was celebrated at Children's Hospital, Dorothy Evans, 2-year-old patient, sits in Mrs. Mildred C. Bell's lap. The others are, left to right, Lorraine Ballinger, 2; Mrs. Virginia McCarthy and Raymond Edward Grant, 7. Washington's hospitals, public and private, held open house, showing the public their laboratories, X-ray rooms, surgical departments and other facilities. The celebration was a marked success, insofar as attendance was concerned. "We had more visitors than ever before," said Miss Mattie Gibson, superintendent of Children's Hospital and head of the local organization of hospital superintendents.

Kreml, Famed Traffic Expert, Arrives Today

Guest of The Post to Be Honored by Dinner at Willard.

Lieut. Franklin M. Kreml, the Nation's foremost authority on traffic control and accident prevention, will arrive in Washington as a guest of The Post this morning to receive honors at a dinner in the Willard Hotel tonight.

Recent winner of the C. I. T. Safety Foundation's $5,000 prize for "outstanding accomplishments" in the field of traffic during 1936, Lieut. Kreml has been invited to inspect local conditions and offer remedial suggestions.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen urged the youthful Evanston traffic expert to remain in Washington long enough to study conditions and offer advice from his wide knowledge of traffic control problems.

Tribute to Lieut. Kreml's record in saving lives and promoting highway safety will be paid by more than 70 city and Government officials who will attend tonight's dinner.

In a brief outline of his work, Lieut. Kreml will speak from the banquet hall over facilities of the National Broadcasting Co. He will be introduced by Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Post, who invited the young enforcement officer to Washington.

Throughout the eastern United States, Lieut Kreml has established his accident prevention system in more than a dozen key cities. His methods resulted in a marked decrease in traffic fatalities and accidents in his home town of Evanston and traffic authorities across the country have sought his advice.

During his visit, Lieut. Kreml is expected to confer with Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and other city officials.

Archivist Makes Space Available For House Records

Having recently obtained authority to take possession of valuable historical documents formerly stored in Senate vaults of the Capitol, R. D. W. Connor, United States Archivist, yesterday took steps to invade the House store rooms.

Writing to Speaker Bankhead, Dr. Connor pointed out that new filing equipment just ordered would make 233,525 cubic feet of storage space available.

He included a report by a deputy examiner outlining what House documents might well be transferred to the Archives Building.

These included records prior to the Seventy-first Congress. The examiner stated that, should these records be needed by Congress, they "could be made more accessible to the House in the Archives Building than in their present depositories."

In the Archives files, the examiner said, the House documents would be "housed under scientifically controlled atmospheric conditions instead of being exposed to extremes of heat and cold, to an accumulation of dust, to infestation by rodents and vermin, and to leakage from defective plumbing."

Daylight Saving Bill Opposed by Citizens Group

Rhode Island Avenue and American U. Park Vote Against Proposal.

The first protests to be made by Washington civic organizations against the daylight saving time bill introduced some days ago by Representative Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, came last night from the Rhode Island Avenue and American University Park Citizens Associations. The latter also opposed the Benning slaughter house.

A resolution favoring the Sacks bill was introduced by the Rhode Island Avenue Association's law and legislation committee, and was fought by William S. Torbert, club treasurer. The resolution was subsequently defeated and Torbert's substitute opposing the bill adopted.

Jett Wyland, chairman of the American University Park Association's garden committee, announced plans for the annual lawn, garden and flower contest. The committee, he said, will inspect more than 500 gardens next month and select the four outstanding from each of five districts. Representatives of the Department of Agriculture will then select the final winners.

Maritime Unit Asks Classified Service for 144

Certifies Group to Civil Service Commission for Appointment.

As the first step in placing all employes of the United States Maritime Commission under civil service, as required by the merchant marine act, the commission yesterday certified to the Civil Service Commission 144 employes of the former Emergency Fleet Corporation and Shipping Board Bureau, who were transferred to the rolls of the Maritime Commission by the act.

The employes affected were personally informed of the commission's actions by Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy at a meeting in the auditorium of the Department of Commerce Building. Kennedy praised the high character and ability of the personnel and bespoke their united effort in the commission's work of administering the new merchant marine act.

The merchant marine act provides that after a preparatory period all employes of the Merchant Fleet Corporation and the Shipping Board Bureau whose services are satisfactory shall acquire civil service status upon being certified to the Civil Service Commission by the Maritime Commission. Officials of both commissions have been at work for weeks on the problem of the classificatoin of personal property to making this certification.

The employes certified yesterday comprise the administrative, technical and regulation divisions of the commission. The employes of other divisions of the commission—finance, legal, transportation and research—will be certified just as fast as the personnel studies of these divisions are completed by the commission.

Washington Crime Purge Inaugurated

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, yesterday intiated a general movement to clean up Washington crime conditions.

In a flat ultimatum, he warned petty racketeers, hoodlums and known criminals to leave the city on threat of wholesale arrests and transportation across the District line.

At the same time Maj. Brown and Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, indicated a general shakeup of the detective bureau is planned and will be announced at the end of the week.

Maj. Brown also revealed he was studying plans to recommend legislation requiring all known criminals to register with the Police Department when they enter the District. Heavy penalties would result from failures to comply with this rule, under the chief's plan.

Citing congestion in precinct cell blocks after week-end raids and arrests for minor crime infractions, Maj. Brown said:

"There are too many undesirables in the city who don't belong here. If these out of town hoodlums, who obviously have no means of employment, are here for any unlawful purposes, I advise them to get out of town before we start trouble."

Accent complaints of bums and panhandlers in the city's parks and on downtown streets resulted in Maj. Brown's ultimatum, it was learned.

His action followed closely the Washington Criminal Justice Association's recent first annual report, in which local crime conditions were pictured as extremely unfavorable.

In 1932, following the bonus riots, Maj. Brown, then an inspector, led an organized roundup of suspected criminals and drove more than 500 transient hoodlums from the city. This was done in co-operation with Maryland and Virginia authorities, who transported the undesirables across the States.

A period of "watchful waiting," said Maj. Brown, will follow yesterday's warning, to give the criminals a chance to return to their home communities.

In California, Maj. Brown pointed out, known criminals are stopped at the State line and are forced to show they have legitimate means of earning a living before they are admitted.

A strengthened vagrancy law in the District, said Maj. Brown, would aid materially in combating crime. Under the present law, he pointed out, a person may appear to have no means of livelihood, but needs only to produce money to escape punishment.

Recently, headquarters detectives armed with "John Doe" warrants, have made numerous raids on reputed gambling establishments. Persons arrested are paraded before a police line-up in an effort to secure possible identifications in connection with reported crimes.

Refuse Comment.

Neither Maj. Brown nor Inspector Thompson would comment on the detective bureau shakeup, but it is thought the changes come as a result of failure of the bureau to solve a series of robberies and burglaries.

The shakeup, it is thought, will include most of the detective sergeants now assigned to the bureau. Many of the men working in precincts will be transferred to various squads which work out of the central headquarters. Others will be given different assignments in precincts.

Inspector Thompson said he has been contemplating the changes for several weeks. He indicated he has completed an investigation similar to one staged by other officials in regard to the activities of precinct detectives.

Four precinct detectives were demoted and many others were placed on probation as a result of the inquiry.

Thompson refused to say if the pending changes will result in the demotion of any men.

Bank Safe Deposit Box Is Looted of $1,560

Joseph W. Hill, of 1730 Seaton street northwest, reported to police yesterday that $1,560 in money and jewelry had been taken from a safe deposit box in his bank on U street northwest.

Hill said the theft occurred either Monday or Tuesday. The loot included $60 worth of jewelry and $1,500 in cash. Police said bank officials could give them no clues.

Episcopalians To Vote Today On Office Move

National Headquarters of Church May Be Set Up in Capital.

A movement to transfer national headquarters of the Episcopal Church from New York to Washington will be crystallized in a resolution expected to be adopted today at a convention of 300 delegates of the Washington Diocese at St. Paul's Church in Rock Creek parish.

Interest in this transfer of offices has developed throughout the country, delegates pointed out yesterday, and the question is expected to be debated when the representatives of the denomination meet next October at a national convention in Cincinnati.

The majority of Washington Episcopalians are believed to favor establishing headquarters here.

The churchmen, representing 75 parishes in Washington and four neighboring Maryland counties, will choose delegates to the convention. They also will elect members of an executive council, and members of the diocesan standing committee.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will preside at today's session. The bishop also had charge of a preliminary function last night, a fellowship dinner at which laymen of Rock Creek parish waited table for the visiting laymen.

New rectors in the diocese were introduced, and the Rev. John Morris, retired missionary to Japan, talked on missions.

Sligo Valley Citizens Vote Against Flats

Civic Group Opposes D. C. Income Tax Proposition.

A resolution against erection of any row houses or flats in residential areas was adopted by the East Sligo Valley Citizens Association which met last night at Silver Spring.

This action was inspired by the proposal to amend zoning laws because it is believed that a large apartment house development near Silver Spring violates present rules.

Philip J. Austensen, secretary, was authorized to appear before the county commissioners today and ask them to hold a public hearing before amending the law, while Granville C. Stagg, chairman of the public improvement committee, was named to study the situation.

In another resolution the association opposed the income tax being considered for the District which would tax Maryland residents working in Washington.

The association admitted the Woodmor subdivision to membership.

Dual Airport Plan Offered For District

Present Field and One in Nearby Maryland May Be Used.

The Washington Airport Commission was reported to be considering a dual airport proposal yesterday after it adjourned because of the absence of two members.

Despite a statement by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the commission, that the selection of a District airport had been narrowed to four fields, reports were current in aviation circles that Washington Airport and a site in nearby Maryland are being urged as a compromise to the Gravelly Point-Washington Airport deadlock.

The plan would be to use Washington Airport in fair weather and the Maryland site, near Camp Springs, about 11 miles from downtown Washington, at times when fog or bad visibility made the Washington Airport dangerous.

Assails Washington Airport.

The National Aeronautical Association yesterday assailed the Washington Airport as "probably the most dangerous in the whole country" and criticized Congress for doing nothing to establish an adequate District airport.

Advocates of Gravelly Point on the commission are understood to be fighting the dual field proposal. Meanwhile, two War Department dredges are filling in the Gravelly Point site at the rate of a quarter of a million cubic feet a month.

Army engineers estimate that by September there will be 100 acres of land showing on the Gravelly Point site.

The Maryland site, for a secondary airport, was selected, it is understood, after Army experts had made surveys of this entire area under direction of Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of the Air Corps and a Presidential appointee on the commission.

Favor Gravelly Point.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, who was absent from yesterday's meeting, and Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan are reported to be still holding out for Gravelly Point.

Col. Sultan is especially interested in providing facilities for seaplanes.

Delano is understood to have proposed moving back Mount Vernon boulevard adjacent to Gravelly Point so as to provide space for runways of 5,000 feet, or 1,000 feet more than required by Commerce Department regulations.

The chief sponsors of Washington Airport site on the commission have been Representative Nichols (Democrat), Oklahoma, and Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York. They are said to be agreeable, however, to the dual airport plan.

Senator King and Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee, are reported to be looking upon the proposal with favor on the theory that it would constitute a compromise.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Current Bills in the Motion Picture Houses Demonstrate Ability of the Public to "Take It" in the Matter of an Unhappy Ending and Also That Merit Is Coming to Be Recognized; the Circus Is Coming to Town—Out Braden-burg Road; the Warners Jam Their Cutting Room With New Features; Letters We Were Glad to Get; News Notes of the Contemporary Amusement World.

IT SEEMS to me an admirable thing that the cinema has attained a stature that warrants so many holdovers and repeat engagements as have been recorded during the present season.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, by virtue of their exceptional dancing ability, are taken, more or less, for granted as long-run stars. But here we have Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor coming back to the Columbia in "Personal Property" and Janet Gaynor and Fredric March extending their run through a second week on the screen at Loew's Palace.

BELL.

This extension of the run of "A Star Is Born"—that is the Gaynor-March vehicle—seems an especially commendable thing to this department. Here is another of those infrequent pictures that has the courage to end on a tragic note. Just as was prophesied in the Hollywood previews of this subject, it should do much to rehabilitate Miss Gaynor as a star of the first flight and to fortify March in his position of one of the screen's most able leading men. Both do exceptional jobs of sustained characterization in "A Star Is Born," and that so doleful a story should have "caught on," as the saying goes, speaks well for both the players and the public.

It was not so long ago that an "unhappy ending" was looked upon as fatal by the major producers of celluloid entertainment. It was their notion—and, at the time, no doubt well founded—that the "motion picture public" would have none of this lugubrious business of tears, instead of a "clinch," at the final fadeout. Now, both the public that sits in front of silver sheets and the moguls who pull the strings from Hollywood's backstage seem to be growing up.

There can be no gainsaying, even if anyone wanted to gainsay it, the gradual emergence of the cinema as a major art. Commercial in many of its aspects, to be sure, but still an art that has it in its power to make life real in shadow images and recorded sound.

Things definitely are looking up. And I claim credit for having expressed it that way, instead of "things are looking up—but definitely."

Has that one been worked to death!

This must be spring. I am led to the belief by the fact that there barges into the tesselated elegance of the drayma department—you'd be surprised!—that elegant impresario of the "big tops," Old Frank Braden, who always makes this town in advance of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus while his teammate, the veteran Dexter Fellowes, dallies elsewhere with his armful of "stills" and highly literary expositions in type of the manifold merits of "the greatest show on earth."

Mr. Braden may, perhaps, best be recalled as the bright young man who plopped a midget into the lap of J. P. Morgan at a Senate hearing and had her picture taken there. That is only one of the bizarre things he has done in the interest of art, the drama and sawdust. He also once attended an Easter service at St. Patrick's, in New York, with a long-necked and heavily necklaced Ubangi on each arm. One of them thought she was engaged to him as a result of this generous publicity gesture, made for the major benefit of the cameramen! Frank is still more or less footloose and fancy free, despite the close squeak he had on this occasion—that is, he is until it comes to the New Bavarian's imported Muenchner beer. He's just a plain sucker for that!

The Warner Brothers-First National studios have 21 features in the cutting room at the present time, which seems to be fair insurance against any serious consequences of the strike of the technicians on the West Coast. It is claimed that this a record for near-completion, in advance of announced release dates, and I do not question the authenticity of that suggestion.

The features include "The Deep South," "The Singing Marine," "Lady Luck," "Confession," "Kid Galahad," "The Devil's Saddle Legion," "Talent Scout," "Fly Away, Baby," "Public Wedding," "Blazing Sixes," "Dance, Charlie, Dance," "Marry the Girl," "The Go-Getter," "Slim," "Case of the Stuttering Bishop," "Don't Pull Your Punches," "Another Dawn," "San Quentin," "Footloose Heiress," "Empty Holsters" and "War Ford."

The stars concerned in these productions are made up of a mighty roster led by Dick Powell, Kay Francis, Bette Davis, Edward G. Robinson, Pat O'Brien, Hugh Herbert, George Brent, Anita Louise, Henry Fonda, Claude Rains, Errol Flynn and Margaret Lindsay.

Quite a list, if you ask us—and even if you don't.

So there comes to the desk a westernunion reading cryptically as follows: "Suppose they do chop down the cherry trees to build a Jefferson Memorial, raise District taxes, pack the Supreme Court or banish strip-teasing from the American scene? What do you care as long as you can look forward to June 14?"

The thing was unsigned. But what is coming off on June 14? I have no more idea than you have. But it must be something—maybe the hanging of The Post's drama critic, or his riding out of town on a rail. If the latter is the case, I prefer the Pennsylvania or the B. & O. Not that it matters.

From Robert Campbell, secretary of the Actors Fund of America, of which the dean of the American theater, Daniel Frohman, is president, comes a brief but cordial note relative to the Actors Fund Benefit to be given by the "Follies" company in the National Theater on Friday afternoon—regular prices and no tax.

Another gracious letter is received from Dr. Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, pertaining to the recent Fathers and Sons Banquet held at the Mayflower. Things of this sort are what our old friend, Hobart Bosworth, denominates "the writer's round of applause" and are sincerely and deeply appreciated.

Second-Thought Note.

Never mind about the dogs and the rats. I probably will wind up by getting me a cat!

Continue to Prance at Keith's

These gayly pirouetting young people will be immediately recognized as Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire in one of their incomparable dances in "Shall We Dance," the current feature on the screen at the RKO-Keith Theater. This subject, after the manner of all of its predecessors with the same stars, is piling up another "run record on Fifteenth street—which it richly deserves, except that Fred doesn't dance quite enough to satisfy those who deem him the ace "hoofer" of the theater.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, May 12.—Settin' Around (Universal): This studio is the last stronghold of the movie cowboy. It always gives me a warm glow to see the old-time punchers, dressed in jeans, high-heeled boots and ten-gallon hats, lounging around the gates. They lend Universal a flavor all its own—the kind of flavor that gives any veteran Hollywoodsman a touch of nostalgia.

BILL HART.

Action pictures starring Bronco Billy, Tom Mix, Dusty Farnum, Bill Hart and other two-gun-totin' heroes of early days may have lacked class, but packed a real wallop and were cornerstones on which the motion picture industry was built. Universal still produces a yearly quota of red-blooded horse-operas. Some of the producers who blush at mention of their one-time connection with such entertainment would gasp if they knew how much money Westerns bring into the box office.

• • • •

Clark Gable and Robert Taylor are great stars, but millions of fans, especially kids, prefer to see Buck Jones rescue Nell from the scowling villain. I admit a weakness for he-man entertainment, and Buck, after 18 years of stardom, still draws me into theaters. Millions of others with similar tastes account for Jones' being still the highest paid star in the business. Universal's program for the coming year includes a goodly number of Westerns. In this studio, saddle leather promises to hold its own against sex appeal.

• • • •

For "The Road Back" (sequel to "All Quiet on the Western Front") they have built an entire German village. It covers five acres, has six narrow cobblestone streets, a huge cathedral and a town square. Everything about it is in the best 1920 German architecture, except the streamlined trailer that accompanies Andy Devine wherever he works.

"Shucks," he told me, "I've been wantin' a portable dresing room ever since I saw Joan Crawford's. Nobody offered to give me one, so I just brought this trailer to the studio and rolled my own."

• • • •

On the same set, Slim Summerville told me about an incident that occurred while they were filming battle scenes. One of the extras was ordered to clutch his stomach and crawl into a shell hole as though badly wounded. The director was dissatisfied with his work and stopped production to explain what he wanted.

"My God, man," he shouted. "Act like you're torn up inside! Show pain! Can't you imagine you're wounded and in agony?"

"Doesn't take much imagination," the extra retorted. "I was wounded at Chateau Thierry and lay in a shell hole for 18 hours!"

On the "Love in a Bungalow" set I watched Nan Grey and Kent Taylor play a sizzling love scene. It started with a cynical speech in which Nan expressed her disillusionment about all males, and wound up in an ardent clinch. After the scene was over I chatted with her for a moment. Suddenly she glanced at her watch and hastily excused herself. "You'll have to pardon me," she flung back over her shoulder as she ran from the set. "I'm late for school."

Thats' one of the oddities of this town—you think you're talking to a grown-up young lady—and she suddenly rushes off to school—a 16-year-old.

May Yohe's Friend Speaks for Thomas

New York, May 12 (AP).—May Yohe's determination to prevent a baby's dulling the glamour of her stage career 28 years ago was put forward at a referee's hearing here today as the reason for obscurity surrounding the birth of Robert E. Thomas, who is fighting for a share of the Putnam-Bradlee Strong trust fund.

Thomas claims to be the son of the once-famous actress, and Strong, although born in the five-year interim between their separation and divorce in 1910.

Even in approaching motherhood May Yohe was jealous of her hourglass figure, and bore her child under an assumed name so the event would not interfere with her roles, Louise Glover, who said she knew the actress in Portland, Oreg., at the time Thomas claims he was born, told Referee Jeremiah F. Connor in a deposition.

The hearings were recessed until June 17.

Paintings Recovered.

Viterbo, Italy, May 12 (AP).—Seven ancient and priceless paintings stolen from the Tuscania Cathedral in Feburary were recovered today. Members of a gang of thieves who came from Palermo, Sicily, were arrested.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

The eloquence of silence has been extolled in romantic novels and philosophic treatises. But nowhere, I venture to say, can silence—as represented by that little word, "Pass," be more profitable than at the contract table. Of course, to be profitable it must be understood!

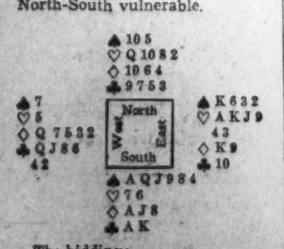
South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	2 ♡
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

When North made his final pass, South had to exercise every ounce of control to keep himself from committing homicide. And, indeed, although I am not a blood-thirsty soul, I think South should have been permitted a small amount of mayhem. North had failed miserably in reading and responding to one of the most beautiful of all bidding weapons, namely, the forcing pass. North obviously felt that his very poor hand warranted no action at all. But let us consider the situations carefully.

South, vulnerable, had opened the bidding and East, after two passes, had, instead of doubling, merely reopened the bidding with two hearts. South now, knowing that his own partner had a hand too weak to keep the bidding open on the first round, had voluntarily rebid his spades to the three level. West, who had taken no action over the one spade, now was unable to raise hearts or make any constructive bid of his own. East had then bid four hearts, which in the light of his previous bid could not be a sound bid. The chances were overwhelming that East was merely trying to "boost" the opponents to a spot where he could take care of them.

South, who had been not only willing but anxious to contract for nine tricks, surely could have stretched a point and bid four spades if he thought there was any real danger of opponents making their four-heart contract. His pass, therefore, could not have shown inability to go further and, obviously, he was merely asking North whether he preferred to play his four spades or defend against four hearts. As between these two, North's preference should have been the latter.

Finally, there was no reason for North to suppose his heart honors could be picked up by successive finesses—the bidding had practically guaranteed there would not be two entries in dummy, which would be required for this purpose.

Ordinary defensive methods involving the removal of dummy's one trump held declarer to one diamond and five heart tricks, and thus he was down four tricks. North's timidity resulted in only a 200-point penalty.

'Lost Horizon' To Be Offered As 'Road Show'

Will Lead Next Week's Film Bills on 'Two-a-Day' Basis at the National.

On Sunday evening Washington will be accorded its first public view of Frank Capra's newest production for Columbia Pictures, "Lost Horizon," which will be presented as a "road show" attraction at the National Theater. This is Robert Riskin's screen adaption of the novel by James Hilton, with Ronald Colman and Jane Wyatt in the foremost roles. There is an imposing cast in support, led by H. B. Warner, Sam Jaffe, the original Kringelein of the stage version of "Grand Hotel;" Edward Everett Horton, Margo, who made such an impression in both the stage and screen editions of Maxwell Anderson's play of "Winterset;" Thomas Mitchell, John Howard and Isabel Jewell. After Sunday night's distinguished opening—all of the Diplomatic Corps and other notables in the National Capital have been invited—"Lost Horizon" will be presented twice daily at 2:30 and 8:30 with all seats reserved.

"The Prince and the Pauper," the Warner Brothers picturization of the Mark Twain story, will be the chief feature of the screen bill at the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, with Errol Flynn and the Mauch Twins, Billy and Bobby, in the pivotal roles. This is the picture that was shown for one night as the opening attraction upon the recent dedication of the Warners' new Calvert Theater. Others in the cast include Claude Rains, Barton MacLane, Henry Stephenson, Phyllis Barry, Fritz Leiber and Montagu Love. The coronation scene with which the film ends is an authentic duplication of the ceremony that was celebrated yesterday in London. Shep Fields and his orchestra will continue with the feature picture through Friday. Beginning Saturday, Hal Kemp and His Band will take over the stage show, presenting a fast-moving program of melodies and specialties.

Loretta Young, Tyrone Power and Adolphe Menjou are the stellar players in "Cafe Metropole," their feature of the screen bill to be presented for the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Capitol Theater. They are supported by Gregory Ratoff, Charles Winninger, Helen Westley, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Albert Conti and many others of note. The story is a gay romance of the restaurants and night clubs and provides diverting entertainment without a headache. On the stage, Sybil Bowan will headline the vaudeville portion of the bill, supported by Collins and Peterson, those two stentorian comics; Helen Denizon and the Twelve American Rockets and the Three Arleys.

"Silent Barriers," the film story of the building of a great railroad, will be the major attraction on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Although this is a Gaumont-British picture, it is said to catch the spirit of American pioneering days without a slip—like "The Covered Wagon" and "The Iron Horse." Richard Arlen heads the cast, with Lilli Palmer, Antoinette Collier, J. Farrell MacDonald and thousands of extras in support.

Janet Gaynor and Fredric March will continue for a second week on the screen at Loew's Palace in the costellar roles of that pseudo-tragic story of "A Star Is Born." Done entirely in Technicolor, this is one of the most effective, most beautiful and most lachrymose films of recent release. Adolphe Menjou leads the supporting cast in a role that suits him down to the ground—that of a hard-biled producer who proved not to be so hard-boiled after all. May Robson, that venerable actress of many triumphs, also is importantly cast. The short subjects will be held over with the feature.

Beginning Friday at the Belasco Theater, the chief feature of the screen bill will be "Amphitryon" ("The Gods at Play") a film version of the play that has enlisted the interest of the Theater Guild and Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne for next season. It is based on an ancient and gay Greek legend and is said to provide no end of fun. The bill will be completed by the usual short features and newsreel.

For the week beginning Sunday, the Rialto Theater announces another double-feature bill with two male stars in the ascendant—Jan Kiepura and W. C. Fields. Kiepura will be seen and heard in "Be Mine Tonight" and W. C. Fields in "It's a Gift," in which Master Baby LeRoy also appears. The bill will be completed by short-reel subjects and newsreel. Both features, of course, are revivals.

Tonight and tomorrow night at the King-Smith Playhouse, Molnar's "Liliom" will be presented with what is deemed to be the best cast the studio ever has assembled. Background music for this production has been composed by August King-Smith and, it is reported, soon will be heard in New York a musical embellishment of the story, after the manner of the musical treatment of "Porgy and Bess."

In addition to the regular 40-minute display of picturized news events of the world, the Trans-Lux Theater next week, beginning tomorrow, will present a historical short reel dealing with Mount Vernon; a Paramount Pictorial, presenting the skill and pleasure to be derived from sailing and including a scenic presentation of the song gem, "Twilight on the Trail;" a series of Spanish sports pictures and a cartoon in color, "Krazy's Race of Time."

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, as goes almost without saying, will be held over for another week at RKO-Keith's in "Shall We Dance," their latest production for RKO-Radio. Eric Blore, Edward Everett Horton and a long list of others appear in the principal supporting roles of this engaging subject, which is augmented by a varied list of short reels.

For the week beginning tomorrow the Columbia Theater will present as its chief screen offering a repeat engagement of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Personal Property," in which the costellar roles are played by Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor. This was directed by W. S. Van Dyke and has a splendid cast in the supporting roles.

On May 27, at 12 noon, the Crystal Pool will open at Glen Echo Park. In the meantime, all of the other 50-odd amusement devices are in full midsummer operation, including a long catalogue of exciting rides, the Spanish Garden Ballroom and the self-driven motorboats.

Seaside Park, at Chesapeake Beach, Md., will open for its thirty-seventh season on Saturday. All manner of amusements are on tap at this popular water resort, including a pool to augment the bathing facilities of Chesapeake Bay. Especial attention is paid to the entertainment of juvenile patrons and picnic parties who may wish to avail themselves of the specious groves.

At the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the usual Sunday matinee, the attraction will be a sepia revue in which many of the foremost colored entertainers on the stage will appear. Irvin C. Miller, "the Ziegfeld of Harlem," is sponsor for the show, which is described as one of the sensational offerings of the year.

Mrs. Martin Johnson to Talk In Capital on Wilds of Borneo

Post Staff Photo.

MRS. MARTIN JOHNSON.

Widow of Famous Explorer to Display Films of Jungles Twice May 28 to Aid Child Welfare Program Here.

Mrs. Martin Johnson, widow of the naturalist and explorer, will make her first public appearance here since her famous husband was killed in an air crash.

The Osa of a famous "we" of the jungles and mountains will lecture at Constitution Hall on the afternoon and evening of May 28, the Washington committee of the Child Welfare League of America has announced.

Proceeds from the programs will be devoted to complete the needed examination of child welfare projects in Washington, sought by the Council of Social Agencies with a view to improving child care in the District.

Together with Joe Tilton, chief sound technician of the 18-month expedition in Borneo, which the Martin Johnsons had completed just prior to the crash of an airliner near Los Angeles, Mrs. Johnson will furnish a running commentary on their last jungle film. "Jungle Depths of Borneo," which lifts the veil on this exotic and unexplored land for the first time.

The chairman of the Washington committee of the Child Welfare League of America is Mrs. Eugene Meyer. Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss is treasurer, and Mrs. James F. Curtis is secretary. Members of the committee are Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Philip O. Coffin, Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, Mrs. Spencer Gordon, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, Miss Agnes K. Hanna, Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, Mrs. Charles P. Neill, Mrs. Louisa Roberts, Mrs. Carrie G. Smith and Mr. Elwood Street.

Having spent 20 of the 27 years of her married life in the jungles of Africa, Borneo, Australia and the South Sea Isles, Mrs. Johnson plans to return to the jungles—this time the Belgian Congo—at the conclusion of her current tour of the United States and Canada. Suffering an 8-point fracture of her right leg, which has kept her in a wheel chair since her discharge from a California hospital last March, Mrs. Johnson's physicians have assured her she will recover complete use of her injured leg, probably before this summer is past.

The Story of Shipping

What was the heyday of American maritime achievements, when the United States out-generaled all other nations in commercial strategy?

As a preview of National Maritime Day, May 22, Walter J. Eddington next Sunday brings an absorbing story of American maritime history starting at the close of the Revolutionary War and continuing through the eventful years to the story of today.

He reveals the romance and color of the Clipper Ship era and tells the story of "Contract 552," or the sister ship of the Queen Mary, expected to be the largest and fastest in the world.

Watch for this absorbing article, rich in historical material, next Sunday in The Post.

War Game Air Raiders Score in Two Attacks

Muroc Dry Lake, Calif., May 12 (AP).—Under cover of darkness, "enemy" air raiders stabbed three times at Pacific Coast vital zones today, surprising defense forces at "Salt Lake City" and "San Pedro" in the giant Army air maneuvers. Umpires scored these two thrusts as successful.

The third, a night raid on airplane factories in "Los Angeles," was beaten off. In the war games, the whole coast and parts of the inland area were "moved" to Muroc Dry Lake to permit real bombing.

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden last night was elected chairman of the board of managers of the Chinese Community Church.

Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dr. Pruden has worked and traveled in China, where he has had extensive experience.

He succeeds the Rev. J. Raymond Mills, who resigned before journeying to Uruguay.

Delay Menaces Ballot on Bill To Ban Abattoir

Tydings to Withhold Vote Until Plant Backer Is Compensated.

build at the same time it was laying plans for preventing construction. Previously Seal had asserted that the Commissioners were consulted before the measure was introduced by Senator King.

Opposes "Penalty."

Tydings stated that on general principles he doesn't believe abattoirs should be conducted in the National Capital, which should be preserved as a noncommercial city.

However, in his examinations of Seal and Charles F. Consaul, the only two supporters of the bill who were heard at length, the farmer Senator dipped deeply into the "morals and ethics" of penalizing a firm which has obtained its foundation and superstructure permits fairly and legitmately.

He stated specifically that not only must Gobel be reimbursed if the King bill is to stand a chance of passage but the money must come from the pockets of District, not Federal, taxpayers.

D. Edward Clarke, the meat packer's lawyer, said his client had paid $1,400,000 for the property and "good will" at the Benning road site, just east of the Anacostia River. All this initial outlay, he argued, would be wasted if the company were prevented from rebuilding the old plant and placing it in use.

Seal Concedes Point.

Prodded by Clarke and Tydings, the latter stating "government oversight" should not go unpunished just because feeling is running high against the abattoir, Seal conceded that compensation would be in order and he thought the Commissioners would be willing to pay off Gobel.

Later, however, after obtaining assessment records, the corporation counsel showed that the District had appraised the existing property at $70,776, representing $11,776 in land valued at $59,000 in improvements. In June, 1933, the Gobel Co. asked for a lower assessment, Seal testified.

Gobel had an interest in the slaughterhouse at the time business was suspended in February, 1933. Since then the buildings, damaged by fire, have been idle.

With the sub-committee's three members on record against the King bill as it now stands, with testimony yet to be taken from its opponents, hearings will be continued at 2 p. m. today. Senator Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, the lone minority member, has not committed himself. He attended only the first few minutes of yesterday's session.

Predicts Meat Price Cut.

Senator Tydings, absent when the investigation opened Tuesday, established himself at the outset as one who knows something about cattle, their odors and their bellowing. A good-sized abattoir in Washington such as Gobel proposes to build would tend to reduce meat prices locally, he said.

He lectured on methods of fattening steers, the high cost of living in Washington and the relative sanitation hazards of chickens and swine.

The keeping and slaughtering of chickens, is more insanitary than corresponding handling of cattle, therefore why not abolish all local businesses which process poultry? he argued.

He asked Seal where the District dog pound is located. The corporation counsel did not know. Someone volunteered that it is on South Capitol street, only a few blocks from the Capitol.

"Isn't the dog pound a nuisance, what with the barking and all? Tydings asked.

He also questioned the desirability of giving the Zoning Commission and health officer the wide discretionary powers provided by the King bill in the granting and renewal of permits to "nuisance industries" in existence. Previously Clarke had voiced objection to this clause.

Doubts Bill's Validity.

The attorney charged that the measure, designed to stop Gobel, borders violation of the Constitution's "due process" clause and questioned the right of Congress to exercise its police power to "confiscate a private business."

The barrage of questions flung at Seal by Clarke was interrupted when the former appealed to Chairman McCarran against such "technical" interrogation. Tydings thereupon stepped in to remind Seal that the District already had granted Gobel the necessary construction permits, "so why should the firm be the goat when the authorities allowed the horse to be stolen before locking the stable?"

When Clarke introduced evidence purporting to show that local courts upheld the abattoir industry in 1923 and concluded with a scathing denunciation of the present "anti" campaign, Senator King jumped to his feet and demanded that the remark be stricken from the record.

The objections of King were on the grounds that Clarke was supposed to be questioning Seal, not making statements. King's point was upheld by McCarran.

Warned of Fight.

Consaul, a lawyer appearing as vice chairman of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City, testified that the Gobel company received warning months ago that a fight was ahead if it attempted to execute its plan.

"The firm had at least an amber light," he said, adopting a traffic metaphor.

"And so did the District," interposed Tydings, referring to its actions in granting building permits at the same time it was planning to balk operation of the abattoir.

Under Tydings' questioning, Consaul said he would not object to Gobel's being paid off to drop its program, adding that the amount should not be as high as $1,400,000.

"They were buying a pig in a poke when they bought up the property," Consaul reminded.

George J. Cleary, president of the Northeast Citizens Association, spoke briefly in favor of the King bill because northeast residents "fear slaughterhouse odors." Asked by Tydings if he indorsed the plan to compensate Gobel if its program is killed, Cleary replied in the affirmative.

Senate, House Get Together On Red Rider

sponsored by Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, the House rejected a repeal bill reported by the House District Committee after extensive hearings by a sub-committee headed by Kennedy.

The "pink rider" aims at substituting for the "red rider" the following proviso:

"Provided that hereafter no part of any appropriation for the public schools shall be available for the payment of the salary of any person advocating communism or any other un-American doctrine or treating any such doctrine with favor or support, but no official or teacher shall be required to make any special declaration of nonviolation hereof as a condition for payment of salary."

Since the House adopted this proviso, members have been bombarded with protests from educational organizations, which asserted the "pink rider" is as bad as or worse than the "red rider."

The District board of education likewise has denounced the McCormack amendment and reiterated its demand for outright repeal.

Montgomery Land Controversy Ends

A 32-year-old controversy over a strip of valuable Montgomery County property on Rockville pike was settled in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday.

Judge Charles W. Woodward gave the tract—4½ acres near Montrose and an acre next to Georgetown Preparatory School, to Harry J. Kraft and his sister, Mrs. Mary C. Rabbitt, on the grounds that they and their mother, the late Mrs. Catherine Kraft, had adverse possession of the land since 1905.

Transfer of the title ended a suit that started in 1904, following the death of Benjamin Franklin Ball, former proprietor of the land.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 12.

SOME YEARS AGO Christopher Morley founded the Wednesday Morning Culture Club—to meet on Fridays. Its present membership includes Ursula Parrott, Gelett Burgess, Helen Wills Moody, Bennett Cerf and Rebecca West . . . Next Wednesday the club will have its annual outing—a trip by rail around, or almost around, Manhattan. This is considered a remarkable feat, seldom, if ever, accomplished before. The challenge was made to the New York Central, and the railroad company has accepted . . . The members will start from Grant Central in special cars, go up to 125th street, over the Spuyten Duyvil, and then down the West Side freight road—preceded, as usual, by the flag-toting man on horseback.

MRS. DAVID FREEDMAN attended three meetings of the Wednesday Morning Culture Club at the clubrooms—a dark cellar on E. 45th Street. "I'm not attending any more meetings," she told Christopher Morley after the third visit. . . . "But you'll benefit by these meetings," the founder protested. . . . "The only way I could make money from coming to your meetings," Mrs. Freedman replied, "is if I fell down the cellar stairs—and sued for damages!"

MARGOT STEVENSON, who became the darling of the critics as a result of her performance in "You Can't Take It With You," has received numerous screen offers . . . Last week she received a message backstage that the Selznick office had phoned . . . "That's marvelous," Josephine Hull told her. "They probably want to make a screen test of you for the role of Scarlet O'Hara . . . Miss Stevenson, very much excited at this new turn in her fortunes, called the Selznick office . . . "There must be some mistake," she was told. "We left a message for Ruth Attaway—the colored girl who plays the maid!"

LAST WEEK END W. P. Lipscomb had a party at his ranch near Hollywood to celebrate the completion of his new private golf course there. All the guests played golf except Lipscomb—who doesn't play the game! . . . Moss Hart feels that his contribution to the American theater isn't complete until he's taken to the stage himself. Hart therefore is planning to become an actor next season . . . John Emery, who is not a German and who just completed working in the screen version of Erich Remarque's "The Road Back," has been notified by the Nazis that he is persona non grata and can never, never come to Germany.

SAM GOLDWYN sent for Alice Duer Miller to write for the new Goldwyn Follies." . . . "Kalmar and Ruby are doing the songs," he told her, "and we got plenty of comedy already. What we need is a love thought, but a terrific one. We want a beautiful love story running through the picture, an idea with sweet sentiment on which to base it. Clear?" . . . Miss Miller nodded and agreed to write it. . . . "And don't forget," Goldwyn warned, "we haven't any footage to spare!"

Woodcock 'Asked' To Give Up Place As St. John's Head

Baltimore, May 12 (AP).—Dr. Amos Hutchins, chairman of the board of visitors and governors of St. John's College, asserted today the resignation of Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock as president of the college, was not voluntary but was asked by the board because of Gen. Woodcock's "prolonged absences."

Gen. Woodcock, former national prohibition administrator, is a special counsel with the Department of Justice. He announced his resignation from the college presidency Tuesday, laying it to the board's refusal to make St. John's a coeducational institution.

"As chairman of the board of visitors and governors," Dr. Hutchins said today, "I personally deeply regret that it was necessary to ask for the resignation of Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock as president of the college.

Roosevelt Heads East After Visit At Elliott's Home

Fort Worth, Tex., May 12 (AP).—After a night and day of rest at the home of his son, Elliott, near Benbrook, President Roosevelt ended his two weeks' vacation today and headed homeward.

His special train was ready early tonight to take him back to Washington with stops at Vinita, Okla.; St. Louis and Indianapolis. He will arrive at the White House Friday morning and arrange week-end conferences with legislative leaders on a variety of subjects.

James, his eldest son and secretary, joined the Chief Executive at Elliott's home and all went to a barbecue on the estate.

Jesse H. Jones, of Houston, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and his brother, John, were guests.

Postmaster General Farley is expected to board the train Thursday afternoon at Indianapolis. No platform appearances were scheduled.

Loyalists Suffer Heavy Losses In Toledo Drive

3,000 Are Reported Dead, Many Wounded in 4-Day Attack.

Brilliant defense of insurgent militiamen in one sector won for them the collective award of the Laureada, highest honor for bravery in the Spanish army.

Prisoners taken by the insurgents were quoted as saying the government army in the Toledo sector included two brigades of the Lister division, two other international outfits, the Campesina brigade and the Dimitroff batallion, in addition to the units already on the front. Apparently they were sent to reinforce government troops trying to recapture the city won by insurgents last October, when they freed comrades besieged in the Alcazar.

(The government asserted its troops had advanced about 7 miles on the Toledo front, approximately 40 miles south of Madrid.)

Bilbao Bombed Again.

Bilbao, Spain, May 12 (AP).—Insurgent airplanes dumped more than 100 bombs into the suburbs of harassed Bilbao today but did not fulfill Gen. Emilio Mola's threat to blast the Basque capital to bits.

Terror-stricken inhabitants, mindful of the insurgent northern commander's warning he would bombard the city "without mercy" if it did not surrender by today, ducked for cover three times as nine bombing planes and seven pursuit planes roared over Bilbao.

Several gasoline tanks were set afire and nearby buildings were destroyed. Clouds of dark smoke billowed over the city.

Mola's men pushed forward from the east to a point 6 miles from Bilbao, insurgent reports said.

They trained guns on outlying Basque fortifications at Larrabezua, only 5 miles from the city. The insurgent command at Vitoria, inland and to the south, declared government militiamen had quit the town of Amorebieta, 8 miles east of Bilbao, falling back in the hope of making a stronger stand just outside the city.

Another insurgent report asserted 2,500 Basques were killed and wounded in a vain attempt to hold Biscargi Hill, north of Amorebieta, in one of the bloodiest struggles of the Bilbao offensive.

With more than 300,000 persons packed into Bilbao, food supplies again were running low as those recently brought in by British and French ships neared exhaustion.

Advertising Club Honors Callahan

Vincent F. Callahan, former newspaperman and former sales manager and assistant to the vice president of the National Broadcasting Co. in Washington, was made an honorary associate member of the Washington Advertising Club yesterday at a luncheon in the Raleigh Hotel.

Callahan, who is leaving Washington to become general manager of station WWL in New Orleans, was guest of honor at the luncheon. Other guests included District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Charles L. Gridley, president of the National Press Club; Edward C. Colladay, president of the Board of Trade; Edgar Morris, former president of the Board of Trade; Paul Cromelin, grand master of District Masons, and Daniel Callahan, supreme treasurer of the Knights of Columbus.

Norman C. Kal, president of the Advertising Club, presented Callahan with the honorary membership.

N. Y. Playgrounds To Open by Force

New York, May 11 (AP).—Forcible entry by police was proposed today to open 142 New York playgrounds closed by Park Commissioner Robert Moses because of the removal of 400 WPA play directors.

Lester Stone, secretary to Mayor LaGuardia, said Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine had instructed Borough police commanders to break open any play areas found locked.

LaGuardia, who left the city last night for a trip West, said yesterday: "No playgrounds shall be closed while I am mayor of this city because of any jurisdiction differences arising."

Split Propeller May Be Cause Of Zep Crash

Fragments Discovered in Wreck by Commerce Investigators.

By the Associated Press.

Lakehurst, N. J., May 12.—The theory a whirling propeller blade may have broken and pierced the fabric covering of the dirigible Hindenburg, thus starting the hydrogen explosion, was considered tonight by a Commerce Department board investigating the cause of the disaster in which 35 persons died.

Inspecting the airship's wreckage at the close of the day's hearing, members of the board found pieces of a wooden propeller blade and announced they would call a wood expert in an attempt to put them together and determine which of the Zeppelin's 16 blades they were from.

Discovery of the wooden fragments followed questioning today by which the board sought to learn whether a "cracking" sound before the explosion might have been caused by a piece of wood hurled through the ship's frame.

To Study Photographs.

The board indicated it would again view photographs in an effort to learn whether all the propellers were intact before the dirigible struck the ground.

The pieces of blade, little charred by fire, were found within the wreckage. Flung through the ship's envelope, they might have contacted electric wires and caused a spark, the board theorized.

South Trimble, jr., Commerce Department solicitor and chairman of the board, asked whether the report that several eyewitnesses saw something resembling a broken propeller crash through the ship's structure had prompted the direction of today's questioning, refused to comment.

No Evidence of Bomb.

A sabotage theory—one of the many advanced since the disaster—was dealt a blow by a report of New York police bomb and explosive experts that they had found no evidence in the wreckage to indicate a bomb or any other form of explosive figured in the blast.

While the bomb and explosive experts were conducting their investigations, two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents sat through the day's hearing.

The propeller blade theory followed testimony by a Navy officer atop the mooring mast that the first thing he saw and heard "was the crack of the metal structure, and I saw it came outside the ship."

"It seemed to come with great force," said Lieut. Benjamin May. "It just appeared that the side of the ship collapsed, and long, thin streaks of fire came out horizontally."

"There was a muffled explosion," he said, adding that "it was something not inclosed."

Son of Employer Leading Strikers

Pawtucket, R. I., May 12 (AP).—An 18-year-old youth yesterday led striking pickets at his father's factory because he was refused a $3 weekly raise.

The plant owner, Henry Douglas, revealed the youthful picket leader now stands to inherit the plant some day.

"My will is all made out," he declared, "but I'm afraid I'll have to change it a bit."

Eugene Douglas, the son, said refusal of his father to grant the raise was one reason why workers in his father's plant, the New England Paper Tube Co., walked out Monday.

The other reason, he said, was refusal of his father and uncle, Kenneth Douglas, to recognize the American Federation of Labor as the bargaining agency for the plant employes.

Rail Retirement Bill Is Offered

Interests of railroad workers were further advanced Tuesday with introduction of a liberalized substitute railroad retirement bill by Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, and Representative Robert Crosser (Democrat), Ohio.

The measure will accompany the substitute rail pension tax bill introduced several weeks ago by Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The Wagner-Crosser bill establishes a $40 monthly minimum annuity, there being none at present; permits a worker permanently disabled to retire at 60 though having less than 30 years' service, and sets 60 instead of 50 as the age when an employe with 30 years' service may retire with a reduction of one-fifteenth in wages for each year he is under 65. It also would provide death benefits equal to 4 per cent of the aggregate compensation after January 1, 1937, regardless of the time of death and irrespective of whether the worker is eligible for a pension.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Husband Neglects and Abuses His Wife; Adores Their Son; Caters to Mother; Wife Asks What to Do.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 22 years old, married and have an adorable son aged 2. My husband is 28. We were deeply in love until the baby was old enough to walk and talk. Then my husband began almost to worship him and I was left out of the picture. We had rooms in a private home until the baby began walking and making quite a bit of noise. So that he would not disturb others we took a house, and my husband's mother and sister came to live with us, agreeing to pay $5 a week each for room and board.

• • • •

To make matters worse, my mother-in-law will not pay her way, although she makes $72 a month and could not get cheaper room and board anywhere in the city. She has her hair and nails done every week and gets a new dress nearly every week. My husband will not ask her to leave so that we can get another roomer. He makes only $28 a week and after we pay the bills there isn't a penny left over for anything. I have had only two dresses and three pairs of shoes in three years. The baby gets everything he needs, regardless.

• • • •

The other evening we were on the street talking to friends when the baby fell down, although he didn't even cry. My husband cursed me at the top of his voice. I know everyone in the block heard him. Then he turned and slapped me across the face twice. I keep my home clean, also the baby, and prepare very good meals. I've tried to be a good wife yet I get nothing but knocks for it.

• • • •

Miss Haworth, do you think I should continue to live with my husband under such conditions? The one and only thing that is keeping me is the baby. Should I ask my mother-in-law to move? Or let her remain while I go without the necessities of life in order to please my husband? I can't stand the strain much longer. I've lost 30 pounds since last October from worry, and am so nervous I cry myself to sleep many nights. Every word I have written is the gospel truth and I'm praying you may help me. Yours truly,

BEWILDERED.

Tomorrow's Problem

Midshipman who believes himself better suited to civilian than to Navy life, who studies at United States Naval Academy only to please his father, asks what to do under the circumstances. His question will be discussed here tomrorow. This column appears Sunday as well as daily.

Demand Consideration.

DEAR BEWILDERED: It is my belief that any young wife who meekly submits to financial and affectional neglect and physical brutality is asking for—and going to receive—more of the same sort of treatment. I think it is far better to fight for one's rights—when injustice is done—than to permit one's self to be walked on, and over, without spirited protest.

• • • •

I'll wager most of your trouble is mother-in-law trouble. It is far more likely her influence in your home (entirely aside from her failure to keep up her end of the financial arrangement) has estranged your husband, rather than that his devotion to the child has done it. You have said, indeed, that it was just about the time that you took the house—and took her in—that his neglect began.

• • • •

Tell her to leave, by all means, if you think it will do any good. It may provoke a bitter quarrel with your husband; he may champion his mother; but even so you might as well assert yourself as an adult to be reckoned with; one who stubbornly lays claim to certain self-respecting rights as a wife, mother and grown woman. As a faithful, considerate wife; a good and thrifty housekeeper; a careful, devoted mother, you are more than earning the right to run your home more for your own pleasure than for your in-laws' convenience.

• • • •

Your husband is devoted to his son, you say. If so, he cannot be blind to the excellent care you give the child. Do you suppose any housekeeper he might employ would give the child, and his home, the same good care you do—in exchange for food, shelter, abuse nad two dresses and three pairs of shoes in three years? No, indeed. She'd take charity first. Do you suppose his mother would? I daresay she wouldn't take over the child's care at any price. Legends to the contrary, the average grandmother prefers almost any occupation to that of baby-tending her grandchildren. Do you suppose either your husband or his mother thank you for making a slave of yourself? Not at all. They despise you for it. For these reasons, you have little to lose, and much to gain, in striking for more consideration.

• • • •

If they ignore your demands; if your mother-in-law continues to sponge off her son at your expense, you should give serious thought to getting a job and placing the child in nursery school during the day. Not knowing your background, resources or capabilities, I cannot advise you to leave your husband. This would be inadvisable unless you can support yourself and the child, unless you have sufficient grounds for divorce or separate maintenance, and unless you can prove your fitness to have custody of the child. Otherwise, you might lose both home and child.

• • • •

I suggest you talk over your problem with authorities at the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1464 Columbia road northwest, telephone ADams 1033. Miss Beulah Smith, director, will give you an appointment, and a talk with Dr. Elmer Klein, the psychiatrist, might unearth unsuspected reasons for your husband's recent neglect. If his love for you could be restored, he might voluntarily concede you greater tenderness, consideration and respect. If divorce or separation seems the only solution, consult the Legal Aid Bureau, at 1010 Vermont avenue, in the Denrike Building. Both organizations give free service.

PATTERN 354

A JEWEL of a frock with just that designed-for-you look that makes a dainty model "'specially yours," is Pattern 354! Claire Tilden backs the vogue for dainty femininity this summer with this darling of an afternoon frock that's sure to make all who wear it look their prettiest! Perfect for afternoon and porch wear, you'll love the effect of the double tier of frills that "sets off" the becoming round yoke, and find a dainty flower just the thing for an added note of daintiness! Uprising flared skirt and demure bow-sash complete this picture of easily made charm, while crisp dignity or voile will also add their share of flattery! Detailed sewing guide accompanies this pattern.

Pattern 354 is cut in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (preferably coins) for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number.

The Summer Coat—Jigger or Princess

The white coat, which is becoming dominant on the fashion scene, is shown below in its latest version—the princess style. Note the wide lapels with pockets high on the garment. Appropriate either with white or deep toned summer frocks.

White Coat Vitally Essential In Milady's Summer Wardrobe

Many Varieties Suitable for Town, Country Wear; Woolens Are Good and Jackets of Cotton Also Gain Popularity.

The following article is one of a series on summer fashion trends by The Post's Fashion Editor, who is surveying the new styles at the merchandise markets.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The white coat is indispensable in the summer wardrobe, whether or not you expect to stay in town, commute from town to country, or happen to be planning your vacation clothes. White coats this season have borrowed from just about every influence and trend in the summer collections. Consequently they are styled to accompany every type of frock and suit.

Fitted silhuettes may be topped by white coats of the same styling, stressing princess lines. Suits and informal frocks of the spectator sports classification are accompanied by white coats of the swagger type—the popular jigger coat being a smart choice, especially by the younger women. Generally speaking, the smartest white coats are untrimmed, some have voluminous collars of white fox.

Woolens Versus Cottons.

Aside from the white woolen coats, there are white coats and jackets fashioned of cottons in all of the 1,0001 varieties, and of heavy silks and synthetic materials. There is a decided trend this season, however, to classify the chic white coat as a casual garment, rather than a dress-up topping, as of former years.

Pockets are everywhere, regardless of the styling of the coat. Slit pockets anchored at odd angles in twos and fours, and numerous pockets are placed high on the garment, near the shoulders. Pockets are regarded by all designers as most important as a decorative medium. Stitching also adds swank and piquancy to many of the smartest white woolen coats; wide lapels are other tremendous trifles which give a distinguishing look to an otherwise simple coat.

Accompany All Outfits.

White coats not only accompany all-white costumes, but also complement deep-tone shades and pastel tints. For a dramatic outfit, try wearing your white coat with all-black, navy or brown frocks. This is considered very ultra. For cruise wear, the white woolen coat is as smart to top cotton or silk frocks, as it is comfortable, on shipboard. For cool summer evenings in town, the indispensable white woolen topping is also recommended.

For the beach and resort wear, to go with sports clothes, there are gay little white coats of canvas and similar informal cottons. They top bathing and play suits, slacks and the like. Besides the swagger cut of these casual coats, odd buttons are a clever accent. Match your white coat with a white hat of suitable material and style. There are clever off-the-face white felts; gay berets worn back on the head, calots, brimless turbans, madcaps of felt and fabrics.

Talk and Make Friends

It's no accident that she's the most amusing talker in her crowd. She noticed that conversation is an art that can be learned. So she studied it.

Tongue-tied Jill longs to be a good conversationalist, too. But she spends her time beating herself. "What a dud I am. Why can't I think of something to say. Why do I always have to act as if the cat's got my tongue?"

Right there Jill reveals her shortcoming. She's thinking about herself—not about interesting the others. She should join Ann's circle and listen. She'd see how Ann fascinates people by passing out a bit of praise, asking opinions, leading others into adding bright remarks to make the conversation sparkle, mentioning their special interests and hobbies.

"Jack!" Ann begins enthusiastically, "You're marvelous at the rumba! Smooth as silk compared to those clowning brothers I saw in the movies. Did you see the picture, Ned? . . . Remember how they almost threw their hip out of joint? . . . By the way, did you like the new star? . . . (Cue for Ned to give his opinion of feminine movie stars) . . . I wish you'd seen the picture, Jack, I'm sure you, with your passion for trick photography, could have figured out how they took those underwater shots of deep-sea divers. Do you suppose they were faked?"

Send 15 cents for your booklet, "Improving Your Conversation," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Children Have a Right To Resent New Babies

Children have a right to resent new babies in the family, according to Prof. John Dollard, of the Yale Institute of Human Relations.

Prof. Dollard, according to the Associated Press, told social workers at the recent annual Institute on Human Relations that parents should "do extra things" to make an older child feel that he is not replaced in their affections when a new baby comes.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Spring Hay Fever.

It looks as if American hay fever were going to conquer the world. This country has the worst fall hay fever in the world, but we are getting reports from Denmark that plants causing autumnal hay fever in the United States have found their way into Denmark through imported grass seed. Western ragweed has gained entrance there through imported chicken feed. It is a hardy variety, and it is feared that it will become one of the common weeds in Denmark. The sad part of it is the case of a patient, who is reported to have had to leave the United States on account of hay fever and went back to his native Denmark. There he was quite comfortable until two years ago, when his sensitivity showed up again.

Our spring hay fever is no worse and no better than anybody's else. The first account of hay fever came from John Bostock, an Englishman, who described his own case in 1819, it being of the vernal or spring type.

Most of the spring cases are due to the pollen of the grasses; in early May some of the trees—elm, poplar, maple, oak, sycamore, walnut, elder and birch. It is difficult to see how some of these trees can be classified as the cause of hay fever, because the pollen is so tenacious and sticky. In late spring, timothy, orchard grass, blue grass and red top grass in this country are the usual causes.

It is time to remind you, therefore, that the period of pre-seasonal preventive treatment is at hand. Doctors who specialize in this treatment are somewhat divided as to whether the pre-seasonal or the perennial treatment is best. The perennial treatment means that immunization should take place all through the year. Pre-seasonal treatment means immunization for about three or four weeks before the attack is expected.

Questions From Readers.

R. E. Y.: "(1) Will you kindly give a list showing what foods produce an acid or alkaline reaction in the body? (2) Are citrus fruits helpful in preventing an acid condition which might make it easier for a cold to gain headway? (3) Do certain fruits cause cold sores or cankers?"

Answer: (1) Foods which produce an acid reaction are white bread, whole wheat bread, dried sweet corn, crackers, cranberries, eggs, egg white, egg yolk, haddock, pike, lean beef, chicken, frog, lean pork, rabbit, veal, oysters, oatmeal, peanuts, prunes, plums and rice. Those which produce an alkaline reaction are almonds, apples, asparagus, bananas, dried beans, dried lima beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, chestnuts, dried currants, lemons, lettuce, cow's milk, muskmelon, oranges, peaches, dried peas, potatoes, radishes, raisins and turnips. (2) Citrus fruits are helpful in preventing an acid condition, but they have no influence on colds. (3) Fruits do not prevent cold sores or cankers.

Editor's note—Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending ten cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of The Washington Post. The pamphlets are "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Sheath, Lampshade Evening Frocks Share Spotlight

Wide horizontal bands, some shirred at top and bottom, are inserted through the middle of the full skirts. Puffs are set in lengthwise in the seams in the Godey print manner.

Many dresses fall into the don't-dress-for-dinner group designed to be worn by peeresses and commoners when formal dress begins to pall and ceremonials weigh too heavily on fair shoulders.

Molyneux launches a number of the latter in his summer collections. They have short skirts, schoolgirl necks and sleeves that are either long or lopped off near the shoulder. Choir boy caps, with veils that float off the back, top them.

7 Face Types Need Different Use of Make-Up

Hollywood Expert Explains Best Way to Achieve Oval Effect.

By Carolyn Abbott.

ACCORDING TO Pere Westmore, make-up expert of Hollywood, an honest woman will admit that nothing in this world interests her more than her own face. It's fun to see how a new hairline or a different lipstick will change it, and she wouldn't be human if she didn't study it before a mirror now and then and wonder if she was beginning to resemble Kay Francis or Olivia de Havilland.

Westmore has studied hundreds of faces in the course of his work and has discovered that every face falls into one of seven categories. The classifications are oval, round, square, oblong, triangular, inverted triangular and diamond-shaped. Kay Francis has an oval face, as has Olivia de Havilland. Other examples are Patricia Ellis as the round, Joan Blondell as the square, Anita Louise as the oblong, Ann Sheridan as the triangular, Josephine Hutchinson as the diamond, but at the moment there isn't an inverted triangular face in pictures.

All Have Make-Up Secrets.

Although all of these girls are famous beauties, they have make-up secrets of their own. Each uses make-up to make her face as oval as possible, since this is the perfect contour. The oval face may be rougeless and the most simple coiffure is advisable.

The girl with a round face applies her rouge in an oval, rather than a circle. She draws her mouth out a little wider than normal to reduce the width of her cheeks and arches her eyebrows to give length to her face.

The problem confronting the girl whose face is inclined to squarish lines is to make it appear rounder and longer. She lightly touches the squarest part of her jaw with rouge because red, believe it or not, plays down a line while powder highlights. Her lips and brows are roundly arched. She must beware of pulling her hair back to accent the corners of her forehead, but should have shadow curls or the least suggestion of bangs to help promote an oval.

Oblong Face Hints.

Westmore explains that the girl with the oblong face must make it appear wider and shorter, thus more oval. She must never part her hair in the middle, because this attracts the eye down the center of the face, giving the impression of greater length. Her rouge must be applied in a circle well under the the eyes and low on the cheek, but never too close to the nose. She must give her lipstick a twist that will turn the mouth up at the corners.

Girls with triangular or inverted triangular faces, according to Warner Brothers' master of make-up, must use the important rounding-out tricks, but must watch to keep the upper and lower parts of the face in balance. The diamond-shaped face has balance, but the points must be rouged to round them out. Hair must be arranged to give breadth to the forehead and to narrow the widest part of the face.

It may take days of practice and many sessions of putting on and taking off make-up to achieve this oval effect, but Westmore assures us that it is one of the most important steps to beauty and is worth the time of any girl beauty-bound.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 12.

WELL, our Little Soldiers have completed their big events of the spring, to the usual acclaim of doting parents and friends. Know about our Little Soldiers? They are the Knickerbocker Greys, the dandiest junior cadet corps in the world, probably. Red blood and blue fights for possession of their sturdy young arteries, and their officers nearly all bear honored names in the military or social history of our country.

ALICE HUGHES.

One fine Sunday afternoon, not very long ago, I saw our Little Soldiers march out of the Seventh Regiment Armory, which they use when their big brothers are not at their martial labors, and swing down sunny Fifth avenue on church parade. They were 165 strong, from fairly big to quite tiny, and they looked as cute as the littlest choir boys, carrying their little guns and marching at attention.

They turned in at stylish St. Thomas' Church, at Fifty-third street, where its rector and their chaplain, Dr. R. H. Brooks, told them not to be frightened, to have faith in themselves and to be careful not to acquire swelled heads. Then they marched up the avenue again in the fading light, toting their little guns, and into the armory.

Ladies along the curbing "oh-ed" and "ah-ed" with pure delight at the cunning smart appearance of our Little Soldiers, marching as to war. But there was one woman who saw the spectacle, at the very least, who couldn't get an "ah" out of her system with a pickax.

Of course she had made the mistake of thinking of days in 1917. But our Little Soldiers were not even alive then! It was quite another day!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—One of our nicest open-air eating places has hurled itself open for the warm season, the same being the Tavern On the Green in Central Park. It's our challenge to the lovely restaurants of the Bois de Boulagne of Paris—and take that, Paris! It really is a beautiful place, on the Park's west drive, and you'll do well to look in there. It is strategically placed at the start and finish of the bridle path, which gives it something of a sportin' dash, too . . . Speaking of that bridle path, we'll probably never top the recent adventure of the young lady who went a'cantering through one of our parks, only to have her rented mare foal en route . . .

Anne Nichols opened her revival of "Abie's Irish Rose" at the Little Theater here Monday night, for a reason I have not yet been able to think up. At any rate, it will give youngsters a chance to see the amazing show which holds the long-run championship of the American Theater. It will also give oldsters a chance to catch up on their spring reading.

• • • •

The same day saw the beginning of the racing season at Belmont, our only "social" race track, with the usual huge numbers of Whitneys, Wideners and Woodwards in attendance to see and to be seen. We have a couple of other tracks around town, too, but they are attended chiefly by people who like to see the hosses gallop and by those terrible creatures who just go to bet. Faugh!

Spring visitors who want to see the silver-plated boys and girls of the Park avenue set at play need only visit Armando's, a little ex-speakeasy on East Fifty-third street. One fast look, I think, will satisfy the most curious. My dear, how those children scream over their martinis!

With the ski tragedy of 1936-37, with its open winter, only a fading memory, local stores are now working ardently to propel the push-bike back into its popularity of old. Bicycle trains are again being run into the hills of New England, and if you haven't just the right costume you can't buy chips. Shorts are very nice for wheeling, and they do leave the legs bare so they can gash and bruise easily when one falls off! I think the motor car is here to stay!

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

"I married a Scotchman," wrote a reader with a problem. "He's just grand and lets me spend enough all told, but such a fancy budget as we have to keep! It gives me a headache, though I must admit that it works so that we always have plenty for the important things, with a margin left over at the end of the year.

"But it means that I have to be pretty canny in making plans before I buy—no haphazard notions go in our family.

New Bedroom Furniture.

"Right now we're furnishing our bedroom, and I'd appreciate a plan for purchasing the various things. Since we'll share this room, my problem is to have something that will not be too fussy for a man yet that I will enjoy, for I do love a really pretty bedroom. We've been using odds and ends of furniture. Now we're getting a suite and I've been looking at a French provincial style that I like a lot. What do you think of that idea? And would you give me suggestions for wallpaper, woodwork, rug, draperies and spread? I want everything decided on before I begin."

We liked the idea of French provincial furniture here very much. It has a sturdy, substantial quality about it that fits a man, yet charm enough for the lady of the house.

Why not select a scenic wallpaper, perhaps a toile de Jouy type, in red on a cream ground. Then have the woodwork done in powder blue, get a deeper blue plain rug, and repeat these two shades of blue in the bedspread (which could be a deeper blue candlewick for the top over a flounce of powder blue chintz). Have powder blue chintz draperies finished with deeper blue double ball fringe, then use tailored sheer curtains in cream. A pair of small slip-covered chairs in a quilted cotton, in natural color, would be smart finishes for the room. Though maybe your Scotchman wouldn't approve of that, as it isn't the most practical thing in the world. Cream slip covers, not quilted, could be washed more easily, so maybe they'd win on points.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the writer's bulletin, "Things to Make For the House." It includes patterns for making a bedspread, table doilies, a tablecloth and an afghan.

Presidents Of 32 Clubs Meet Here

Mrs. Biddle Presides as Annual Convention Sessions Open.

Resolution Presented to Indorse Bill Banning 'Nuisance' Plants.

Presidents of the 32 clubs of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, chairmen of departments and committees and District of Columbia Federation officers held the first sessions of their annual meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel yesterday morning and afternoon.

Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, president of the Federation, presided and reported informally on some of her experiences at the recent council meeting of the General Federation in Tulsa, although she will not make her formal report as president until this morning. Mrs. Biddle presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Biddle expressed staisfaction at the work being carried on by the District of Columbia clubs in providing entertainment for the women of the PWA sewing rooms. She stated that the report of the District of Columbia women on the menace to the cherry trees through plans for the Jefferson Memorial aroused much interest in Tulsa among women who plan to come to Washington to see the trees and wish to have them preserved.

Mrs. Elaine Eppley, chairman of the committee on water and waterways and delegate from the Federation to the D. C. Federation of Citizens Associations, offered a resolution indorsing the principle and aims of Senate bill 2286 to prohibit the use of buildings in the District of Columbia for manufacture or industry of a dangerous or nuisance nature. The resolution was indorsed by Mrs. Jason Waterman, chairman of the resolutions committee, and was passed unanimously.

Another interesting feature of Mrs. Eppley's report was the plan for restoration of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal as a recreation area and historic monument.

Mrs. Ernest Damiel, first vice president, reported on the annual card party and also emphasized the value of co-operation between the clubs. She stressed the importance of the federation's work in regard to the encouragement of fine arts.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, former president of the federation, was one of the special guests at yesterday's meeting.

Mrs. John L. Locker, of Takoma Park, reported on the work of the Junior Federation Woman's Club. Mrs. Biddle presented her with a junior pin.

Mrs. W. W. Husband, chairman of the American citizenship committee, reported her committee has been able to do effective work through the Americanization school.

Mrs. James Underwood, chairman of the committee on war veterans, reported on the work done in behalf of the veterans and donations of flowers, ice cream, games, cards, magazines, and other gifts by many of the clubs in the District Federation.

Mrs. Horace Phelps reported on the work for District representation.

The Chevy Chase Women's Democratic Club of Maryland held its annual card party at Brookville Tea House Monday. Prizes and refreshments were given to all who attended the party. Mrs. Robert Kline, jr., Mrs. Charles Beach and Mrs. Marc Phillips helped to plan the party.

The Washington Monument in Baltimore, surrounded by historic Mount Vernon square, was the scene of the annual flower market, which originated in Baltimore over 25 years ago, yesterday, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

There was a constant flow of entertainment, including an artists' exhibit with two entries by James Montgomery Flagg, voice auditions and special broadcasting all day long with all of the coronation proceedings, and special hot luncheon served under umbrella-shaded tables by members of the Baltimore Junior League. Boutonnieres were sold by girls in colorful smocks. There were goldfish, books, balloons, donkeys and ponies to ride, fortune tellers, marionette shows, and flowers everywhere, with seeds and everything that pertains to a garden.

The District Home Economics Association will meet tonight at the A. A. U. W., at 7 o'clock. Miss Edith M. Barger will be the guest speaker. She will talk on "Food Adventures in Many Lands."

Assists With Garden Party Plans

Harris & Ewing.

MISS VIRGINIA BERLE, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles K. Berle, is helping with plans for the garden party at the Army Medical Center at Walter Reed Hospital on May 22 for the benefit of the Memorial Chapel Guild and also to celebrate the birthday of the Grey Ladies of the American Red Cross.

Club to Honor Mrs. Roosevelt

75 Congress Group Giving Luncheon Tomorrow at Shoreham.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be guest of the Seventy-fifth Congress Club for the first time tomorrow when she attends the luncheon to be given in her honor at the Shoreham.

The club, consisting of wives of members serving their first term in Congress, have held three luncheons this season, but tomorrow's affair will be the climaxing event of their activities.

Mrs. John Murdock, president of the club, will introduce Mrs. Roosevelt, who will speak briefly. Mrs. Murdock, Mrs. Jerry O'Connell and Mrs. John J. Sparkman will assist Mrs. Harold G. Mosier, chairman of the hospitality committee, in receiving guests.

The Marine orchestra will play during the luncheon. Among the special guests in addition to Mrs. Roosevelt will be Mrs. Ford K. Ross, of Annapolis, who writes under a number of names including Leslie Ford and David Frome, and whose latest book, "Ill Met by Moonlight," was published recently.

Mrs. John Coffee is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Among those assisting are Mrs. Vincent F. Harrington, Mrs. Lewis M. Long and Mrs. Laurence F. Arnold.

Mrs. H. Jerry Voorhis, publicity chairman of the club, has as her committee Mrs. Luther V. Patrick and Mrs. Edwin V. Champion.

Senator and Mrs. Pepper Will Leave for Florida

Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper will leave today for Lakewood, Fla., where Senator Pepper will address the American Legion convention on Friday. They will be the week-end guests of Mrs. Pepper's parents in St. Petersburg. Monday Senator Pepper will participate in the memorial service in Tallahassee for the late United States Senators from Florida, Duncan U. Fletcher and Park Trammell.

Senator and Mrs. Pepper will return to their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel the middle of next week.

Honored at Luncheon.

Mrs. Thomas C. Dawson, who is leaving for Brazil May 19, was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Clarence W. Grosner. Mrs. Dawson's son is first secretary to the American Embassy in Brazil.

Benefit Party Set for May 22

Guild and Grey Ladies Are Sponsoring Walter Reed Garden Affair.

Judging from reservations already being made, a distinguished list of guests will attend the benefit bridge and garden party of the Chapel Guild of Walter Reed Memorial Hospital and the Grey Ladies of the Red Cross, to be held Saturday afternoon, May 22, in the Red Cross House and formal garden of the Army Medical Center.

Card playing in the early afternoon, a fashion show in the garden later and the climaxing feature—the official cutting of the huge birthday cake of the Grey Ladies—are on the entertainment schedule.

Refreshments made from choice recipes of Army women will be served in the garden, where cakes, rolls, candy and all sorts of dainties suitable for Sunday night tea, will be on sale. The rumor is going around that advance orders for cakes and pastries already are being taken by the refreshment committee. This group is headed by Mrs. Charles Robb, of the Gray Ladies, and Mrs. Henry C. Coburn, of the Chapel Guild.

Other members of the committee are Mrs. A. B. McKie, Mrs. Thomas F. Davis, Mrs. David B. Faust, Mrs. Daniel C. Campbell, Mrs. William Benton, Mrs. Eugene Campbell, Mrs. Lincoln F. Putnam, Miss Helen Clifford and Mrs. George Pryor, all of the Gray Ladies, are receiving donations of candy and cakes for the event. Army women who are also working on this part of the afternoon's attraction are Mrs. Charles K. Berle, Mrs. Martin DeFrenne, Mrs. Kreamer and Mrs. William H. Day.

Reservations for the event, which is for the joint benefit of the Memorial Chapel Guild and the Army Relief Society, may be made with Mrs. Victor N. Meddis, Mrs. Ralph Murrell, Mrs. Rufus L. Holt, or at Walter Reed Hospital.

Miss Holland Will Be Wed Here Today

Brother to Officiate at Ceremony; Couple to Go Abroad.

The Rev. Robert E. Holland, will officiate today at the wedding of his sister, Miss Mary G. Holland, to Maj. James V. Demarest, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Demarest, of New York. The ceremony will take place at 9 o'clock this morning at Gonzaga College Chapel, and will be followed by a breakfast at the Shoreham. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Joseph L. Holland, of Washington, and for the last few years has been making her home in New York.

Her father will give her in marriage. She has chosen for the occasion a pale rose sheer frock trimmed with lace with which she will wear beige accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Miss Virginia E. Holland will serve as her sister's maid of honor, wearing a navy blue sheer frock with a long cape trimmed in white, and a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ruth M. Martin and Mrs. H. D. Vazzana will serve as bridesmaids, wearing frocks of navy blue sheer and talisman roses.

The father of the bridegroom will act as best man, and the ushers will be Mr. Foster B. Kanatzer and Dr. Hugh D. Vazzana.

Immediately after the wedding breakfast Maj. Demarest and his bride will leave for a wedding trip to Europe, the latter wearing a traveling gown of brown crepe. On their return they will reside in New York.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding will be Mrs. K. K. Drake, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Catherine Murphy, of Boston. The Rev. Aloysius Hogan, dean of the graduate school of Georgetown University, also will be present

The bride attended Columbia University and New York University. She is a granddaughter of the late Gen. Michael Mortimer Kelliher, of the Union Army.

Miss Bemiss Wed To William Crump

The wedding of Miss Cyane Williams Bemiss, daughter of Mrs. Eli Lockert Bemiss and the late Mr. Bemiss, to Mr. William Wood Crump, son of Mrs. Beverley T. Crump and the late Judge Crump, took place Monday afternoon in the garden of Brookbury, the bride's home in Chesterfield County, Va. The Rev. Beverley Dandridge Tucker, rector of St. Paul's Church, Richmond, and the Rev. Charles W. Sheerin, rector of St. Paul's Church, Chattanooga, Tenn., were the officiating ministers.

Miss Cyane Bemiss Mason was the maid of honor and only attendant. Mr. Beverley Crump Pratt, of Washington, served as Mr. Crump's best man.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. Crump and his bride left for their wedding tour. They will reside after June 1 in Richmond.

College Women To Present Play

Smith Club Selects May 20 for Its Benefit Performance.

Members of the Washington Smith College Club have selected Thursday evening, May 20, as the date of their performance of "The Buntling Ball," an old-fashioned comedy patterned after a Greek play, with choruses and only one setting throughout. The play will be held in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets, at 8:15. Proceeds will go toward the Smith College scholarship fund.

The play deals with a Victorian mother and her social-climbing daughter and has a chorus of wall flowers, young men about town, and "anglomaniacs." The part of Mrs. Buntling, the mother, will be taken by Miss Wilhelmina Allnutt, that of her daughter by Miss Sally Atwood. Other members of the cast include Miss Helen Litz, Miss Betty Borst and Miss Hilarione Duhamel. Miss Sally Stewart is directing the production.

Mrs. Kenneth Holland is leading the chorus. Others taking part are Miss Madelien Evans, Mrs. John Hart, Miss Betty Beale, Miss Virginia McClung, Miss Seleste Whelan, Miss Rose Page, Mrs. Evan Wilson, Miss Helen Lambert, Miss Polly Leake and Miss Elizabeth Whitney.

The Ambassador of Mexico, Senor Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera was host at an informal reception yesterday morning at the embassy following the signing of the peace and amity treaty between Mexico and Finland. The guest were the Minister of Finland, Mr. Eero Jarnefelt and the members of the two staffs.

Tour Includes Holland Home

Attractive Colonial Residence Among Fifteen Estates to Be Viewed.

After weeks of uncertainty society has once again been promised the opportunity to visit the attractive colonial home of Mrs. Berenice Fleming Holland in historic Alexandria. When the list of homes on the tour scheduled for Saturday first came out there was some doubt as to whether or not Mrs. Holland would permit the addition of her house and garden to it.

The tour of old homes, which is sponsored by the Rector's Aid Society of St. Paul's Church, will be an interesting event when 15 charming old estates will be on view. Mrs. Albert Smoot and Mrs. Wilmer Waller will be in charge of tea and will be assisted by Miss Agnes Washington, Miss Ann Carter Waller, Miss Lisa Lindsay, Miss Sue Preston, Miss Agatha Walker, Miss Lucy Anderson, Miss Hazel Hook, Miss Margaret Eggborn and Mrs. Thomas Cochran, Mrs. Isaac Greeg, Mrs. O. M. Jones, Mrs. F. E. Bankhages 3d, Mrs. C. C. Conser and Mrs. Ellett Cabell, jr.

Mrs. Robert to Ride In Wilmington Show

Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., will leave Wednesday to take part in the horse show at Wilmington, Del. Last year she rode in one of the classes bareback dressed in a circus rider's costume.

Mr. Robert will accompany Mrs. Robert, and Thursday evening will attend a dinner of the Farmers Club as the guest of Mr. Edward Stotesbury, for whom he and Mrs. Robert entertained at a large dance earlier in the month. Mrs. Robert will stop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury after the Wilmington Horse Show is ended, returning to Washington May 24.

Date Is Selected For Benefit Tea

St. Gertrude's Guild Fete Set for Afternoon of May 24.

Plans are almost completed for the spring bridge tea to be given for benefit of St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts at the Wardman Park Hotel, Monday afternoon, May 24.

For years one of the outstanding features of this party has been the table of homemade candies and cakes. Mrs. Francis Callahan heads the committee in charge of this feature. She will be assisted by Mrs. Joseph Tumulty, Mrs. Robert Cahill, Mrs. Pere A. Wilmer, Mrs. Frederick Stohlman, Mrs. Philip Caulfield, Miss Catherine Tumulty, Miss Peggy Wilmer, Miss Martha Clare Carrity, Miss Mary Margaret Giegengack, Miss Peggy Walsh, Miss Nancy Callahan, Miss Jane O'Donnell, Miss Florence Cahill, Miss Geraldine Garrity, Mrs. Frank Slingluff, Miss Laura May Norris, Miss Mary Jane Cahill, Miss Nancy McEnerney, Miss Mary Stohlman and Master Murray Callahan.

Mrs. James Edward Duke is chairman of the committee and Mrs. August Giegengack is in charge of tickets.

Among others who are taking an active interest in planning for the party are Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, president of St. Gertrude's Guild; Mrs. Claude Fuller, Mrs. Paul Maloney, Mrs. John Camack, sr., Mrs. Daniel Joseph Callahan, Mrs. Raymond Francis Garrity, Mrs. Milton Ailes, Mrs. James Garnier Haskell, Mrs. Ellis Surles, Miss Mary Sweeney and Mrs. Eugene Tighe.

Stopping at Wardman Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierce H. Calfee, of Beckley, W. Va., will be at the Wardman Parw Hotel while in the Capital for several days.

Sir Ronald, Lady Lindsay Hosts at Brilliant Fete

By Dudley Harmon.

Just as King George's hectic program drew to a close in London's evening, his coronation was celebrated in Washington yesterday afternoon with a garden party given by the British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay. The "Who's Who" of official society in the Capital turned out some 1,500 strong—even the Secretary of State, Mr. Cordull Hull, whose appearances at social functions is so rare as to come under the heading of news.

Sir Ronald was luckier in his weather yesterday than British Ambassadors have been in the past. As a rule, it usually rains whenever an al fresco fete is planned at the embassy. But yesterday the great garden behind the embassy was at its best. In England it's supposed to require a hundred years to make a good lawn, but that of the embassy boasts the greenest and most velvety grass imaginable. Hidden behind shrubbery yesterday were musicians who played everything from "God Save the King" to old-fashioned waltzes. At one end of the lawn was a refreshment booth under a marquee, where fruit punch, ices, cakes and sandwiches, paper thin, were served. Up the steps to the right is a tennis court—Sir Ronald loves the game—and a small swimming pool, which yesterday was green and glittering in the sun.

Coronation Conversation.

Since the garden party was in celebration of the coronation of King George VI, it was natural that conversation should center about this event. Mrs. Frank Heywood, wife of the Military Attache of the Embassy, said she'd gotten up at 4 o'clock in the morning to hear the broadcast. But Mrs. Sol Bloom out-Britished the British—she was up at 2 a. m. sharp, too excited to sleep.

The Portuguese Minister, Dr. de Bianchi, and the Swiss Minister, Mr. Marc Peter, created a sensation yesterday by popping from behind bushes and taking movies of the guests. They especially seemed to enjoy filming newspaper reporters, explaining that it was about time the tables were turned.

A simplicity of dress among the ladies present was a noticeable feature of the afternoon, for the long, sweeping frocks are characteristic of many garden parties in England.

Lady Lindsay's Costume.

Lady Lindsay chose a tailored frock in a tea rose shade, with a three-quarter length coat of the same material and brown accessories. Miss Irene Boyle, who makes her home at the embassy, wore a simple navy blue dress with a large hat of natural-colored straw, and all the ladies of the embassy staff were dressed in similar fashion.

The men almost outshone the women yesterday in sartorial splendor and there were dozens of glistening high hats, frock coats and striped trousers. The most admired, of course, was the man in full Highlander rig who stood at the door, complete with busby and sporon. This he always wears when on duty at the embassy.

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes and Mme. Hurban, wife of the Czechoslovakian Minister, were among the few who chose long gowns for the occasion.

Chief Justice Hughes There.

Mrs. Hughes, who was accompanied by the Chief Justice, wore a graceful frock of flowered chiffon and a small black hat trimmed with flowers around the brim.

Mrs. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, wore the gown she had made last year to wear when she was presented at the first garden party of the season at Buckingham Palace—a frock of black net embroidered in white. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was also in black and white, and was accompanied by Mrs. Edwin Meredith, whose late husband was one-time Secretary of Agriculture. Miss Frances Perkins, with her daughter, Miss Suzanne Wilson, and Mrs. Morgenthau, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, in gray pleated silk and silver foxes, were also present.

One of the smartest outfits, and one of the simplest, was the lightweight wool suit worn by Mrs. Cordell Hull. A pale gray in color, it had a three-quarter length tailored coat trimmed in fur of the same shade.

Herr Hans Luther Attends.

The Hindenburg disaster has prevented the German Ambassador, Herr Hans Luther, from attending social affairs of late, but yesterday he was present with the members of his staff. The Naval Attache, Rear Admiral Robert Witthoeft Emden, was busy trying to answer questions about the recent marriage of the First Secretary, Dr. Meyer, but could give no news other than that the erstwhile bachelor had handed in his resignation.

Mrs. Key Pittman chatted with Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, and others present from "up on the Hill" included Senator and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis—she wore a simple print frock in green and black; Senator and Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, Senator Arthur Capper and Representatives Edith Nourse Rogers, Mary T. Norton and Caroline O'Day, who wore her favorite black, this time unrelieved by any touch of color.

Chic Mme. Bonnet.

Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, nobly upheld her country's reputation for chic in a bright-colored linen redingote over a simple black frock, and an off-the-face black hat. M. Bonnet accompanied her. To name the other ambassadors and ministers there would be like reading the diplomatic "blue book." All of them seemed to be there, even the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de los Rios, who seldom attend any of the big functions. They were accompanied by their young and pretty daughter, Senorita Alaura de los Rios.

From Army and Navy sets came the Judge Advocate General of the Navy and Mrs. Rowcliffe, Gen. and Mrs. Peyton March, Maj. and Mrs. John Thomason—she was smart in navy blue with touches of red; Mrs. Gerald Linke, with her sister, Mrs. Buchanan; Mrs. William D. Brereton, wife of Commander Brereton, with her pretty daughters, Helen and Nancy, and Miss Carolyn Chantry.

Mrs. Tydings' Unique Chapeau.

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Solicitor General, arrived with Mrs. James Helm, Mrs. Roosevelt's social secretary. From the State Department came, among others, the Assistant Secretary, Mr. R. Walton Moore, with his two sisters, the Misses Moore; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Southgate, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill, and Mr. and Mrs. John Farr Simmons, with the former's mother, Mrs. Edwin Simmons.

The unique hat at the event—in a season when designers seem to be outdoing themselves in this line—was worn by Mrs. Millard Tydings. Seemingly made of celluloid, which glittered in the sun's rays, it had a broad brim and was trimmed with flowers. Mrs. Tydings was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Emlen Knight Davies.

Others among the 1,500 guests were Miss Olivia Stokes, who came with Miss Elizabeth Sibley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley; Mr. Denys Smith, Mr. Edward Weintal, Mr. Paul Hasslocher, of the Brazilian Embassy; Frau Scholz, of the German Embassy; Mr. Jules Henry and M. and Mme. Charles Saint, of the French Embassy; Judge and Mrs. Ernest Van Fossan, and many, many more.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet entertained at a dinner last evening at the embassy in honor of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau. There were 26 guests, among them the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Shoppers Units To Give 2 Teas

Georgetown and Alexandria Groups to Entertain Tomorrow.

The Georgetown and Alexandria committees of the Washington League of Woman Shoppers will give two teas tomorrow for old, more recent and potential members. On Alexandria tea wil be served from 5 until 6 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Charles Wood Collier, 215 Jefferson street, and Mrs. Gordon Dunthorne will entertain guests at 4:30 o'clock at her Georgetown home, 3304 N street.

The latter will be assisted by Mrs. Catherine Filene Shouse, Miss Sylvia Meyer and Mrs. Dean Acheson. Mrs. Collier wil have assisting her members of the Alexandria committee, which includes Mrs. John Collier, wife of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs; Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler Colman, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler; Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, Mrs. Clifford J. Durr, Mrs. James M. Landis, wife of the retiring chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission; Mrs. Helen Hill Miller, Mrs. Jerry Voorhis, Mrs. Howard Westwood and Mrs. Alexandria Zabriskie.

The age of the Washington League of Women Shopers can still be measured in months, but it has attracted a distinguished list of sponsors—among them Representative Caroline O'Day, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mary Anderson, Emily Newell Blair, Mrs. Lester Buchanan, Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Mrs. Worth Daniels, Dorothy Detzer, Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, Marion Harron, Mrs. Leon Henderson, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Josephine Roche and Mrs. Huston Thompson.

Leaves for South.

Mrs. S. Q. Myers, of Lenoir, N. C., who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Norma Cheatham at Stoneleigh Court, will leave this morning accompanied by her daughter and Miss Doris McClelland, daughter of Representative John McClelland, of Oklahoma, for North Carolina.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

Sunday will be diplomatic night at the National for the opening night of "Lost Horizon," the film version of that great book which started us all talking about it when it made its appearance just about two and a half years ago.

The Britishers here, including the Counselor of the Embassy and Mrs. Mallet, the Frank Reynolds and the F. C. Bradleys, have gotten together and made unbreakable plans to be there. As you remember from the book, the hero is a young man who is about to return to England to assume his duties as the keystone man in the foreign relations circles. Naturally, our friends from the land of John Bull are interested.

* * * *

Mrs. Fred Biermann and Mrs. Larry Ruble, who are two of the motoringest people we have ever known, are back again. After having a regular home-town week in their Iowa homes, they started back here at 9:49 o'clock one morning and were safe and sound in their Washington domiciles at five minutes to seven the following evening. That is some traveling. No wonder they have dust storms out in the West!

Mrs. Bierman, who loves to motor, and spends the months when the Representative is here busy up "on the hill" practically commuting between Iowa and the District, always makes at least three trips a season. This time having only made two (that puts the rest of us to complete and utter shame) she is worrying over the third and when it is to be made.

* * * *

Alice Noel Tuckerman, the traveling debutante, is home again. This time from New York, where she spent several days and nights crowded with excitement, theaters and parties with the Randall Creels—(she was Alexandra Gardiner, remember?) We sometimes wonder how Alice manages to get so many places at seemingly the same time, but then we suspect that she comes by her love of gadding quite naturally. Mrs. Tuckerman, who has been in Philadelphia with Mrs. Jansen Haines (she is the president of the Colonial Dames of Philadelphia), is another returning to the hearth of Tuxeden, the Tuckerman home.

Maria Whitehurst's party for Elizabeth West (no relation to Mae, but twice as attractive) and Helen Lebby—those two Southern gals who have quite won Washington's collective heart—was a huge success. Here goes some whirlographs—Maria, in a most unusual white wooley afternoon frock, quaint neckline, puffed sleeves and embroidyered now and then with clusters of luscious red cherries . . .

Mrs. Whitehurst, looking much too young and vivacious to be the mother of the hostess, attractively attired in cream beige . . .

Melvin Hazen and Col. Daniel Sultan, both District of Columbia Commissioners, accounting for the presence of license Nos. 1 and 3 parked at the curb outside . . .

Cole McFarland telling of his plans to go to New York to see his twin sister, Maryanne sail for Honolulu . . .

The number of young chaps, including Coney McLean, who startled us by appearing in black and white evening attire, and each one carefully explaining to us that they were continuing on to a very formal dinner . . .

Mary K. Spinks and Mary Patterson both in chic spring outfits . . .

Everyone staying and staying until the hands of the clock fairly screamed that it was high time to leave for the dinner.

Meg McMullen is entertaining for the girls this afternoon at a cocktail party in her parents' apartment at the Wyoming. Meg, by the way, has suddenly taken an interest in modeling, as all our fair young things seem to be doing. From what we hear she will be sporting the latest in summer finery around tomorrow at noon out at the Shoreham. That ought to be worth seeing.

Corps of Envoys Attends Ceremonies at Cathedral

Rites Conducted in Connection With Coronation; Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay, Other Diplomats Present.

By Lynda Reeve.

AS THE first persons arrived at the cathedral yesterday morning to attend the services for the coronation of their majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth they found a scene to be remembered. The cathedral, standing tall and commanding in the sunlight—the surrounding green lawns—and as a final, unusual touch Mr. Robert Bruce and Mr. James Garrioch, in their colorful Scotch plaids, waited at the foot of the long flight of steps.

Inside the cathedral flags hung from the high-vaulted ceiling and the sun shining through the stained glass windows sent rainbow shafts down on the assemblage. Upon the arrival of the British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay (she was wearing a becoming white crepe frock printed in a varicolored floral design, a black cloth coat of simple design and small narrow-brimmed black straw hat) and the Minister of Canada, Sir Herbert Marler, Bishop James Freeman made his way down the long center aisle to the altar. He was preceded by the choir. These bright-faced youngsters, clad in white surplices, their eyes solemnly on their books, slowly walked to the altar singing the Processional. Two of them carried flags—the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes—which were placed at the altar for the ceremony.

Among those representing the official set were a former First Lady, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wearing a navy blue coat collared in beige fox and a beret-styled hat of blue glossy straw; Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, attired in chic black with an orchid fastened to her silver fox scarf, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Southgate.

Others seen were the Ambassador of China, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze; the Counselor of the German Embassy, Herr Hans Thomsen, who was repsenting Ambassador Luther, now in New York; the Minister of Austria, Mr. Edgar Prochnik; the Minister of Portugal and Mme. Bianchi, the latter in black with a small "pill box" hat of combined silk and straw; the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fotitch, the latter in soft brown with a cape of azure fox; the Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis, the latter in cocoa brown; the Minister of Lithuania and Mme. Zadeikis, she costumed in a bolero jacket-frock of black and white printed crepe; the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila; the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Otto Wadsted; the Minister of Greece, Mr. Demetrios Sicilianos; Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, in a dainty blue print with trim little straw sailor and full-backed coat; Mrs. John Meehan in beige with a terra cotta colored rought straw hat; Mrs. Bruce Wallace in honey colored wool crepe with a wide-brimmed hat of brown moire; Miss Wylla Magee, attired in a dashing green and brown printed silk, and Mrs. Herman Feldman, in smartly severe black with touches of white at the throat.

Also the Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. Mallet (she had on a gray and black print with a small black baku hat); the Naval Attache and Mrs. F. C. Bradley, the latter wearing a pale greenish-blue ensemble with a picture hat of chocolate brown; the Financial Counselor, Mr. E. N. R. Trentham, Mr. Philip Mainwaring Broadmead, Mr. Philip Broad, Maj. and Mrs. Frank Heywood, the latter attired in a black frock and shallow-crowned sailor; Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, in a black cape ensemble with a tall hat of black summer velvet; Mr. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Hurban, she completing her black costume with a handsome silver fox cape; Mrs. Seth Williams, in dark brown; Miss Fontaine Flannery, Mr. Benjamin Plunkett, Mrs. Nina K. Trible in a gray tailleur with dark blue accessories, and the First Secretary of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney.

Preakness Ball Heads Calendar For Week-End

Dance Set for Saturday Night in Armory at Baltimore.

Again Washington society is anticipating a "horsey" week-end. This time with the Preakness, which runs neck and neck with the Kentucky Derby in the race for social importance, bringing Baltimore into the spotlight.

The Preakness ball, which was inaugurated only last year, will be held Saturday night in the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore. One of the important features of the ball will be the colorful pageant at which Miss Ann McAdoo will be crowned Preakness Queen. Among her attendants will be Miss Frances Samuels and Miss Jane Watters.

Gov. and Mrs. Harry Nice head the list of patrons. Others include Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Senator and Mrs. George L. Radcliffe, Mayor and Mrs. Howard T. Jackson, Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson and Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Johnston.

Also Admiral and Mrs. David Foote Sellers, Mr. John K. Shaw, jr., Mr. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. John Winslow Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. Ral Parr and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Warfield, jr.

BURKE WINS CHEVY CHASE INVITATION MEDAL WITH 71

V. Kennedy Allows Only Eight Hits

Buck Starts 'Track Meet' by Walking Five in First.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, Ill., May 12.—The Chicago White Sox, the mimics, staged coronation ceremonies of their own today. They crowned the Nats, 13 to 5, in a 2-hour and 40-minute procession across home plate.

The parade began at a walk—in fact, it began with five walks issued in that first inning by Blundering Buck Newsom — and proceeded leisurely until the eighth, when Joe Cascarella marshaled four Chicago runs across the plate in a great hurry.

It was pretty awful, this third straight licking absorbed by the Nats, who buried themselves deeper in the American League cellar. They were never in the ball game, in fact, facing a 9-1 deficit as early as the fourth inning. They could get only eight hits of Vernon Kennedy, White Sox right-hander.

Big Newsom succeed in keeping his pitching in the park, but little else, during the 3 1-3 innings that Manager Bucky Harris suffered his presence on the mound. But hold on a minute—one pitch did get out of the park—a home run by Zeke Bonura in the fourth, which upped the Sox lead to 8 to 1 at the time.

Newsom walked Steinbach and wild-pitched him to second base right off the reel. Kreevich sacrificed himself out, and then Newsom walked Walker. Then he pitched a single to Bonura that scored the first Chicago run. Then he walked Appling to fill the bases. Then he struck out Hayes. Then he brazenly walked Piet and Sewell to jam two more runs across the plate, and they had their 3-to-0 lead.

They wrung another pair of runs out of Newsom in the third, when he walked Appling, pitched a double to Piet, and got the benefit of an ill-judged throw by Ossie Bluege on Sewell's grounder, but that was a tame inning compared to Newsom's next.

Bluege Throws Wild.

Ossie Bluege inspired the 4-run proceedings of the fourth inning when he made a wild throw on Walker's grounder that should have been the second out, but Newsom himself proved the second out of the inning. He went out shortly after he pitched Bonura's home run and then walked Appling.

Carl Fischer had a time getting the inning over. The Sox didn't desist until they made it 4 runs for the session on Piet's single through the box, Sewell's single through shortstop, and Jesse Hill's errant throw to third base.

But both Newsom and Fischer were heroes compared to Cascarella, who somehow escaped with his life in the eighth inning when he was pitching and ducking in the same motion and compiling a record of six hits allowed.

Cascarella Departs.

Cascarella moderated a bit after pitching that homer to Kreevich. He pitched only singles to Walker and Bonura. Then he pitched a double to Appling for the fourth consecutive hit. He did get a man out—Jack Hayes, who sent Al Simmons back to the fence for his line drive, but the next man out was Cascarella, who gave up singles to Piet and Sewell before Dick Lanahan relieved him with only one Chisox out.

The Nats didn't get a hit against Kennedy until Joe Kuhel banged a home run into the rightfield bleachers in the fourth, but they stirred themselves to the extent of three runs in the fifth when Millies walked and Fischer and Hill doubled, cutting the score to 9 to 4.

They had one chance to get back in the ball game and muffed it—in the eighth when, trailing 9-4, they filled the bases with one out, but Walter Millies contributed only a weak fly in this crisis, and Ed Linke, who appeared as a pinch hitter, placidly watched a third strike sail by.

Cunningham Victor Over Venzke, Beccali

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 12.—Glenn Cunningham, the durable Kansan, staved off a last quarter spurt by Gene Venzke to win the three-quarter mile run, feature event of the first annual Twilight Games sponsored by the 165th Infantry, in 3:10.2, tonight at Lewisohn Stadium.

Cunningham, making his first start of the Eastern outdoor season, was never pressed, until the final lap, when Venzke, who has shadowed him through five indoor seasons, passed Luigi Beccali, of Italy, and bid for the lead as they rounded the last turn.

Cunningham sprinted briefly to nullify Venzke's spurt and went over the finish line about 3 yards ahead of the former University of Pennsylvania athlete. Beccali was third and Joe McCluskey, like Venzke running for the New York A. C., fourth. Cunningham ran for the New York Curb Exchange.

Borck Takes 600.

Eulace Peacock, Negro ace of Temple University, won the invitation 100-yard dash for the Sixty-ninth Veterans Corps trophy with a killing drive in the last 20 yards that sent him home just ahead of Columbia University's Ben Johnson, in 9.9 seconds.

Johnson led for the first 50 yards, but Peacock caught him at the midway down the stretch and fought off Johnson and Edward O'Sullivan, of the New York Curb Exchange, an added starter.

Howard Borck, of Manhattan College, closed hard in the last 100 yards to nip Edgar Stripling, of New York University, and John Wolff, of New York Athletic Club, in the 600-yard run for the Father Duffy Memorial Trophy. Borck's time was 1:15.5.

Burns Wins 1,000.

Lou Burns, of Manhattan College, outdoor intercollegiate mile champion, won the 1,000 yards invitation run in 2:20 over a capable field. Robert Hoolihan, a team-mate from Manhattan, led early in the race, but Burns caught him on the last turn and finished strongly. Henry Eagle, of St. John's University, was third, and Ernie Federoff, of the Millrose Athletic Association, fourth.

James McPoland, of the New York Athletic Club, won the best of the many handicap events, 100 yards, in 9.9, with a 2-yard handicap.

Old Line's Racqueters Win Over Hoyas by 6-3

Maryland chalked up its first victory over Georgetown this season, after bowing in football, basketball and twice in baseball, when the Terp tennis team defeated the Hoyas yesterday, 6-3. McBride, of Georgetown, defeated Krulevitz, and Beachman, of Maryland, trounced Lee in the feature matches.

Singles—McBride (Georgetown) defeated Krulevitz (Maryland) 6—1, 5—7, 11—9; Land (Maryland) defeated Richards (Georgetown) 6—2, 6—2; Lehman (Maryland) defeated Kain (Georgetown) 6—3, 7—5; Beachman (Maryland) defeated Lee (Georgetown) 14—12, 6—4; Waters (Maryland) defeated Leslie (Georgetown) 6—3, 7—9, 6—2; Owens (Georgetown) defeated Asero (Maryland) 6—4, 6—3.

Doubles—Waters-Land (Maryland) defeated McBride-Leslie (Georgetown) 7—5, 6—3; Lehman-Beachman (Maryland) defeated Kain-Lee (Georgetown) 6—4, 6—2; Connolly-Owens (Georgetown) defeated Keusbers-Asero (Maryland) 6—3, 6—3.

Pirates Crown Giants In Own 'Coronation'

Meton, Smith Pounded by Pacemakers; Bill Swift's Relief Pitching Is Feature; Hubbell Gets Most Valuable Player Award.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 12.—The New York Giants held their own coronation ceremony today, with a band, parade and formal hoisting of the 1936 National League pennant, but the visiting Pittsburgh Pirates "crowned" them, 6 to 5, in the subsequent ball game, before a crowd of 12,018 customers.

The pace-setting Bucs twice came from behind to take the lead. They took turns belting two southpaws, Cliff Melton and Al Smith, and made their second rally stick with the aid of splendid relief pitching by Bill Swift in the last three frames.

Swift replaced Joe Bowman, former Giant right-hander, after Dick Bartell walked to start the home half of the seventh. Lou Chiozza's sacrifice put the tying run on second base, but Swift forced Joe Moore and Mel Ott to miss the third strike. The Pirate rescue flinger retired all nine batsmen he faced, but credit for the victory went to his predecessor.

It was Bowman's fourth triumph, against no defeats, as well as the fifth in a row for the Pirates, who have now captured nine out of their last ten games. Pie Traynor's swashbuckling crew holds a lead of three and a half games over the second-place Cardinals.

Two unearned runs, due to wild throws by Handley and Dickshot, sent the Giants away to a two-run lead in the third, but the Bucs batted around against Melton with a four-run spurt in the fourth. Suhr's double was the loudest of four hits, which were combined with four passes and a double steal by Paul Waner and John Dickshot.

The Giants came back to score three runs in the fifth, with two out, on four hits and an error by Bill Brubaker. Joe Moore's single tallied two, but Ott, still in a big slump, failed with runners on first and third.

A pass to Paul Waner, a double by Arky Vaughan and Al Todd's single produced the tying and winning runs in the seventh.

Pregame incidents included a slightly twisted ankle for Cy Blanton, right-handed ace of the Pirates, and presentation of the 1936 most valuable player award to Carl Hubbell, of the Giants, by the National Baseball Writers Association. Bartell hit safely for this fourteenth consecutive game.

D. C. Race Bill Buried by 9-8 Vote at Capital

By a vote of 9 to 8 it agreed to table the highly controversial measure for the remainder of the session.

The motion was made by Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

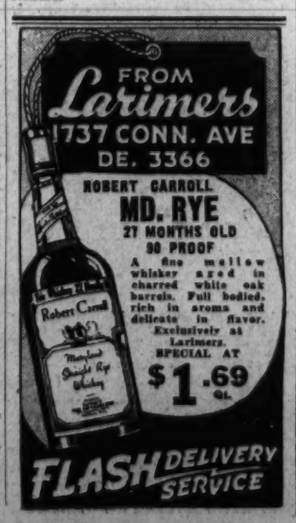
Recalled by the committee several weeks ago after a minority bloc charged that it had been "railroaded," the bill was practically killed at that time.

It was agreed, however, that another vote would be taken as to whether further hearings should be held or whether the bill should be pigeonholed.

"If the people of the District want a race track, let them show some interest in the matter," Chairman Mary T. Norton, author of the bill, commented after the committee's action.

Inter-High Net Results.

Western and Roosevelt triumphed in inter-high school tennis matches played yesterday. The Red racqueters trounced Woodrow Wilson, 6-1, while Roosevelt disposed of Tech, 4-2, to continue at the top of the heap. Nunez's victory over Bruns featured Western's victory. Johnsen was outstanding for the Riders.



Final Hole Birdie Beats Overton's 72

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Johnny Burke, Rhode Island State Open and Amateur champion representing Georgetown University, rolled in a 40-foot putt on the last green at Chevy Chase yesterday to win the medal in the Twenty-seventh Invitation tournament with a story-book finish, scoring a 71.

Spencer Overton, bespectacled Baltimore star, had started for home, thinking the medal prize was his with a 72 but waited when he heard that Burke needed par for a 71 on the thirteenth hole. Reports from the seventeenth hole found Burke pushing his second shot into a trap and taking a five, and when his approach shot on the last hole barely reached the green, it seemed the worst Overton would get was a playoff.

A gallery of some 100 students from the Hilltop, knowing their idol needed the birdie for the outright possession of the medal, grouped around the green with a like number of spectators who had heard the red-headed northerner had a chance for the medal and a yell, heard throughout the city, went up when the curling putt reached the cup and settled in for his 71.

A high wind took its toll of the star-studded field, 80s playing off for the first flight when predictions yesterday ran as low as 76. Russ Hollebaugh, portly Kenwood representative, won a play-off from Martin McCarthy, Dr. Howard Smith and Frank Reeside for one place in the championship bracket, with a birdie 3 on the first hole.

Burke Convinces.

Burke, entering the tournament with a raft of press notices and the full backing of the Hoya student body, was still a question mark to the rest of the field, but he left them firmly convinced after his round of 71.

He made but four mistakes, three putting the second and eighth, hooking his drive into the flower bed on the ninth, and his bad second on the seventeenth. His 30-foot putt for a birdie on the sixth hole and the last were his birdie holes.

Overton also went over on four holes, but had only one birdie, on the sixth hole where he rammed in a 6-footer. On the first, seventh, and eighteenth his second shots went over the green and on the thirteenth his tee shot found the trap to the left.

The first nine was a tartar to a majority of the players. Gene Pittman rallied with a 35 after going out in 41 for a first-flight berth. Bobby Brownell, Ralph Quinter, Miller Stevinson and Louis Fuchs also returned in near par figures to gain a place in the first sixteen.

Harry Pitt, three-time winner of the Taft Trophy, came to grief on the last two holes and scored a 74, after turning the first nine in 36. Billy Shea, playing with Burke, played the back nine in even par 34 to tie Pitt's 74.

The playoff was featured by Hollebaugh's sensational second shot on the first hole, hitting a shot from the rough to within 3 feet of the pin. McCarthy and Reeside had clinched par 4's after Dr. Smith had encountered a pair of traps and picked up.

Frank "Shanty" Allen, former Georgetown Prep registering from Pittston, Pa., trailed Overton among the out-of-town stars with a 76.

Overton and Burke meet in a made to order first-round match this morning with the winner meeting the Brownell-Burnett victor. Defending champion Ralph Quinter meets Levi Yoder, Woodmont Invitation champion, while Parker Nolan and Harry Pitt clash in another top-notch battle.

Chapman's Ailing Arm Under X-Ray

Chicago, May 12.—Outfielder Ben Chapman, still complaining of a sore arm that has kept him out of the Washington line-up for two days, will submit to X-ray examinations of his injury when the team returns to Washington Friday.

The mysterious pain in Chapman's forearm has hampered his batting stroke, according to the outfielder. His throwing has not been hindered, however.

Jimmy DeShong will go to the mound tomorrow in the Nats' final game of their current Western trip, which now finds them with a record of three victories and five defeats.

War Admiral Owner Sells Stable Mate

Over the Top to Oppose Half-Brother Saturday in Preakness.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md., May 12.—Over The Top, a son of Man o' War, changed from a running mate to a rival of War Admiral today when it was announced that Mrs. W. H. Furst had purchased the colt from the Glen Riddle Farm Stable, owner of the Kentucky Derby winner. The details of the transaction were not made public.

Over The Top will run in the colors of Mrs. Furst and will have Bert Williams, her trainer, to saddle him. Jackie Westrope, under contract to Mrs. Furst, will do the riding.

The new owner of Over The Top is the daughter of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, owner of the Milky Way Stable. This was the most important development of the day along the Preakness front.

Finding a jockey for Pompoon, which finished second in the Derby, continued to be a problem. An offer to Wayne Wright failed. George Woolf was named as the rider of Merry Maker.

It was definitely determined that Jewell Dorsett would be a starter. Handlers wired local officials that he would be shipped in tomorrow.

It is the consensus of opinion now that eight horses will face the barrier Saturday. They are War Admiral, Over The Top, Matey, Jewell Dorsett, Pompoon, Flying Scot, Merry Maker, Mosawtre.

Five of the fairly definite starters were worked out this morning. War Admiral ran a rather easy mile and an eighth in 1:55 2-5; Matey went a mile and a quarter in 2:10 2-5; Merry Maker was clocked in 1:55 for a mile and an eighth, while Pompoon and Mosawtre went the same distance in 1:57 2-5 and 1:55 2-5, respectively.

Jockey Eddie DeCamillis, suspended for rough riding early in the meeting, has been reinstated and will be allowed to accept mounts Friday and Saturday. He may ride in the Preakness.

Fire Blaze, an unraced 2-year-old, which A. G. Vanderbilt donated to be given to the "lucky number" winner at the Preakness ball Saturday night, was reported to have been stolen from his stable last night.

Officials denied it was a publicity stunt. Vanderbilt said that he will have another colt on hand if Fire Blaze is not located.

Children under 12 years old, heretofore admitted free, must pay full admission on Preakness day. Track officials announced that they were making this rule in the hope that adults would not bring children on that day.

Buddy Scott And Williams Fight Monday

Buddy Scott, the Oklahoma light-heavyweight beak-buster who has been making his home in Washington for the last nine months, will trade punches with Hobo Williams, of Alexandria, in the ten-round feature match at Turner's Arena, Monday night, for the benefit of the fire chiefs' convention.

Scott, who until a few months ago was a student at George Washington University, has compiled the amazing record of 31 victories and no defeats in less than one year of professional fighting.

Former Golden Gloves champion of Oklahoma, Missouri and Texas, Buddy is the brother of Cowboy Howard Scott, who has been featured in numerous local, Baltimore and Richmond matches.

The Scott-Williams Match is considered a "natural" by veteran ring observers, who saw the Hobo hold Buddy to a draw in their first match, and the transplanted Oklahoman come back with a two-fisted attack to triumph in a return engagement at the Arena.

Nineteen of Scott's victories were knockouts. Just last week, Scott journeyed to Miami and knocked out Walter Fields, a tough Southern scrapper, in the second round.

Williams, who drifted into town last year after taking on all comers in carnival shows, has had 26 professional fights, and lost but two. The former Utica battler, considered an overstuffed middleweight, held Eddie Mader to a draw and lost in a return go to the one-time fifth ranking heavyweight in the world.

Bill Corum Shot.

New York, May 12 (A.P.).—William Corum, sports columnist of the New York Evening Journal, was shot in the hip early today at Fifty-fourth street and Madison avenue. At St. Luke's Hospital physicians said the wound was not serious.

TAPSTICK	(Grigg)	118	7	10	9h	9h	9h	87.95
MANHUNT	(Wagner)	118	2	2	10	10	10	64.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CREDENCE, $6.80, $4.90, $3.60; PRINCE MOWLEE, $13.90, $10.90; TIME AND AGAIN, $12.40.

CREDENCE sent to the outside for rasing room while improving position steadily, rallied sharply when placed to drive and was going away at the end. PRINCE MOWLEE, a fast breaker, set a good pace and hung on well, but was no match for the winner. TIME AND AGAIN, rushed to the leader at once, was hard ridden and weakened slightly at the end. JOLLY JACK had no excuses. SUNTIME was away poorly and could not improve position after opening sixteenth. The others were not prominent.

SECOND RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Borkin Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:51½. Winner, G. Blank's b. g. (8), by Lucky Hour—Elizabeth D. Trained by J. P. Jones. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:47. (13 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE MARTY, $4.30, $3.30, $2.80; CANIENTO, $3.70, $3.10; WILFRID G., $3.90.

LITTLE MARTY, much the best, was steadied along for a turn of the field while fencing well, took command when called upon and was going easily at the end. CANIENTO, close to the early pace of GOLD SWEEPER, was holding on well behind LITTLE MARTY when he made a bad landing at twelfth fence, but was good enough for second. WILFRID G., badly outrun for a mile and punished intermittently, closed gamely. KEPI lacked speed and was never a factor. GOLD SWEEPER set the early pace, but was tiring when he made bad landing at twelfth fence. BAD BOB fell at the tenth fence while prominent.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Lutherville. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:26. Winner, F. M. Alger's br. g. (3), by The Sirdar II—Dustaway. Trained by A. L. Copland, jr. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIRGAY, $10.60, $6.00, $4.60; POTIPHAR, $9.60, $6.50; DEEPWICK, $7.00.

SIRGAY, forced to race between horses to the stretch, rallied when shaken up in midstretch and closed with a rush on the outside. POTIPHAR gained steadily throughout the running and closed gamely. DEEPWICK, forwardly placed from the start, took a slight lead at the eighth pole, but weakened. HAPPY HOSTESS, away alertly, was hard used while running with LERNANA and faltered. TOOTHPICK raced on the outside. LERNANA was rushed to HAPPY HOSTESS at once, pressed a good pace, but tired. DIVIDED SKIRT had early speed.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $35.80.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Coral Gables. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:57. Off at 4:03. Winner, H. Kerr's ch. g. (4), by Boo—Seldom Seen. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:14, 1:42, 1:47 3-5.

ALAHAD	(Machado)	105	1	1	1h	2h	6h	9	8	2.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOOSEL, $67.40, $22.40, $7.50; BABY WITT, $8.80, $4.90; LETTER BOX, $3.10.

BOOSEL, within striking distance from the start, worked his way up on the outside and under pressure, was up in the concluding strides. BABY WITT, under restraint to midway of the backstretch, was sent to the leaders with a bold rush to take command entering the final bend and weakened slightly in the final sixteenth. LETTER BOX hung when placed to punishment nearing the finish. SPITTENMAGE raced ALAHAD into defeat and faltered. THATCH was started from outside the gates and closed willingly after trailing. DUNRITA could not keep up. SLEUTH had no excuses.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; The Pimlico Graded Handicap, class C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:32. Off at 4:34½. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's b. c. (3), by Supremus—Mad Miss. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:14, 1:40 2-5, 1:46 3-5.

†A. G. Vanderbilt entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEAP (entry), $7.90, $3.70, $2.70; TOP DOG, $4.10, $3.30; CHURCH CALL, $5.00.

LEAP, forwardly placed from the beginning, moved up gradually leaving the backstretch, and disposed of TOP DOG to be going away at the finish. TOP DOG shook off MELODIANA and SCUDDER to take command on the backstretch and continued willingly, but could not resist the winner. CHURCH CALL came through on the inside to close gamely. ROWES CRUMP, outrun to the stretch, rallied only mildly to punishment. MELODIANA stepped, as did SCUDDER. BRIGHT MARK was not a factor.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,000. The Edgar Allan Poe Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:03. Off at 5:03½. Winner, Mrs. E. Denemark's b. g. (4), by High Cloud—Miss Tony. Trained by J. Johnson. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $350; third, $200; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47, 1:12 1-5.

AROUSED	(Machado)	100	2	6	6	6	6	6	13.45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGHER CLOUD, $6.50, $3.50, $2.60; BILLY BEE, $4.90, $3.50; SUNNED, $3.40.

HIGHER CLOUD, steadied along while closest to the pace of POSTAGE DUE, rallied when shaken up entering the stretch and took command to hold BILLY BEE safe. The latter, taken back leaving the backstretch, came through on the rail and closed gamely. SUNNED was forced wide at the final bend and was gaining rapidly while bearing out at the finish. POSTAGE DUE was rushed to the front at once and weakened slightly. BRIGHT AND EARLY faltered after racing wide. AROUSED could not keep up.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. The Pimlico Graded Handicap, class B. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Sharpshooter. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:36. Winner, E. Johnson's ch. g. (5), by Starmaster—Lament. Trained by C. F. Miles, jr. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 1-5, 1:44 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MASTER LAD, $9.00, $4.20, $3.30; CONQUER, $7.20, $5.30; TEMPESTUOUS, $6.80.

MASTER LAD, in the thick of contention from the start, was rated along on the inside when in close quarters, answered a drive courageously and closed willingly. CONQUER disposed of PRAIRIE DOG leaving the backstretch, but hung on willingly in the final drive. TEMPESTUOUS closed with good speed under pressure. BOOTLESS couldn't reach the leaders at any stage. WISE SISTER stopped. SHARPSHOOTER went in the air at the break.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 6:06. Off at 6:07. Winner, Liberty Lane Stable's b. g. (3), by Wrack—Durfee. Trained by W. E. Jones. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15, 1:41 3-5, 1:48 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DURWRACK, $13.50, $3.70, $3.60; VITASCOPE, $2.70, $2.50; INFILER, $4.50.

DURWRACK, under restraint while close to the pace of MISS TAD, went to the front when placed to urging approaching the stretch turn and easily drew out. VITASCOPE, steadied along within striking distance of the leaders, weakened after improving position with a rush. INFILER, a trailer along the backstretch, came very wide at the final turn and closed with a belated rush. JOBAKHETA went very wide into the stretch. MISS TAD stopped after getting to the front under hustling tactics. TROSTAR stopped.

SIRGAY, forced to race between horses to the stretch, rallied when shaken up in midstretch and closed with a rush on the outside. POTIPHAR gained steadily throughout the running and closed gamely. DEEPWICK, forwardly placed from the start, took a slight lead at the eighth pole, but weakened. HAPPY HOSTESS, away alertly, was hard used while running with LERNANA and faltered. TOOTHPICK raced on the outside. LERNANA was rushed to HAPPY HOSTESS at once, pressed a good pace, but tired. DIVIDED SKIRT had early speed.

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

One of baseball's chief charms—the uncertainty of it all—is being illustrated in this first month of the American League pennant race which currently finds the despised Philadelphia Athletics leading the procession and the feared Yankees in second division.

POVICH.

In baseball it requires only an infinitely small margin to distinguish a winning team from a losing outfit—a bad hop here or a wide pitch there—and thus the club at the bottom of the league may knock off the leader in tomorrow's game and occasion no great surprise.

Even tomorrow were the league-leading A's to meet the fifth-place Yankees, the gambling gentry would pay little heed to the respective positions of the two clubs in the pennant race. The lowly Yankees would be installed the favorite to win the game the A's high station notwithstanding. The Yankees simply figure to lick the Athletics.

* * * *

But in baseball, the gamblers are never too generous with their odds. Too many things can happen to swerve the course of a ball game. The Athletics, who finished 1936 in the same relative position as a horse that ran last by 40 lengths in an eight-horse race, without mishap, were at no time worse than a 3-to-1 shot against the Yankees last season in any given game. Yet on the race tracks you could write your own ticket with the bookies if you chose to bet on a steed that performed no better than the Athletics of 1936.

* * * *

The vagaries of baseball are strikingly illustrated by the Washington club of 1937. The team that last year was beaten only four times by the Athletics already has been licked four times by the A's—in five engagements. The Browns, who were unable to win only three games from the Nats in 1936, have already beaten Washington twice this season—in three tries.

* * * *

George Caster, a young pitcher who wasn't good enough for the A's in 1935, is blossoming this season as the sensation of the circuit with four victories to his credit. And Thornton Lee, a left-hander now with the White Sox, could not beat any club but Washington last year, yet the other day he shut out the Yankees with four hits.

* * * *

Washington beat the Cardinals four straight times in spring exhibition games, when the Nats looked like the class of the American League and the Cardinals looked like the joke of the National, but gaze at the standings now. Washington is a poor last, the Cardinals are pressing the Pirates for the lead in their league.

* * * *

And the Cincinnati Reds, who set tongues wagging with their promise in the South and led a vociferous minority to pick them as the league pennant winners, haven't been able to get up a gallop since the season started, losing seven of their first eight games.

* * * *

Al Simmons was supposed to bring a lifetime batting average of .345 to the Nats and provide the outfield punch that had been lacking, but Simmons has never been able to untrack himself at bat, has been a setup for pitchers generally and not so long ago was benched for the first time in his life for weak hitting.

* * * *

Bob Feller was supposed to get the Indians away to a flying start with his strike-out pitching, but here, three weeks after the opening of the season, Feller has pitched only six innings and lost the only game in which he appeared.

* * * *

Paul Waner was supposed to be an added handicap to the Pirates because he missed most of the spring training on account of his holdout tactics, yet who is leading the league, but Pittsburgh and who is leading the Pirates at bat but Waner?

* * * *

Verily, it doesn't add up.

Vernon Kennedy, the White Sox pitcher who beat the Nats with 8 hits today, lives in a trailer on a local parking lot . . . Kennedy, like Monty Stratton, a pitching colleague on the White Sox, is former national collegiate pentathlon champion . . . Thornton Lee, of the White Sox, was born on Friday the thirteenth and never has failed to win a game on that date . . . Lee was acquired by the White Sox last winter 11 years after they originally tendered him a contract . . . That was when he was pitching for San Luis Obispo Teachers College on the Coast in 1926 and decided to give up baseball for a teaching profession . . . All of the Philadelphia players call Connie Mack "Mr. Mack," which makes him the only manager in the big league who is mistered by his athletes . . . Lou Gehrig is currently in the throes of a batting slump which has seen him go to the plate 20 times without a hit . . . But Bill Knickerbocker, of the Browns, hasn't come up with a hit in his last 24 times at bat.

Carter Gets Circuit Blow With Two On Three Western Hurlers Fail to Hold Maroons; Rally Folds Up.

Sunday's Post will carry a complete story and pictures of the annual Central High "C" track meet. High school followers can't afford to miss it.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 12.—Episcopal High School's batsmen bombarded three Western High hurlers with a barrage of 16 base hits here this afternoon, as they snapped their three-game losing streak by outslugging the Washingtonians by a margin of 11-7. It was the fifth victory in 11 starts for the Alexandrians.

The Maroons went to work early in the contest, chasing Rafferty from the mound with a six-hit, four-run attack. Vance, who relieved him, lasted less than a full inning, and Bright finished out the game for the visitors.

Western staged a mild rally in the ninth, when West weakened, but Squad Waddell took over the mound duties and squelched the outburst after four runs had been scored.

Powell Improved After Operation

New York, May 12 (AP).—Jake Powell, New York Yankee outfielder, was reported resting comfortably after an operation for appendicitis today.

Reports from the hospital (St. Elizabeth) said he came out of the operation in fine shape. He expected to be out of the Yankee line-up from six weeks to two months, however.

Powell was stricken with appendicitis while the Yankees were in Detroit.

Turner Takes Command of Fight Muddle

Promoter to Present Gevinson Appeal to Boxing Commission.

Promoter Joe Turner yesterday assumed command of the muddle stirred up when the Boxing Commission refused to sanction a bout between Lou Gevinson and Ray Ingram to head the police benefit show, scheduled to be held at Griffith Stadium June 2.

Formally notified by the commission that his application for a permit to stage the police show had been rejected because, "In the opinion of the commission, Contestant Gevinson has not yet proven to be sufficiently experienced to cope with Contestant Ingram," Turner asked the governing board of boxing for a hearing on the matter.

It is understood the promoter himself will carry the case before the commissioners in an attempt to straighten out the tangle created when his matchmaker, Goldie Ahearn, announced the bout before it had been sanctioned.

The rules of the commission state specifically that "Promoter shall not release publicity on any bout until the permit for such bout has been granted."

More than a month ago Ahearn was informed that at least one commissioner, Kenneth Parkinson, did not think Gevinson ready for such as Ingram, who is ranked eighth among the featherweights of the world.

Ahearn signed the bout and made application for his permit to run, stating thereon that the Gevinson-Ingram contest would be the main event. He asked Secretary Harvey L. Miller to allow him to release publicity, and Miller informed him this could not be done except by authority of Maj. Ernest Brown, chairman of the commission.

Ahearn did not seek Brown's permission, but announced the bout in the early paperes that night. Ahearn had made arrangements to have the bout announced from the ringside of last Monday's fight program at Turner's Arena. These arrangements were halted by Maj. Brown who, after a consultation with Commissioner Parkinson, ordered the sanction denied for the bout.

Buc Mound Ace Hurts His Ankle

New York, May 12 (AP).—Darrell Blanton, screwball pitching star of the Pittsburgh Pirates, suffered an injury to his ankle today during batting practice before the Pirates' game with the New York Giants.

The full extent of Blanton's injuries was not immediately known, but it was indicated he would not be able to play for several days.

Old Line Wins 'Extra-Mural' Track Crown

Six Records Broken in Meet; Georgetown Team Second.

A half dozen meet records were shattered and another tied yesterday at College Park, where the University of Maryland's representatives retained their extra-mural track laurels in a five-team meet. The Terrapins amassed 77 points to 64 for Georgetown, 12 for St. John's, 5 for Western Maryland, and 4 for Catholic University.

Distinguished by its odd tests, such as a 500-yard relay for two-man teams, 75 and 300 yard dashes, the meet was successful in every detail, attracting almost 100 contestants.

Hewitt, of Maryland, launched a general assault on the existing marks in the 300-yard dash, initial event on the program, covering the distance in 34.6 seconds. "Little Zal" Zalzak followed suit in the 75-yard low hurdles, which he negotiated in 8.9 seconds and the parade was on.

Other record-breaking performances were credited to Western Maryland's two-man 500-yard relay team of Wallace and Adriance, who were clocked in 58 seconds flat; Maryland's 400-yard relay team of Hewitt, McChesney, Meade and McWilliams, 42 seconds (tied record); Al Snyder, of Georgetown, who broke his own broad jump mark; Hill, of Georgetown, in the shot put; Smith, Maryland, in the javelin, and Cava, Georgetown, in the discus.

Pierce, of Georgetown, was high individual scorer with 14 1-3 points, followed by Snyder, a teammate, with 14, and McChesney, of Maryland, 13 1-3.

300-yard dash—Won by Hewitt (M); second, Adriance (W.M.); third, Nattans (M). Time, 34.6 (new record).

50-yard dash—Won by Pierce (G); second, McChesney (M); third, Franks (G). Time, 5.7.

75-yard low hurdles—Won by Zalesak (M); second, Watson (G); third, Morris (M). Time, 8.9 (new record).

75-yard dash—Won by Pierce (G); second, Barnes (M); third, McWilliams (M). Time, 8.6.

200-yard dash—Won by Hebb (St.J.); second, Meade (M); third, Hensin (W. Md.). Time, 22.4.

100-yard dash—Won by McChesney (M); second, Pierce (G); third, Hebbs (St. J.). Time, 11 flat.

200-yard sprint relay—Won by Maryland (McChesney, Hite, Morris) (three-man team); second, Georgetown; third, St. John's. Time, 21.6.

500-yard relay (two-man team)—Won by Western Maryland (Wallace, Adriance); second, Maryland; third, Georgetown. Time, 58 seconds (new record).

400-yard relay—Won by Maryland (Hewitt, McChesney, Meade and McWilliams); second, Maryland No. 2; third, Catholic U. Time, 42 flat (tied existing record).

Broad jump—Won by Snyder (G); second, Watson (G); third, Jones (M). Distance, 20 feet 8 inches (new record).

High jump—Won by White (M); second, Snyder (G); third, Watson (G). Height, 5 feet 6¼ inches.

12-pound shot put—Won by Hill (G); second, Cava (G); third, Kovacs (C.U.). Distance, 48 feet 10½ inches (new record).

Javelin throw—Won by Smith (M); second, Snyder (G); third, Boyd (M). Distance, 160 feet 6 inches (new record).

Discus throw—Won by Cava (G); second, Norton (M); third, Hill (G). Distance, 121 feet 7 inches (new record).

Hop, step, jump—Won by Gray (M); second, Snyder (G); third, Bradley (W.Md.). Distance, 40 feet 2¾ inches.

Colonials Bow To Delaware By 7-5 Count

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Dover, Del., May 12.—Failure to hold a 4-to-0 lead acquired in the second inning, cost George Washington the ball game today, as the Colonials dropped a 7-to-5 decision to the University of Delaware.

A series of unfavorable breaks, coupled with a half-dozen untimely errors, proved to be George Washington's undoing, after they had assumed the lead. Doubles by Edmondson and Stapleton, coupled with singles by Williams and Lanier, and Brennan's sacrifice, accounted for the Washington team's runs.

Baxter Meets Dusek on Mat At Turner's

Laverne Baxter, the hilarious villain from North Carolina, will meet the boss of all badmen when he takes on Rudy Dusek at Turner's Arena in what has laughingly been billed as a wrestling match.

Rudy not only is the boss of all badmen, he is one of the bosses of the entire organization which books burpers throughout the country along wholesale lines.

Baxter, in the opinion of most local addicts, is the No. 1 villain of the mat. Dusek once held that distinction, but that was before Laverne started banging his opponents all around the ring, out of the ring and even with the ringposts.

Wally Dusek, a cousin of Rudy's, will make his debut in a 30-minute time limit bout against Mike Mazurki. All the Dusek brothers wrestle and now that they have started dragging in cousins, goodness knows where the whole business will end.

George Kondylis, just over from Greece, will be unveiled in another preliminary tangle. He will grunt against Al Billings, a former sailor. In the remaining preliminary, Heb Russell will oppose Eli Fischer. A semifinal will find Wee Willie Davis growling at Mayes McLain.

On the Air Today

One of the most vital of all problems facing a community the size of Washington—traffic safety—will be discussed by Lieut. Franklin M. Kreml, traffic expert, of Evanston, Ill., who visits the city as a guest of The Post tonight. And although he speaks at the Willard, Washington and vicinity may still hear him, as arrangements have been made with WMAL to broadcast the dinner beginning at 8:45.

Lieut. Kreml will tell his audience how his system of accident prevention has reduced Evanston's traffic toll from 23.5 deaths per 100,000 population in 1927 to 2.9 in 1935.

* * * *

Other features:

"Do You Remember?"—Third of Pearl Hauer's organ series on this theme, WMAL, at 9:45 a. m. Tickets to the Rialto if you guess the titles of the tunes.

Rudy Vallee—Again airs his program from London, WRC, at 7. With Fernand Gravet, French actor; Will Fyffe and J. B. Priestley, English novelist.

Bing Crosby—Without the aid of Bob Burns (who has gone vacationing with his numerous "uncles") presents John McCormack, Elissa Landi, Josephine Tumminia and Lionel Stander, WRC, at 9.

* * * *

Today's feature highlights: Gordon Hittenmark takes a microphone to the sidewalks at 4, WRC, interviewing passersby on the question of daylight saving time—to have or not to have.

* * * *

Here and there: Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone have postponed their June 30 sailing reservations for a European vacation in order to accept an engagement for appearances at the Pan-American Exposition in Dallas, July 3 through 5. They'll do their act in a glass booth for an audience of almost 50,000 persons. George P. Marshall is making the bookings down thar . . . Some say that Jane Froman and Don Ross have the edge on other aspirants for the Benny summer series. Incidentally, Benny is taking his script writers to Yurrop as his guests . . . Leslie Howard, Ann Sothern, Leo Carillo and Gene Raymond are booked for future "Hit Parade" programs.

* * * *

More here and there: The Al Jolson show is scheduled to leave the air July 6, to return intact early in September . . . Gene Austin is understood to have received the Penner summer series spot. Jimmy Griner's orchestra also is signed for the comedian's vacation period . . . Ruth Etting, according to Motion Picture Daily, expects to return to radio this summer, probably on one of the two cigarette programs now featuring Lily Pons and the Kostelanetz Orchestra Wednesday nights and Hal Kemp Friday nights. La Etting has been gone from our dials too long.

Edgar Bergen, the ventriloquist, says: "It's only natural for people to begin to resent the radio comedians. There's entirely too much made of them. In all the years that have seen a steady advancement in radio production, the comedian has never changed his gagging style to conform with shifts in taste. On my new program (Sundays, at 8, WRC) I will change my act by adding a female edition of Charlie McCarthy, who will swap comedy lines with him. Then there's Elmer, a Frankensteinish monstor, who ought to scare a few laughs from the audience. All in all, I'll never let my act become so set in type that the public will know just what to expect when they dial me in." J. H. H.

Wheat Holds Steady With Dust Storms

Crop Conditions Reported Bad in Several Producing Areas.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 12.—Dust storms in the Northwest turned wheat prices upward late today, offsetting earlier declines associated with Liverpool and Winnipeg trade suspension because of coronation ceremonies.

Reports of dust storms came from both sides of the Canada border. Besides, word was received that in western North Dakota, western South Dakota and practically all of the better producing sections of Montana, wheat crop conditions are about as bad as they ever have been during any previous period this time of year.

At the close wheat was ¼ off to ⅝ up compared with yesterday's finish. May, 1.22⅛@1.22¾; July, 1.15¾@1.15¾; September, 1.14½@1.14⅝; corn, ⅛ to 2⅞ down; May, 1.25¼@1.25½; July, 1.15½@1.15⅝; September, 1.06¼@1.06⅜; oats, showing ⅛ to ⅜ decline; May, 45½@45⅝, and rye, ¾ to 1 cent advance; May, 109¼. In provisions, the outcorn varied from unchanged figures to 37 cents bulge.

Steel Demand Dips as Output Holds at Peak

Prospects for Third Quarter Are Promising, Iron Age Says.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 12 (AP).—Steel production remains at a high level throughout the country but new business continues to shrink moderately, reflecting ample stocks of consumers for nearby needs, Iron Age said today in the weekly review of the industry. Consumption is heavy in many lines, however, the review added, with the result that current orders represent actual requirements.

"Prospects for third quarter are fairly promising," the trade journal said, "with indications the summer let-down may be less than might be expected in view of the heavy production of the first half of the year.

"Strike threats against some of the leading independent steel companies, which may come to a head this week, have had no discernible effect upon new steel purchases, but may account for renewed pressure on mills for quicker deliveries. The steel production rate for the country remains at 92 per cent, the same as last week.

"Business was aided in the past week by fresh releases from some automobile companies, the placing of steel for recent construction awards and for railroad equipment and by a rising demand for steel in the farm equipment industry. Demand for farm machinery, including tractors, has risen far beyond the expectations of manufacturers in that field.

"Steel scrap prices continue downward. The Iron Age composite priced dropped to $18.75, marking the fifth consecuaive weekly decline."

Electricity Output Declines for Week

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 12.—The Edison Electric Institute reported today production of electricity in the United States for the week ended May 8 totaled 2,176,383,000 kilowatt hours.

This was a decrease of .8 of 1 per cent from the previous week's figure of 2,193,779,000 kilowatt hours, but an increase of 12.8 per cent over the total of 1,928,203,000 kilowatt hours in the same week a year ago.

Atlantic Coast Line Earns $3.30 a Share

New York, May 12 (AP).—Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. for the first quarter showed net income of $2,717,604 after charges and taxes, equal to $3.30 a share of capital stock.

This compared with net income of $1,392,006 in the first quarter last year, or $1.69 a share.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Irregularly Higher in Dullest Day in Year; U. S. Bonds Lower.

New York, May 12.—Softness in Government bonds and the dollar, a firmer tone in commodities and dullness in stocks with a tendency for prices to work irregularly higher marked the financial day. The day also brought a stock exchange seat sale at $96,000, a reduction of $40,000, and a continuance of the steady decline that set in with the stoppage of the bull rush a little over a month ago. Turnover in stocks today fell to around 600,000 shares, the smallest in a year. July wheat closed ⅜ of a cent higher at 115⅝ cents a bushel.

Dullness in the markets was accentuated by the closing of nearly all business activity in all parts of the British Empire, but uncertainty in any event is the rule in speculative quarters. No tendency is shown to question the current trade statistics as indicating a continued high rate of activity in most industrial lines. The heckling comes rather on the scope of how long the trade will hold up. Any one who has talked much recently with American corporation executives must come to the conclusion that there is a rather general expectation that the peak in activity for this year has been passed, but those who look for a serious recession seem to be in the minority.

If that view of business proves to be the correct one, it would not be surprising if the stock market goes nowhere in particular for the next few weeks. It won't necessarily go down much, for it may already have anticipated all the slump in business that may take place; but it may find an advance difficult. Under such circumstances stocks tend to become what brokers call "selective." New low prices and new high prices for the year will be uncovered side by side while the main body of stocks marks time.

Steel News Favorable.

Trade news at mid-week includes a survey of the steel industry by Iron Age, which finds that the volume of new business continues to shrink while orders on hand are holding up the operating rate. "Prospects for third quarter," says the review, "are fairly promising, with indications that summer letdown may be less than might be expected in view of the heavy production of the first half of the year." Steel scrap has gone down further, now fetching $18.75 a ton, falling for five consecutive weeks.

Railroad traffic is holding well. Freight car loadings last week, The Sun estimates, were a little higher than thouse of the preceding week and about 17 per cent greater than for the same period of last year. Production of electricity is moving ahead. Such decline in business as may take place this summer is more likely to be felt in heavy industry than in consumption trades, for the rise in living costs is still a few jumps behind wage increases and farm employment for the next few months promises to be considerably higher than it has been in recent years.

Small fractional gains were shown at the close for a majority of active stocks. Rails continued to improve. Santa Fe, Central and Great Northern were well liked. Most of the steels moved up a point or so. Oils were harder. Motors held slight advances. Chrysler gained a point. Kennecott was the best of the coppers. Foods worked downward.

Penick & Ford dipped 3 points to a new low price on the company's statement, explaining the dividend reduction, that a loss from operations would be felt in second quarter, because of the rapidly rising costs of corn. Pennsylvania was firm on talk that at the directors meeting later this month a dividend would be considered.

Mother Lode lost 40 per cent of its market value on sales that exceeded 30,000 shares, the largest of the list. The company's assets are now regarded as merely a liquidating proposition, as hinted by the president a day or so ago, and the whole thing is expected soon will be washed up, when perhaps the stock exchange may hear about it. Moderately higher prices were paid for Douglas, Electric Auto, Holly Sugar, Panhandle preferred and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Money.

The money market locally appears to be feeling much easier than it actually is. Since Monday excess reserves here have increased slightly to about $210,000,000, an increase of only about $15,000,000, but apparently the surplus is well distributed. The banks are becoming resigned to a continuance of low rates for a longer period than they expected some weeks ago, and several expect a seasonal recession in commercial loans, which will give them more funds in coming months. Other institutions sharply dissent from such an opinion and believe that peak borrowings by October 1 will be much higher than recent maximums.

More Warnings.

Leo T. Crowley, head of the bank deposit insurance of the Government, seems to have become the official issuer of warnings to the banks. Recently he has warned several times of a coming depression.

Now he warns (but not for the first time) of the dangers in trying to bolster earnings through investment in low grade bonds. "I note," he says, "that many banks in their search for earnings have turned during the past two years to a practice which I consider anything but legitimate and which is potentially a monkey wrench held over the smoothly running machine of banking recovery. I refer to speculation in low grade bonds." The banker usually is at his best in making local loans and at his worst in his investment of that bank's funds, and the warning probably is a timely one; yet the multiplicity of Mr. Crowley's appeals to caution is bound to have the effect of creating uneasiness.

Inventories.

The accounting method for inventories of using the principle of "first in, first out," for costs, instead of the plan generally used until now, namely, of carrying inventories at market or cost, whichever is lower, promises to give reported corporation income greater stability. This method was announced recently by Socony-Vacuum, and today International Paper notified stockholders that it had decided to use it. The old cost or market plan has been criticized by some accountants.

Stock Seat $96,000, Decline of $4,000

New York, May 12 (AP).—Arrangements were made today for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock Exchange at $96,000. The lowest since December 1, 1936, and a decline of $4,000 from the previous sale. The high this year was $134,000 on January 8. The sale on December 1, 1936, was at $89,000, the low for that year.

EastmanKodak Lifts Quarter Dividend to $2

Penick & Ford Cut Rate Because of Rise in Corn Prices.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 12.—Directors of the Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, declared a quarterly dividend of $2 on the common stock, compared with $1.50 in the previous quarter. It is payable July 2 to holders of record June 5.

Penick & Ford.

Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., producer of corn products, with plants at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and New Orleans, La., announced today a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common compared with 75 cents paid last March. The cut, the company explained, was in anticipation of a second quarter loss from operations as result of higher corn prices and competitive selling practices permitting customers to order ahead at prices in effect before an advance. The dividend is payable June 15 to holds of record June 1.

Lane Bryant.

A dividend of 50 cents a share, the first payment since 1932, was declared on common stock of Lane Bryant, Inc., operator of a chain of retail stores. It is payable May 27 to holders of record May 24.

Tubize Chatillon.

New York, May 12 (AP).—Directors of Tubize Chatillon Corporation today declared a dividend of $1.50 on the class "A" stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 10. The previous payment was $1 on April 1. The regular dividend of $1.75 on the 7 per cent preferred stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 10, was also declared.

U. S. Gypsum.

Chicago, May 12 (AP).—United States Gypsum Co., directors today voted quarterly dividends of 50 cents on the common and $1.75 on the preferred stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 15. Corresponding dividends were paid the previous quarter.

Chain Stores Make Gains in April

New York, May 12 (AP).—A survey of leading chain store systems showed fresh gains in sales during April, the Chain Store Age, a trade publication, reported today. A composite of the results, adjusted for seasonal factors, advanced to 110 per cent of the 1929-1931 average month compared with 108.8 in March and 102 in April, 1936.

Drug, apparel and grocery chains registered gains, while shoe and 5 and 10 merchandising systems showed declines for the month.

Phelps Dodge Plan $20,285,000 Issue

Phelps Dodge Corporation, a leading copper producer, has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission a registration statement for $20,385,000 of convertible debentures due in 15 years.

The proceeds will be applied to the cost of a program of capital expenditures for the next five years covering new equipment, machinery and buildings at the corporation's several properties in Arizona.

Building Increases But Is Below Needs

Boston, Mass., May 12.—Building construction has recently made very steady gains, but still falls short of the need. In fact, a large percentage of the present unemployment is connected with the building and construction industry. Building material prices during the depression did not fall off as much as the average of commodity prices, while during the past year they have jumped upward rapidly. Building material prices in March were 12½ per cent higher than a year ago and the highest for any March since 1929.

Curb Irregular; Utilities Lower

New York, May 12 (AP).—A late decline in utilities exerted a downward pull in the curb market today, although a few industrials and aircrafts closed higher. The power issues were affected by the heaviness of Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric. The former closed at 16¾, off 1⅜, and the latter at 31¾, off ¾.

Oils and metals were pushed down fractions to a point, but fair gains were recorded by Pan American Airways at 64⅝, Pepperell Manufacturing at 138 and McWilliams Dredging at 27⅛.

Aluminum Co. of America scored an early gain of 5, but carried a relatively small part to the close. Transactions totaled 215,000 shares, against 194,000 yesterday.

Cottonseed Crush.

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cottonseed crushed in the 9-month period, August 1 to April 30, totaled 4,279,306 tons, compared with 3,669,931 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Oil Outlook Good Despite Peak Output

Profits This Year May Top Record of 1929, Survey Says.

New York, May 12.—Although crude oil production has been mounting to successive new record highs, with current output at a daily level of close to 3,500,000 barrels, there has been no serious weakening of the statistical position of the industry. In fact, the outlook continues highly promising and there is every indication that the industry generally will enjoy its best earnings since the peak year 1929. Profits might even exceed those of that year, according to a current survey of the industry by the Standard Statistics Co.

Demand is running ahead of earlier expectations, and a high rate of drilling activity has failed to uncover any tremendous new supplies. At the ends of March, there were 4,484 wells being drilled east of California, compared with 4,055 on March 1. Well completions during March totaled 2,418, against 1,871 in February, but no initial production of unmanageable proportions was obtained.

A further encouraging factor is that the six major oil producing States, which contribute over 90 per cent of the total output, have established May production allowables closely in line with indicated requirements. This should tend to arrest the moderate excess of crude production over consumption, which has resulted in a 15,000,000 barrel increase in crude oil inventories since the beginning of the year, to a total of 300,373,000 barrels. In relation to the growing demand for petroleum products, the supply side of the industry's statistical position is considered sound.

Bankers' Acceptances 51% Above Year Ago

New York, May 12 (AP).—Bankers' acceptances outstanding in April totaled $395,031,279, an increase of 51 per cent over the volume outstanding in April, 1936, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported today. The April figure was about $1,440,000 under that of March.

Increase in acceptance volume over a year ago is attributed to the general expansion in foreign trade, acceptances being widely used as medium of credit for this purpose.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, May 12 (AP) (U. S. Dept. Agr.). Pressure to sell was apparent in medium grade bright fleece wools today. Offerings of country-graded ⅜ and ½ blood combing and clothing lengths packed together were reported at prices as low as 39 to 41 cents in the grease delivered East, although this range was lower than a number of houses were willing to consider for Ohio wools.

Bright Missouri medium grade wools were reported sold at 40 cents in the grease delivered East.

Parker Suspected Wendel, Jury Told

Newark, N. J., May 12 (AP).—A self-styled "free lance" motor vehicle inspector testified in the Parker conspiracy trial today that he shadowed Paul H. Wendel several times between 1932 and 1935 because Detective Ellis H. Parker suspected Wendel of being the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby.

The witness, Gus Lockwood, of Jersey City, asserted he was assigned to Parker in 1932 by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, then commissioner of motor vehicles, and that he worked for the detective in his independent investigation of the Lindbergh case. The result of his investigation was not brought out.

Parker, chief of Burlington County detectives, and his son, Ellis, jr., are charged with conspiracy in the kidnaping of Wendel in New York February 14, 1936.

House Inquiry May Be Result Of Jordon Case

Group Named to Decide on Investigation of Police Department.

sumed United States Attorney Leslie Garnett and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, would be "invited" to appear and answer Holzworth's charge that conditions here are a "disgrace."

Holworth's charge that Jordon was "railroaded" caused deep indignation at the courthouse. Lawyers pointed out that any charge of "railroading" implies collusion between the defense and the district attorney to defeat justice—a charge that could not be maintained by a shred of evidence in this case.

Holzworth appeared before the regular meeting of the House District Committee after he had been literally put out of the court room of Justice F. Dickinson Letts. He had gone before Justice Letts to protest against the procedure in the courtroom the day before, when Letts, at the suggestion of Jordon, had ordered it noted that he was no longer a counsel in the murder case.

Holzworth Indignant.

Approaching the bar, Holzworth said he wanted to answer the "serious" charges that Jordon had made against him in court. Jordon had said that Holzworth put him in "a false position before the public."

Justice Letts reminded Holzworth that there were no charges pending against him. When Holzworth continued talking in an indignant tone, Justice Letts turned to a deputy marshal and said:

"Take him out!"

Two deputy marshals—Hugh Duffy and Clayton Gasque—took Holsworth out of the courtroom and finally out to the street, while the strapping New Yorker struggled and shouted.

It was Holzworth who, acting on a tip from a newspaper reporter, dug up an old police lookout, broadcast on the night that Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, cashier of the Garden T Shoppe, was fatally shot, which described her assailants as 6-footers. Jordon, who was sentenced to the electric chair for that crime, is only 5 feet 6¼ inches.

Number Not Called.

Since the lookout was uncovered, the Department of Justice has interviewed a number of persons who talked to Mrs. Jaynes after the shooting, but who were never called as witnesses at the trial. Among them are persons who say they heard Mrs. Jaynes describe her assailant as a 6-footer with gray eyes and light hair. Jordon has dark eyes and black hair.

Mrs. Norton revealed yesterday that numerous complaints against the Police Department and the United States attorney's office had been received by her committee.

Whether these would be investigated, she said, depended on whether Palmisano's subcommittee decided to recommend a general investigation.

About the time that Holzworth was being ejected from the courthouse yesterday, the United States Court of Appeals was dashing one of the hopes of Jordon. It refused to direct the District Court to gi e him a new trial.

"It can be stated, we think," the court said in a memorandum opinion, "beyond any possible question that it is the rule in the Federal courts, both trial and appellate, that it is beyond the power of either court to modify its judgment or decree after the close of the term at which the same was rendered.

"In this view we have no power to recall our mandate and alter our judgment. On January 3, three months before this petition was filed, our judgment became final and our jurisdiction ended."

House Leaders Act to Save WPA From ½ Billion Slash

Administration Forces Fight to Hold Relief Appropriation at $1,500,000,000 Requested by President.

three Democrats in the committee stood irresolutely behind Woodrum yesterday for the slash. These included McMillan, Joe Starnes, of Alabama, and Malcolm C. Tarver, of Georgia.

"I don't think the Government should embark on a permanent program of relief," said Starnes, author of the amendment to the CCC bill limiting pay of 85 per cent of enrollees to $30 a month.

"I supported relief under emergency conditions that made it necessary. But now that the emergency is past, and this country is enjoying unparalleled prosperity, I cannot subscribe to indefinite continuation of relief spending."

Although the leadership's frank purpose is full restoration of the $1,500,000,000 relief item, it was learned that a $1,200,000,000 compromise has been discussed with some members of the committee. Speaker Bankhead was said to have favored a similar amount at a recent White House conference. But Bankhead yesterday denied knowledge of the committee proceedings. He said he had been told the vote would be "close" but he had made no check.

Representative John Taber, New York, ranking Republican member, flatly charged the Administration was "putting the heat on members to restore the cut. Majority Leader Rayburn, Representative Clarence Cannon, Missouri, acting chairman of the committee, White House representatives at the Capitol and even Hopkins were said to be actively pushing the restoration.

Taber today will take the House floor to outline his proposed substitute, which would abolish WPA, and appropriate only $600,000,000 to be allocated among the States for local administration.

Would Require State Share.

It was also authoritatively learned that a Democratic member will move in the Appropriations Committee to require States and localities to put up a definite share of the relief cost. A similar proposal is sponsored in the Senate by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina—also an ardent advocate of the $500,000,000 relief cut.

When the President returns from the South tomorrow for his conference with leaders, he will face a confused Congressional economy pictures. Observers have found it difficult to determine how much of the so-called revolt is influenced by real economy sentiment.

For example, the House two-year limitation on the President's "permanent" CCC program, was said to have been prompted more by desire of members for camps and camp patronage under the emergency set-up, than for actual savings. Strengthening this theory was the 232 to 146 vote by which the House yesterday adopted an amendment eliminating requirements that technical and nontechnical foremen be placed under civil service.

On another front, further surprises are said to be in store tomorrow when the House considers the Interior Department bill, last of the regular supply measures. Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, a leading exponent of economy, is expected to oppose a $2,500,000 committee cut in funds for the Shenandoah-Great Smoky Park highway.

Confusion on methods of cutting regular appropriation bills continued. The Cannon plan in the House for 15 per cent "discretionary" cuts conflicts in the Senate with the Byrnes plan for 10 per cent "horizontal" cuts. Following approval yesterday of $2,700,000 toward the $112,000,000 Gilbertsville Dam, Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), Missouri, opponent of the project, linedup with still a third method of retrenchment. Clark favored the Woodrum plan for "scientific" cutting by reconsideration in committee of all departmental appropriations.

Ellen Mussey Tribute Event Set for Tonight

30 Organizations to Honor Memory of Leader on Anniversary.

Representatives of 30 national patriotic, legal and educational organizations will meet tonight at 8 o'clock with distinguished guests at an Ellen Spencer Mussey memorial celebration in the D. A. R. Memorial Continental Hall.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, acting chairman of the celebration committee, will preside.

Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, will speak on "Dr. Ellen Spencer Mussey—A Great Feminist and Civic Leader." Other tributes will be paid by Dean Grace Hays Riley, dean of the Washington College of Law; Mme. Cantacuzene, national president of the Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States of America; Walter Davidson, assistant manager of the Eastern Area of the American Red Cross, and William Clark Taylor, former Deputy Register of Wills for the District of Columbia.

Dr. Mussey would have celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday today. She spent a life-time working for social improvements, greater educational opportunities for children and women, and the advancement of women's status.

As a tribute to Dr. Mussey, who died in April, 1936, there will be a massing of colors.

The United States Department of Agriculture Chorus and the Farm Credit Administration Chorus, under the direction of Robert Frederick Freund, will be heard.

The Rev. Paul Sperry, pastor of the Church of the New Jerusalem, will pronounce the invocation and the benediction.

Organizations to be represented will include the Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Civil War, the American Red Cross, the National Recreation Association, the District Board of Education, the District Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Association of University Women, the Washington College of Law, the Women's Bar Association of the District, the National Association of Women Lawyers, and others.

Steel Strikers Picket 2 Plants As Talk Fails

27,000 Are Affected by C. I. O. Demand for Special Contract.

series of meetings with Dewey and key men of the committee, followed by a conference with approximately 50 local union officials and representatives.

"Showdown" Arrives.

It was the "showdown" Murray predicted a few days ago when he declared the major independents were aligned in an "unholy alliance" against signing contracts with the union in face of the Supreme Court's decision validating the Wagner labor act creating the National Labor Relations Board.

The Supreme Court's decision was handed down against Jones & Laughlin, which was ordered to reinstate ten men who charged they had been dismissed by the company for union activity.

The company has not announced its position on collective bargaining since the decision.

Two Companies Refuse.

Officials of Republic Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., two of the largest independents, have advised the union they did not see the need for a signed contract in view of the Supreme Courts upholding the Wagner act.

Murray specifically mentioned the Youngstown Sheet and Tube in a recent speech in which he declared he would not be responsible for keeping union members at work in independent companies which refused to sign contracts.

Union workers at both Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube have authorized Murray to call a strike if he deems it necessary in his efforts to win a contract for them.

Union leaders said the Jones & Laughlin strike might have reverberations among union labor ranks at these two concerns and also at Bethlehem Steel Corporation, second largest steel producer in the country.

A company spokesman said Lewis had made a counter proposal to Murray's demand for a signed contract with Jones & Laughlin. Another representative of the J. & L. said:

"The decision now is fially up to them (the union)."

He declined to say what the counter proposal was.

Dewey Confident.

Dewey appeared confident a peaceful solution might be reached at future conferences.

While Lewis was closeted with Murray in his office, the company announced that it had returned seven of the discharged workers to their former jobs this week in accordance with the Supreme Court order.

An eighth man will reutrn to work next week, the company said, and two others declined reinstatement because they had new employment.

Jones & Laughlin was one of the last big independents, from which the union has demanded a contract since formation of the steel workers' organizing committee last June.

Murray asked it to follow the lead of the United States Steel Corporation and approximately 100 other smaller independents in signing a contract recognizing the steel committee as the collective bargaining agency of its members employed in the corporation's plants.

Granted Pay Raise.

While Jones & Laughlin went along with United States Steel and other producers last March in granting a 10-cent-an-hour general wage increase, a $5 minimum daily wage and 40-hour work week, it had declined to sign a contract.

Recently it withdrew financial support from its employe presentation plan which was one of the first organized after creation of the National Recovery Administration in the summer of 1933.

A scheduled conference was delayed today with officials of the Crucible Steel Co. of American, with whom contract negotiations have been under way several weeks.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation has refused to sign and had been named in a union complaint to the National Labor Relations Board. Together with Jones & Laughlin, these companies employ approximately 202,000 men, two-fifths of the total employed in the industry.

Balm Defendant Again Collapses; Case Nears Jury

Detroit, May 12 (U.P.).—A jury of six married men and six married women will be asked tomorrow to decide whether Laura Strittmatter, middle aged stenographer, lured Charles H. Cullinan, of Washington, D. C., into a bigamous marriage.

They were excused from Judge John V. Brennan's courtroom this afternoon after the dark-eyed defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit groaned and collapsed.

Twice before she had suffered nervous prostrations which brought recesses in the trial, and once she fell from the witness stand in a faint.

Today's collapse came as Harry J. Lippmann, attorney for Mrs. Hallie M. Cullinan, was completing his rebuttal argument and warning the jury not to be "fooled by an innocent child-like look."
